Auto Injuries Fatal To Thomas Purdy

Thomas Purdy, 82, of 753 Broadway, who for 25 years had been assistant manager of the F. Jacobson & Sons shirt factory, died Saturday night at Kingston Hospital.

Coroner Francis J. McCardle, who was notified because the aged man had been involved in a traffic mishap last Thursday said death was due "to injuries received in the accident."

McCARDLE said a post mortem examination showed a fractured lumbar vertebrae, a laceration of the spleen from which developed a pulmonary edema and coronary insufficiency.

A police report at 10:18 a. m. Friday, said Julius Lipton, owner of Lipton's Bee Line bus service, 549 Albany avenue, reported that Thomas Geary, 298 Clinton avenue, operator of a Bee Line vehicle, had struck Purdy on Broadway near Thomas street, "knocking him to the pavement" at about 1:08 p. m., Thursday, April 7. The report said "Purdy did not claim any injuries at the time."

Purdy died at the hospital at 11:05 p. m., Saturday, the coroner said.

A LIFE MEMBER of Kingston Lodge 550 BPOE, Purdy had been in the shirt manufacturing business all of his working years. Surviving are a daughter, Doris Fickus, of Kingston, a son Donald, of Binghamton, two sisters, Mrs. Charles Goldthorpe, and Mrs. Richard Bensen, and a brother, Fred Purdy, all of Paterson, N. J., two grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

The funeral service will be held at the Sweet & Keyser Funeral Home, 167 Tremper avenue, Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. The Rev. William J. McVey, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, will officiate. Burial will be in Cedar Lawn Cemetery, Paterson at 2 p. m., Wednesday. Friends may call at the funeral home any time after 3 p. m., today.

County Man Found Dead On Highway

Ellenville, April 11 (AP)—The body of Paul Zazuliak, 30, of Grahamsville was found today on Route 55 at Napanoch, five miles north of here. His wrecked car was nearby.

State police expressed the belief that Zazuliak was injured only slightly when his car went down an embankment but was killed by a passing car when he went to the highway for help. Zazuliak was a knife company employe.

State police said the mishap occurred sometime between midnight Sunday and 6:30 a. m. today.

TROOPERS SAID they found evidence that a dark green car with a damaged front end was responsible for a hit-run fatality. responsible for the hit-run fatality.

Authorities added that broken pieces of a headlight were found in addition to some red plastic which they believed came from a wind deflector on the automobile.

Coroner Charles Rosenstock and the state police are investigating.

No coroner's verdict has been rendered, authorities said.

Driver Is Fined $25 For Leaving Scene

George Hoffman, 45, of Greenfield Center, was fined $25 by Justice of the Peace Roy Webber of Stone Ridge on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident Saturday morning, state police reported.

Troopers charged that Hoffman was driver of a southbound vehicle which was in collision with the automobile of Walter Menger, 51, of Stone Ridge, and then with that of Frederick Baumgarten, 60, also of Stone Ridge. The accident occurred on Route 209 at Stone Ridge about 8:30 a. m. No personal injuries were reported.

Local Area Is Featured in State Vacation Guide

The Catskill Mountain vacation empire is featured as one of the nation's greatest resort and recreation areas in the 1955 edition of "New York State Vacationlands." Publication of this 196-page illustrated guidebook was announced today by Commissioner Edward T. Dickinson of the State Department of Commerce in Albany as part of a program to increase business in the area.

Governor Averell Harriman, in a bid to prospective vacationists, states in the book that "New York is one of the most fortunate of states in the natural endowments which make it a grand vacationland. We have beautiful scenery of every kind—mountains and forests, rivers, lakes and ocean shore, shadowy glens, rocky gorges, foaming waterfalls. It is a glorious setting for one of the nation's most popular playgrounds."

THE BOOK contains up-to-date information on more than 400 tourist attractions, some opening to the public for the first time this year. Valuable facts on more than 500 resort communities in the state are also given. Many new color pictures and sketches as well as revised data on rates, hours and admission fees have been incorporated.

Special sections are devoted to motoring, the Thruway, parks and parkways, vacation accommodations, dude ranches, roughing it, boating, historic shrines, fishing and year-round vacations. Details are given on toll bridges, ferries, boat trips, sightseeing tours, transportation facilities, state parks and campsites. An index is included for handy reference.

FREE COPIES may be obtained by writing the Department at 112 State street, Albany 7.

In the Catskill section are full-color pictures of the Catskill Game Farm, the Van Deusen house in Hurley, Lake Minnewaska, Ashokan reservoir, the Shawangunk Trail and a typical Sullivan county resort hotel. Sketches illustrate brief write-ups on Rip Van Winkle, Belleayre Mountain chair lift, Haines Falls, Point Lookout, hay fever relief, Leeds bridge, the Senate House, Kingston, Catskill motoring trails and Woodstock art center. Schedules for the Rip Van Winkle and Mid-Hudson toll bridges and the Kingston-Rhinecliff ferry are given and there are descriptions of the Beaverkill, Devil's Tombstone, North Lake and Woodland Valley state public campsites in the half-million-acre Catskill forest preserve.

Other Catskill attractions listed in a "What to See" section include: Bronck house, Burroughs memorials, Catskill Mountain House, Durham Center museum, Old Dutch Church, Kingston, Gould Memorial Church in Roxbury, Hasbrouck Memorial House, Merriman Dam, Perrine's bridge, Rip's Retreat and Sam's Point.

Six Persons Hurt Near Ellenville

Two Cars Involved In Head-on Mishap

Six persons were reported injured when two automobiles collided almost head-on Sunday afternoon on Route 52 about a mile east of Ellenville.

Reported in "fair" condition at Veterans Memorial Hospital today were William Spaesser, Jr., 21, Robert Madison, 16, and Jo-Ann Miller, 17, of Long Eddy, and Jacob Loeber, 64, of the Bronx. Treated and released were Lawrence Gilbert, 20, and Daniel J. Spooner, 43, of the Bronx.

TROOPERS SAID the Bronx residents were riding in an automobile driven by Spooner which was eastbound on Route 52 when it was in collision with a vehicle driven by Spaesser. The Spaesser automobile was entering the highway from a gasoline station and turning to proceed west when the accident occurred, troopers said. There was no arrest.

State police said Spaesser received contusions and abrasions of the head and face; Madison reported a fracture and contusions and abrasions; Miss Miller, dislocated right hip and laceration under the lip, and Loeber, multiple contusions, lacerations and a possible skull fracture. Gilbert and Spooner had various contusions and lacerations, according to the report.

Medical Authorities Confident Vaccine Is Weapon to Halt Polio

Pittsburgh, April 11 (AP)—Six years ago a mild-mannered young scientist vowed an unceasing fight to conquer one of mankind's greatest scourges—polio.

Tomorrow the world learns how well Dr. Jonas Edward Salk succeeded.

That's when Dr. Thomas Francis Jr. of the University of Michigan releases an anxiously awaited report on nationwide field trials last year of the Salk anti-polio vaccine.

Has polio finelly been beaten?

Can the nation's children—prime targets of paralytic poliomyelitis—be immunized against the dread disease?

ALL SIGNS indicate the answer is "yes." Many medical authorities and laymen in the forefront of the polio battle are confident Salk's vaccine is the weapon long sought to overcome this terrible crippler.

Dr. Salk has a personal, as well as scientific interest in the answers. He himself has three small boys.

Dr. Salk will be on hand at Ann Arbor, Mich., where the momentous decision is announced.

In his quiet, unassuming way, the 40-year-old University of Pittsburgh virus expert will claim no special credit for the vaccine if it's found successful.

HE'LL POINT to the scientific groundwork laid by others years before his work started.

And he'll point to the long hours put in by his assistants at the Pitt Virus Research Laboratory which he heads.

That's Dr. Salk's way.

Slender and of medium height, Dr. Salk is yet a giant in energy and purpose. He enjoys his work and has a deep sense of social obligation.

These are the things which have enabled him to toil constantly the past several years in search of an effective polio vaccine.

Word that Dr. Salk had developed a polio vaccine caused a great stir in the spring of 1954. Newsmen by the dozens came to his doorstep seeking all the details.

Always gracious, Dr. Salk managed to fend off most of them by saying:

"Every minute I talk to you is time spent away from the laboratory, time I cannot afford to spend this way."

BEFORE THE VACCINE could be mass-produced, it had to be perfected. That took time.

But children would die of polio that very summer of 1954. Public pressure mounted steadily.

Ellenville Area Forest Fire Is Checked Sunday

A forest fire which burned over the lower half of Mt. Meenahga near Ellenville was apparently the most serious of a large number of brush and grass fires which kept Ulster county volunteer firemen busy Saturday afternoon and all day Sunday.

STATE POLICE at the Ellenville station reported the Mt. Meenahga fire east of Ellenville broke out about noon Sunday and burned until 6 p. m. The Ellenville fire department and a number of other volunteers brought the blaze under control.

A 20 by 20 foot shed owned by Dayton Smith of Ellenville was destroyed in the blaze. Firemen succeeded in saving the Smith home located nearby on Route 52.

NO SERIOUS injury or loss of life was reported in any of the county fires over the weekend.

Added to the firemen's troubles Sunday afternoon was a telephone call received at Mutual Aid headquarters in Kingston at 4:20 p. m. The caller said he was from the Cottekill fire department and asked for help at a fire on Union Hill road in Cottekill.

THE HIGH FALLS department was dispatched and, arriving in Cottekill found the Cottekill fire apparatus secure in its firehouse. They also found there was no such place in Cottekill as Union Hill road.

Deputy Fire Chief George Matthews of Kingston, who was

U. S. Units Directed to Stand Clear

Nationalists Will Bear First Thrust

Washington, April 11 (AP)—The big African-Asian conference opening a week from today may be a big factor in Communist China's decision whether to attack in the Formosa area this spring or, in fact, at any time.

In any event, top U. S. officials have decided the Chinese Reds are not likely to move on the Matsu or Quemoy islands before or during the conference, to be held at Bandung, Indonesia.

It was disclosed authoriatively yesterday that President Eisenhower has directed American forces to stand clear of any initial attack on the coastal islands until he personally can determine the nature and intent of the assault.

THAT MEANS no action by U. S. forces prior to orders from Washington, which is evidence of a desire to avoid any trigger-happy reactions of American naval or airmen under the pressures of a sudden crisis.

Persons familiar with the administration's Far Eastern policies said Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese Nationalists will be expected to bear the initial thrust of any attack that may develop. American forces were said to have been told to stand in readiness but not to join in the hostilities unless deliberately attacked.

Secretary of the Army Stephens, returning yesterday from an inspection trip to the Far East, said he doesn't believe the Reds have any immediate plans for an offensive in the Formosa strait. If there is an attack, he said, he thinks Chiang's forces could "give a very good account of themselves."

AMERICAN LEADERS attach great importance to the Bandung talks—not because of the issues which will come up but because of the diplomatic maneuvers that will take place in conference corridors.

The Chinese Communists will be one of the principal participants. What happens to them there may have either of two results as authorities here analyze the situation:

1. If the Communists find that their demands for possession of Formosa and the offshore island groups are generally supported as right, then they will be encouraged to use force in realizing those claims. The danger of war in the Formosa strait would flame high soon thereafter.

2. If the Chinese Reds find that their threat to use force costs them goodwill of the African and Asian nations and subjects them to censure, then they may be persuaded to stay their hand. Slender hopes for a negotiated settlement would be substantially enlarged.

The conference, with 29 nations expected, will open on April 18. It is scheduled to run through April 24. American eyes and ears in Bandung will be supplied by Ambassadors Hugh S. Cumming Jr., and his staff from the embassy at the Indonesian capital, Jakarta.

GM Pledges Hard Work For Auto Labor Peace

Detroit, April 11 (AP) — The giant General Motors Corp., pledged today to work hard toward negotiating a new contract peacefully with the CIO United Auto Workers union.

GM made the pledge in morning newspaper advertisements in major cities. Contract talks were due to resume this afternoon. The union opens negotiations with the Ford Motor Co. tomorrow.

THE GM AD, the company's first statement on its bargaining which got under way last week, said nothing about the UAW's requests for the guaranteed annual wage, pay and pension boosts and other concessions.

Instead, GM stressed that the expiring five-year contract with the union has meant prosperity for the company and the workers, in higher pay, steady employment, plant expansion and increased sales.

"Every one of us who is a member of the GM team can be happy that we have a winning combination that benefits all concerned," the GM ads said.

"There's every indication that this can be the best year of all. It's just plain common sense to keep the ball rolling straight through 1955."

This seemed to mean that GM wants if at all possible to avoid any strike in this year of bumper production. The present GM-UAW contract expires May 29, the Ford contract running out three days later, on June 1.

"We at GM have taken our place at the bargaining table with an open mind," the company said. "As in the past, we are determined to work hard in an effort to negotiate a new agreement which will be fair and of mutual benefit to the public, our employes, the union and the company."

GM THUS avoided displaying the slightest evidence of fight against the UAW demands, particularly the most controversial one for guaranteed year-around pay which Walter Reuther, president of the UAW and the CIO, has promised he'll win from the auto industry this year.

Reuther has said the UAW will strike if necessary, to win its demands and has voted a 25 million dollar strike fund to back it up.

The union is keeping the industry guessing on whether it will concentrate its fire on GM or Ford in their simultaneous negotiations. Talks with Chrysler won't start for another two months.

Reds Fire Two

Moscow, April 12 (AP)—Two state-farm directors have been fired and ordered to pay personally for big livestock losses on their farms last winter. Soviet Agriculture, official newspaper of the Ministry of Agriculture, and Minister of State Farms Ivan A. Benediktov, announced this today.

Katrine School Meeting Tuesday

An unofficial meeting of voters of Union Free School District No. 4 will be held at the Lake Katrine Grange Hall Tuesday at 8:15 p. m., it was announced today by Parran A. Gates, president of the board of education.

The district has authorized the construction of a new kindergarten through Grade 6 school but when bids were opened last Thursday, it was found that all bids received exceeded the previously estimated costs, which were limited to $396,000 by vote of the district in January.

Purpose of Tuesday night's meeting, Gates explained, is to present the facts to the public and solicit discussion and opinions before making a decision as to the future course of action. The meeting will have no official status.

Record Crowds Greet Easter, 700 at Hunt

From Easter dawn throughout Sunday people of all creeds thronged churches of their particular faiths, attended special services and later in the day with perfect weather prevailing were given an opportunity to join the Easter parade.

It was the conviction of many that perhaps a new record for church attendance on Easter Sunday had been established in Kingston and its environs.

In many churches there were early dawn services, followed by the regular Sunday service.

A PERFECT DAY, one of the few thus far this spring, brought out thousands and highways were heavy with traffic throughout the day. Restaurants were crowded and in many instances there were long lines waiting to gain entrance to favorite eating places.

One of the outstanding Easter programs was the egg hunt sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce at Forsyth Park Sunday afternoon. So successful was this event that plans are already being made to hold it again next Easter Sunday. It was estimated some 700 children flocked to Forsyth Park to take part in the egg hunt or become spectators. There were also some 300 adults who came out to en-

Violence Flares In Phone Strike

Atlanta, April 11 (AP)—Tension mounted steadily today in three states where mobs battered down a Southern Bell Telephone Co. exchange door, forced the closing of another exchange and squirted acid in a policeman's eye.

There was growing unrest elsewhere in the nine-state southeastern area as the CIO Communications Workers of America strike continued for the 29th day.

The Easter weekend was marked by widespread violence, the cutting and shooting of more cables and the arrest of at least 17 persons. Company officials announced the dismissal of 19 strikers, bringing to 44 the number fired since the walkout started March 14.

AT CLINTON, TENN., Sheriff Joe Owen said a mob of about 300 persons smashed the telephone exchange door after he read a temporary injunction banning mass picketing.

Tom Stokes, Southern Bell district manager, reported the door was quickly replaced with

Austria Seeks Treaty In Talks With Soviets

Moscow, April 11 (AP)—Austrian Chancellor Julius Raab landed at Moscow's central military airport this afternoon to begin conferences with Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov on speeding up an Austrian independence treaty.

Molotov and Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko headed the welcoming party at the snowy airport. U. S. Ambassador Charles Bohlen was among the diplomats present.

"I hope this trip will improve relations," Raab told the crowd which greeted him in a blinding snowstorm.

He said he was glad to come here and recalled that it was just 10 years ago that Soviet troops liberated his homeland.

RAAB COMES to Moscow on the invitation of Molotov, who has said personal contact between the Austrian Chancellor and top Russian leaders would speed completion of the Austrian treaty, deadlocked in the 10 years since.

Corsi Rejects New Job Offer

Washington, April 11 (AP)—Edward J. Corsi, who was ousted as state department immigration specialist, today rejected an offer by Secretary of State Dulles of a new job.

Corsi, whose old post was abruptly abolished 90 days after he took it, sent Dulles a letter resigning from state department service.

His action was announced by Mrs. Corsi at their Arlington, Va., home. Mrs. Corsi said an a statement:

"Mr. Corsi has notified the secretary by letter this morning that he regrets his inability to accept the secretary's offer. He has no further comment at this time."

CORSI IS a veteran Republican office holder and party worker in New York state, and there has been considerable criticism of Secretary of State Dulles' action last week in terminating his job.

Dulles praised Corsi as "my old friend" and as the best man for the job three months ago when he named the New Yorker as a deputy refugee relief administrator.

Corsi came under fire from Rep. Walter (D-Pa.) and was told last Wednesday that his job was temporary and would expire after 90-days—yesterday. Corsi said he would not have accepted in the first place if he had known the job was so brief.

IN POUGHKEEPSIE, Frank P. Tufaro, president of the New York State Columbia Republican League, yesterday urged all league chapters to launch a "vigorous protest over the Corsi ouster from the refugee job."

Tufaro said he had sent telegrams to President Eisenhower,

Three Are Injured In Broadway Accident

There persons were injured in a three-car mishap near 300 Broadway early Saturday afternoon.

Officers William Norton and Crawford Millham reported at 12:10 p. m., that the station wagon of Edward and Harold Acker, of East Kingston, operated by the latter was stopped in a line of traffic, headed north on Broadway. It was struck in the rear by the coupe of Estelle Wisenberg, of Peekskill, operated by Harry Wisenberg, which was then struck by the sedan of Lawrence Melvin Blythe, of Brooklyn.

Estelle Wisenberg reported a back injury, and Harry suffered knee injuries. They reported they would be treated by a doctor. The car was towed from the scene.

Florence Acker, Rt. 1, Box 194, East Kingston, reported injuries of the chest and throat and was to be treated by a doctor.

Parade Launches Automobile Week In City Tonight

A big parade, starting in Port Ewen tonight at 6 o'clock, will launch "Spotlight on Automobiles" week in Kingston with a motorcade of from 125 to 150 new cars scheduled to take part.

After leaving Port Ewen, the parade will proceed over the Rondout Creek Bridge and will make its way through downtown, central and uptown business sections.

The entire week of April 11-16, has been designated as "auto show week" with the "show" taking place in each individual dealer's showrooms.

George Shivery, president of the Kingston Automobile Dealers Association, has predicted that between 125 and 150 vehicles will be in tonight's parade.

Gerald Martin is chairman of the "Spotlight on Automobiles" observance.

Orange Man Is Chief Chaplain of Air Force School

Denver, April 11 (AP) — The air force announced the appointment today of Col. Constantine Zielinski as chief chaplain for its new academy which opens this summer.

Col. Zielinski, a Roman Catholic priest, now is stationed at Wiesbaden, Germany. He is a native of Florida, N. Y., in Orange county.

Since 1953, Col. Zielinski has been the chief chaplain for the air force in Europe.

Defends GOP State Record, Harriman Leadership Hit

New York, April 11 (AP)—Assemblyman Joseph F. Carlino, Republican majority leader of the Assembly, says the GOP-controlled Legislature made a good record at its recent session but Democratic Gov. Averell Harriman "hasn't supplied dynamic leadership."

The Nassau county legislator reviewed the legislative session work and defended it yesterday in a talk on the WCBS radio program "Let's Find Out."

Carlino said the Legislature's creation of a government operations committee was necessary to "keep the Legislature informed whether the executive branch of the government will carry out the laws we will pass." Carlino said, however, that the $75,000 a-year group is "not a watchdog committee."

Republican State Chairman L. Judson Morhouse said in a Sunday statement that Mayor Robert F. Wagner's proposal for a long-range bipartisan committee to study state-city fiscal relations is "an attempt to keep alive a counterfeit political issue."

Morhouse added that the Democratic mayor's plan is an attempt to "evade responsibility for the ever mounting costs of the city government."

Morhouse urged that the New York City Council provide the

Chipp Resigns Fire Post, Favors Salaried Appointee

Arthur C. Chipp of Kerhonkson, who has served as Ulster County Fire Coordinator since February 14, 1949, has submitted his resignation to the board of supervisors and a copy has also been sent to Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy, in charge of Mutual aid.

The resignation of Chipp will become effective April 15, and he suggests the duties be performed by Deputy Fire Coordinator Edward F. Mains of Port Ewen until such time as a permanent appointment is made.

Chipp submitted his resignation because of the "time consuming and costly" nature of the job which he says he can no longer continue since the job has become of such importance that it should be filled by an appointee who is on salary. He suggests the position become full time and recommends a salary of $2,000.

During his term he sponsored and gave a great deal of his time toward securing two-way radio control for county fire equipment which has been under consideration by the board of supervisors for some time. Until the present no definite action has been taken.

In his letter of resignation Chipp says the job takes to

Ellenville Area Forest Fire Is Checked Sunday

A forest fire which burned over the lower half of Mt. Meenahga near Ellenville was apparently the most serious of a large number of brush and grass fires which kept Ulster county volunteer firemen busy Saturday afternoon and all day Sunday.

STATE POLICE at the Ellenville station reported the Mt. Meenahga fire east of Ellenville broke out about noon Sunday and burned until 6 p. m. The Ellenville fire department and a number of other volunteers brought the blaze under control.

A 20 by 20 foot shed owned by Dayton Smith of Ellenville was destroyed in the blaze. Firemen succeeded in saving the Smith home located nearby on Route 52.

NO SERIOUS injury or loss of life was reported in any of the county fires over the weekend.

Added to the firemen's troubles Sunday afternoon was a telephone call received at Mutual Aid headquarters in Kingston at 4:20 p. m. The caller said he was from the Cottekill fire department and asked for help at a fire on Union Hill road in Cottekill.

THE HIGH FALLS department was dispatched and, arriving in Cottekill found the Cottekill fire apparatus secure in its firehouse. They also found there was no such place in Cottekill as Union Hill road.

U. S. Units Directed to Stand Clear

Nationalists Will Bear First Thrust

Washington, April 11 (AP)—The big African-Asian conference opening a week from today may be a big factor in Communist China's decision whether to attack in the Formosa area this spring or, in fact, at any time.

In any event, top U. S. officials have decided the Chinese Reds are not likely to move on the Matsu or Quemoy islands before or during the conference, to be held at Bandung, Indonesia.

It was disclosed authoriatively yesterday that President Eisenhower has directed American forces to stand clear of any initial attack on the coastal islands until he personally can determine the nature and intent of the assault.

THAT MEANS no action by U. S. forces prior to orders from Washington, which is evidence of a desire to avoid any trigger-happy reactions of American naval or airmen under the pressures of a sudden crisis.

Persons familiar with the administration's Far Eastern policies said Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese Nationalists will be expected to bear the initial thrust of any attack that may develop. American forces were said to have been told to stand in readiness but not to join in the hostilities unless deliberately attacked.

Secretary of the Army Stephens, returning yesterday from an inspection trip to the Far East, said he doesn't believe the Reds have any immediate plans for an offensive in the Formosa strait. If there is an attack, he said, he thinks Chiang's forces could "give a very good account of themselves."

AMERICAN LEADERS attach great importance to the Bandung talks—not because of the issues which will come up but because of the diplomatic maneuvers that will take place in conference corridors.

The Chinese Communists will be one of the principal participants. What happens to them there may have either of two results as authorities here analyze the situation:

1. If the Communists find that their demands for possession of Formosa and the offshore island groups are generally supported as right, then they will be encouraged to use force in realizing those claims. The danger of war in the Formosa strait would flame high soon thereafter.

2. If the Chinese Reds find that their threat to use force costs them goodwill of the African and Asian nations and subjects them to censure, then they may be persuaded to stay their hand. Slender hopes for a negotiated settlement would be substantially enlarged.

The conference, with 29 nations expected, will open on April 18. It is scheduled to run through April 24. American eyes and ears in Bandung will be supplied by Ambassadors Hugh S. Cumming Jr., and his staff from the embassy at the Indonesian capital, Jakarta.

GM Pledges Hard Work For Auto Labor Peace

Detroit, April 11 (AP) — The giant General Motors Corp., pledged today to work hard toward negotiating a new contract peacefully with the CIO United Auto Workers union.

GM made the pledge in morning newspaper advertisements in major cities. Contract talks were due to resume this afternoon. The union opens negotiations with the Ford Motor Co. tomorrow.

THE GM AD, the company's first statement on its bargaining which got under way last week, said nothing about the UAW's requests for the guaranteed annual wage, pay and pension boosts and other concessions.

Instead, GM stressed that the expiring five-year contract with the union has meant prosperity for the company and the workers, in higher pay, steady employment, plant expansion and increased sales.

"Every one of us who is a member of the GM team can be happy that we have a winning combination that benefits all concerned," the GM ads said.

"There's every indication that this can be the best year of all. It's just plain common sense to keep the ball rolling straight through 1955."

This seemed to mean that GM wants if at all possible to avoid any strike in this year of bumper production. The present GM-UAW contract expires May 29, the Ford contract running out three days later, on June 1.

"We at GM have taken our place at the bargaining table with an open mind," the company said. "As in the past, we are determined to work hard in an effort to negotiate a new agreement which will be fair and of mutual benefit to the public, our employes, the union and the company."

GM THUS avoided displaying the slightest evidence of fight against the UAW demands, particularly the most controversial one for guaranteed year-around pay which Walter Reuther, president of the UAW and the CIO, has promised he'll win from the auto industry this year.

Reuther has said the UAW will strike if necessary, to win its demands and has voted a 25 million dollar strike fund to back it up.

The union is keeping the industry guessing on whether it will concentrate its fire on GM or Ford in their simultaneous negotiations. Talks with Chrysler won't start for another two months.

Reds Fire Two

Moscow, April 12 (AP)—Two state-farm directors have been fired and ordered to pay personally for big livestock losses on their farms last winter. Soviet Agriculture, official newspaper of the Ministry of Agriculture, and Minister of State Farms Ivan A. Benediktov, announced this today.

Katrine School Meeting Tuesday

An unofficial meeting of voters of Union Free School District No. 4 will be held at the Lake Katrine Grange Hall Tuesday at 8:15 p. m., it was announced today by Parran A. Gates, president of the board of education.

The district has authorized the construction of a new kindergarten through Grade 6 school but when bids were opened last Thursday, it was found that all bids received exceeded the previously estimated costs, which were limited to $396,000 by vote of the district in January.

Purpose of Tuesday night's meeting, Gates explained, is to present the facts to the public and solicit discussion and opinions before making a decision as to the future course of action. The meeting will have no official status.

Record Crowds Greet Easter, 700 at Hunt

From Easter dawn throughout Sunday people of all creeds thronged churches of their particular faiths, attended special services and later in the day with perfect weather prevailing were given an opportunity to join the Easter parade.

It was the conviction of many that perhaps a new record for church attendance on Easter Sunday had been established in Kingston and its environs.

In many churches there were early dawn services, followed by the regular Sunday service.

A PERFECT DAY, one of the few thus far this spring, brought out thousands and highways were heavy with traffic throughout the day. Restaurants were crowded and in many instances there were long lines waiting to gain entrance to favorite eating places.

One of the outstanding Easter programs was the egg hunt sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce at Forsyth Park Sunday afternoon. So successful was this event that plans are already being made to hold it again next Easter Sunday. It was estimated some 700 children flocked to Forsyth Park to take part in the egg hunt or become spectators. There were also some 300 adults who came out to en-

Violence Flares In Phone Strike

Atlanta, April 11 (AP)—Tension mounted steadily today in three states where mobs battered down a Southern Bell Telephone Co. exchange door, forced the closing of another exchange and squirted acid in a policeman's eye.

There was growing unrest elsewhere in the nine-state southeastern area as the CIO Communications Workers of America strike continued for the 29th day.

The Easter weekend was marked by widespread violence, the cutting and shooting of more cables and the arrest of at least 17 persons. Company officials announced the dismissal of 19 strikers, bringing to 44 the number fired since the walkout started March 14.

AT CLINTON, TENN., Sheriff Joe Owen said a mob of about 300 persons smashed the telephone exchange door after he read a temporary injunction banning mass picketing.

Tom Stokes, Southern Bell district manager, reported the door was quickly replaced with

Corsi Rejects New Job Offer

Washington, April 11 (AP)—Edward J. Corsi, who was ousted as state department immigration specialist, today rejected an offer by Secretary of State Dulles of a new job.

Corsi, whose old post was abruptly abolished 90 days after he took it, sent Dulles a letter resigning from state department service.

His action was announced by Mrs. Corsi at their Arlington, Va., home. Mrs. Corsi said an a statement:

"Mr. Corsi has notified the secretary by letter this morning that he regrets his inability to accept the secretary's offer. He has no further comment at this time."

CORSI IS a veteran Republican office holder and party worker in New York state, and there has been considerable criticism of Secretary of State Dulles' action last week in terminating his job.

Dulles praised Corsi as "my old friend" and as the best man for the job three months ago when he named the New Yorker as a deputy refugee relief administrator.

Corsi came under fire from Rep. Walter (D-Pa.) and was told last Wednesday that his job was temporary and would expire after 90-days—yesterday. Corsi said he would not have accepted in the first place if he had known the job was so brief.

IN POUGHKEEPSIE, Frank P. Tufaro, president of the New York State Columbia Republican League, yesterday urged all league chapters to launch a "vigorous protest over the Corsi ouster from the refugee job."

Tufaro said he had sent telegrams to President Eisenhower,

Moscow, April 11 (AP)—Austrian Chancellor Julius Raab landed at Moscow's central military airport this afternoon to begin conferences with Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov on speeding up an Austrian independence treaty.

Molotov and Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko headed the welcoming party at the snowy airport. U. S. Ambassador Charles Bohlen was among the diplomats present.

"I hope this trip will improve relations," Raab told the crowd which greeted him in a blinding snowstorm.

He said he was glad to come here and recalled that it was just 10 years ago that Soviet troops liberated his homeland.

RAAB COMES to Moscow on the invitation of Molotov, who has said personal contact between the Austrian Chancellor and top Russian leaders would speed completion of the Austrian treaty, deadlocked in the 10 years since.

Three Are Injured In Broadway Accident

There persons were injured in a three-car mishap near 300 Broadway early Saturday afternoon.

Officers William Norton and Crawford Millham reported at 12:10 p. m., that the station wagon of Edward and Harold Acker, of East Kingston, operated by the latter was stopped in a line of traffic, headed north on Broadway. It was struck in the rear by the coupe of Estelle Wisenberg, of Peekskill, operated by Harry Wisenberg, which was then struck by the sedan of Lawrence Melvin Blythe, of Brooklyn.

Estelle Wisenberg reported a back injury, and Harry suffered knee injuries. They reported they would be treated by a doctor. The car was towed from the scene.

Florence Acker, Rt. 1, Box 194, East Kingston, reported injuries of the chest and throat and was to be treated by a doctor.

Chipp Resigns Fire Post, Favors Salaried Appointee

Arthur C. Chipp of Kerhonkson, who has served as Ulster County Fire Coordinator since February 14, 1949, has submitted his resignation to the board of supervisors and a copy has also been sent to Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy, in charge of Mutual aid.

The resignation of Chipp will become effective April 15, and he suggests the duties be performed by Deputy Fire Coordinator Edward F. Mains of Port Ewen until such time as a permanent appointment is made.

Chipp submitted his resignation because of the "time consuming and costly" nature of the job which he says he can no longer continue since the job has become of such importance that it should be filled by an appointee who is on salary. He suggests the position become full time and recommends a salary of $2,000.

During his term he sponsored and gave a great deal of his time toward securing two-way radio control for county fire equipment which has been under consideration by the board of supervisors for some time. Until the present no definite action has been taken.

In his letter of resignation Chipp says the job takes to

Parade Launches Automobile Week In City Tonight

A big parade, starting in Port Ewen tonight at 6 o'clock, will launch "Spotlight on Automobiles" week in Kingston with a motorcade of from 125 to 150 new cars scheduled to take part.

After leaving Port Ewen, the parade will proceed over the Rondout Creek Bridge and will make its way through downtown, central and uptown business sections.

The entire week of April 11-16, has been designated as "auto show week" with the "show" taking place in each individual dealer's showrooms.

George Shivery, president of the Kingston Automobile Dealers Association, has predicted that between 125 and 150 vehicles will be in tonight's parade.

Gerald Martin is chairman of the "Spotlight on Automobiles" observance.

Orange Man Is Chief Chaplain of Air Force School

Denver, April 11 (AP) — The air force announced the appointment today of Col. Constantine Zielinski as chief chaplain for its new academy which opens this summer.

Col. Zielinski, a Roman Catholic priest, now is stationed at Wiesbaden, Germany. He is a native of Florida, N. Y., in Orange county.

Since 1953, Col. Zielinski has been the chief chaplain for the air force in Europe.

Defends GOP State Record, Harriman Leadership Hit

New York, April 11 (AP)—Assemblyman Joseph F. Carlino, Republican majority leader of the Assembly, says the GOP-controlled Legislature made a good record at its recent session but Democratic Gov. Averell Harriman "hasn't supplied dynamic leadership."

The Nassau county legislator reviewed the legislative session work and defended it yesterday in a talk on the WCBS radio program "Let's Find Out."

Carlino said the Legislature's creation of a government operations committee was necessary to "keep the Legislature informed whether the executive branch of the government will carry out the laws we will pass." Carlino said, however, that the $75,000 a-year group is "not a watchdog committee."

Republican State Chairman L. Judson Morhouse said in a Sunday statement that Mayor Robert F. Wagner's proposal for a long-range bipartisan committee to study state-city fiscal relations is "an attempt to keep alive a counterfeit political issue."

Morhouse added that the Democratic mayor's plan is an attempt to "evade responsibility for the ever mounting costs of the city government."

C of C Will Meet On Tuesday Night

Budgets, membership campaign and annual membership meeting will be the principal items of business before the regular April meeting of the board of directors of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce Tuesday night. In making this announcement today President J. Ellis Briggs urged a full attendance because of the importance of the meeting.

A proposed budget will be presented by the executive committee. George Silkworth, chairman of the membership committee, will present a proposed outline for the 1955 campaign and suggested plans for the annual April membership business meeting will also be presented by the executive committee.

The directors meeting takes place the second Tuesday of each month at 7:30 p. m. in the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Faure in Favor Of Conference

Washington, April 11 (AP)—Premier Edgar Faure of France says he favors a conference "as soon as possible" between the western Big Three and Russia.

Expressing hope that some such session involving the foreign ministers of France, Britain, the United States and Russia can be held by July, Faure said in a copyrighted interview with the magazine U. S. News and World Report that he believes the four heads of state should also get together.

"If we want to achieve results," he said, "we must undoubtedly one day come to a four-power meeting at the highest level."

FAURE WAS interviewed in Paris by a magizine staff member, and the interview was published today.

Asked whether he thinks a real settlement of cold war tensions is possible, or whether new talks can only continue a stalemate, Faure replied: "I think a true settlement is possible."

Ellenville Area

in charge at Central Station when the malicious false alarm was received, reported the incident to the Ulster county Sheriff's department.

Among other calls received through Mutual Aid headquarters included two for brush fires in Old Hurley within four minutes of each other. The first call, at 12:39 p. m. Sunday, was for a brush fire on Hillcrest avenue. This was followed at 12:43 p. m. for a brush fire at the end of Terrace Lane on the hill adpoining the James E. Anner residence. As the first fire was slight, firemen were able to extinguish it before proceeding to the second fire.

Fires in the hard-hit Ellenville area, in addition to the Mt. Meenahga conflagration, included smaller ones at Oak Ridge, Granite, and two at Walker Valley. All were out this morning, state police reported.

THE RUN-DOWN of Mutual Aid calls received Saturday afternoon and Sunday:

Saturday—12:01 p. m., West Hurley reported out to grass fire near John D. Groves residence, Woodstock assigned to cover; 1:10 p. m., Sawkill reported out to brush fire in village, Ruby assigned to cover Sawkill; 1:22 p. m., call for brush fire on Sawkill road, Ruby dispatched and Mt. Marion department assigned to cover the territory. Mt. Marion tank truck also went to fire; 1:55 p. m., Binnewater department at brush fire, Rosendale assigned to cover Binnewater.

Sunday—9:20 a. m., Rifton dispatched to fire in rear of Black Swan Inn; 10:37 a. m. Ellenville department reported it went to assist at brush fire in Walker Valley; 12:57 a. m., Rosendale reported brush fire; 12:34 p. m., brush fire on Hillcrest avenue, Hurley; 12:43 p. m., brush fire on Terrace Lane, Hurley; 1:47 p. m., brush fire at Kripplebush; 2:03 p. m., Binnewater department reported on way to fire; 2:06 p. m., Bloomington department on way to a fire; 3:18 p. m., Accord department out to brush fire.

Grass and Brush Fires

The East Kingston fire department was summoned out to fight two grass and brush fires over the weekend. On Sunday at 2:35 p. m., there was a brush fire at Ulster Landing on the Arthur Logesen place which had been brought under control by the family before the firemen arrived and at 11 a. m. today the firemen fought a brush fire at Flatbush in the woods back of the Edward Acker place along Route 32. Indian pumps and other equipment was used, Chief Costello reported.

Agency Is Chosen

Albany, April 11 (AP)—Commerce Commissioner Edward T. Dickinson today announced the appointment of Kelly, Nason Inc. of New York city as the advertising agency for the Commerce Department. The appointment is effective immediately. A department spokesman said the agency would be paid on a commission basis—15 per cent of the fee for publication space for radio and television time, to be paid by the media. The New York firm of Batten, Barton, Dustine & Osborn previously had resigned the account.

Auxiliary Police to Meet

Auxiliary Police will meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the City Court room. Boyd Miller, chief of Radiological Service of Civil Defense will be the guest speaker.

Esopus Man Is Charged After His RemovalFromCar

Patrolman John Crespino removed Joseph Reilly, 48, of Esopus, from a car which had caught fire at Hasbrouck avenue and East Strand this morning and arrested him on a public intoxication charge.

The officer was treated at Kingston Hospital for an injury of the finger, which he suffered in getting the man from the car.

Firemen were notified at 10:21 a. m. The blaze was reported confined to the motor of the car. Reilly was confined to the county jail pending hearing Tuesday before City Judge Raymond J. Mino and the car was towed to a garage.

AT ABOUT 10 a. m., firemen were called by an alarm from Box 3221, School No. 2, for a grass fire off West Chestnut street, and another call at 10:52 a. m., was for another grass fire near 142 Hooker street.

A call at 8:05 p. m., Saturday was for a fire in the car of Dr. William Dean, 45 West Chestnut street, near Wiltwyck fire station. Fire men said the blaze was caused by a short circuit in a cigarette lighter.

A call at 10:20 a. m., Sunday was for a grass fire near the intersection of Cornell street and Tremper avenue. Central station and Wicks Engine Company responded.

Torres Family Named Legatees

New York, April 11 (Special)—Mrs. Gladys K. Torres of Woodstock, and her four children are legatees in the estate of Mrs. Torres' uncle, the late George H. Keim, New York executive, under the terms of the will, filed for probate in Surrogate's Court here last week.

The estate has not yet been appraised but is declared formally to be worth "more than $100,000."

Mrs. Torres receives $2,500 plus personal property. Her children, Lola, August Jr., Jonquil, and Albertina, eventually inherit one-sixth each of a lifetime trust fund left to Mr. Keim's son, John Howard Keim of New York.

Other relatives, friends and employes also share in the estate.

Mr. Keim, who lived at 1109 Madison avenue here, died last March 21 at the age of 94. He was the retired head of the Glenhill Wall Paper Company. He was secretary to the director of the National Wall Paper Company before he established his own firm.

World News in Brief

Would Meet Premier

Tokyo, April 11 (AP)—Prime Minister Ichiro Matoyama said today he would like to meet Premier Chou En-lai of Communist China to discuss world problems.

He also said he would like to meet with Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India for the same purpose, but did not know how such meetings could be arranged. He was answering questions before the upper house foreign affairs committee of the Japanese Diet.

Pope Gives Warning

Vatican City, April 11 (AP)—Giving his annual blessing to one of the biggest throngs in Vatican history, Pope Pius XII yesterday endorsed progressive disarmament and peaceful use of atomic energy.

The 79-year-old pontiff also warned against the still unknown effect on human reproductivity of radioactivity from nuclear explosions.

Will Defend UN

Bangkok, Thailand, April 11 (AP)—Premier P. Pibulsonggram announced today that Thailand's delegation is going to the African-Asian conference next week with orders to defend the UN charter and the SEATO alliance as the "best existing instruments for peace and prevention of war."

Would Create Court

Washington, April 11 (AP) — Creation of a new U. S. administrative court to take over from executive agencies final decisions in tax cases, unfair labor activities and unfair trade practices was recommended yesterday by the Hoover Commission.

The proposed new court would assume tax jurisdiction from the U. S. Tax Court, take on adjudication of cases involving unfair labor practices from the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) and assume trade regulation functions of the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) and various other agencies.

Hearings Started

Washington, April 11 (AP) — The Supreme Court today begins hearing a variety of suggestions on how to end segregation of white and negro pupils in public schools.

The court unanimously ruled last May 17 that such segregation violates the Constitution. The court set aside this full week to hear arguments on when and how to order the decision into effect, although only about three days may be required. The final decree is expected later this spring, but it could be delayed further.

Plane Is Overdue

Hong Kong, April 12 (AP)—The Air India Airline reported tonight one of its planes, chartered to carry Chinese Communist delegates to the Bandung conference, has disappeared over the South China Sea.

The plane left Hong Kong today and was overdue at Kuching, Sarawak. Peter Mahta, Air India manager here, said the Constellation sent out three distress signals, and nothing had been heard since.

Stassen Talks Off

Washington, April 11 (AP) — Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.) announced today a 24 hours postponement of talks with Harold E. Stassen on the issue of how far Congress may go in investigating the Foreign Operations Administration (FOA) which Stassen heads.

McClellan, chairman of the Senate Investigations Subcommittee, said he and Stassen were unable to find a mutually convenient hour to meet before 9:30 a. m. tomorrow, so they rescheduled the parley for that time.

81-Year-Old Woman Slain in Apartment

New York, April 11 (AP)—An 81-year-old woman was slain sometime over the Easter weekend in her Greenwich Village apartment.

The woman, Edna Hume, died of "asphyxia by gagging," a medical examiner reported yesterday. Her jaw had been broken several times and there were bruises on her face and shoulder.

Her body was discovered by a neighbor. It was stretched out on a bed, face upward and nude except for shoes and stockings. A pocket book containing a little money was untouched.

Neighbors, who reported hearing no unusual noises during the night, said the woman was in the habit of leaving her door unlocked. She lived alone in a third-floor, 1½-room apartment at 35 W. 11th street and was known as "Mousie."

Local Game Club Banquet Tuesday

Saugerties, April 11—The 71st annual banquet of the Saugerties Fish and Game Club will be held on Tuesday at Schoentag's Restaurant on Route 9W at Glasco.

A full course turkey dinner will be served at 7 p. m. sharp and following the dinner a program of interest to outdoorsmen will be presented.

A highlight of the program will be a sound-color film showing of a moose trip in Alaska.

Theft Is Reported

The theft of miscellaneous tools, a fishing reel and two rowboats from a river house along the Hudson at Ulster Park was reported to the sheriff's office at 3 p. m., Sunday, by Mrs. Harriet C. Freer, owner. Entry was made by breaking a padlock on the front door of the building, Mrs. Freer said. The burglary may have occurred any time within the past two weeks, as no one had gone to the building in that time, according to the report.

Hit With Hatchet, Declares Hughes

Police said at 1:30 p. m., today they were investigating the report at Kingston Hospital of Aaron Hughes, 32, of Box 212, East Kingston, who claims he had been struck with a hatchet by a man on East Union street.

Police headquarters was notified at 11:49 a. m., that a man was apparently injured near 18 East Union street. Officers James Burns and Thomas McGrane investigated and reported that the man had been taken to the hospital in a taxi.

Hughes told police that he had been struck with a hatchet "two or three times," and cuts were inflicted on the side of his head. He claimed that the wielder of the hatchet is known as "Highpockets."

The hospital reported the condition of Hughes as "apparently good."

Treated for Injuries

John Webb, age not listed, of New Paltz, was treated for a possible fracture of the right collarbone and other injuries received in an automobile accident on Route 299 a half-mile west of the Thruway interchange at New Paltz about 11 a. m. Sunday, state police reported. Troopers said Webb was a passenger in an automobile driven by William McSwain, 32, of RD 1, New Paltz. McSwain told troopers he was cut off by an unknown vehicle and forced off the north shoulder of the highway, striking a mailbox and a sign.

Easter Sunday One of Warmest

Sunday, one of the warmest Easters in recent years, brought a local temperature of 79 degrees in the afternoon, but that was not a record for April 10 by records of the city engineer's office.

That temperature was equalled on April 10, 1945, and that same year, this date, brought a high of 80 degrees. This could be equalled before the end of this day, however, since the mercury reached 71 at 10:30 a. m.

Weather Roundup

New York, April 11 (AP)—High and low temperatures in 8 U. S. cities for the 24 hours ended at 7:30 a. m. today were:

New York City	77	59
Boston	77	55
Denver	68	39
El Paso	78	54
Kansas City	74	53
Los Angeles	75	58
Miami	78	72

Austria Seeks

said in a speech to the Supreme Soviet (Parliament) on Feb. 8 that Moscow no longer insisted on linking the Austrian treaty to the German problem, and since then the two countries have been exploring ways and means of getting the treaty signed.

The Russians said, however, they would insist upon ironclad guarantees that Austria never be unified with Germany, that no foreign military bases be established on Austrian soil and that the country never join an alliance against any country which fought Hitler.

ONE OF THE chief aims of Raab's visit is to try to find out what the Soviet government would consider suitable guarantees against an Austrian union with Germany. The talks are expected to continue about four days.

Raab is accompanied by Deputy Chancellor Adolf Schaerf, Foreign Minister Leopold Figl and Deputy Foreign Minister Bruno Kreisky.

Raab has promised his pro-western government not to make any secret agreements with the Russians. He said before leaving Vienna: "If these talks give the possibility for new and this time successful negotiations between the four powers, then the purpose of our trip will be fulfilled."

MOLOTOV unexpectedly indicated over the weekend that it may be possible for the big four to reach agreement on Austria soon. In a note to the three western powers, he said further delay in reaching such agreement is "unjustified."

The West Germans in ratifying the Paris agreements for their rearmament resisted previous Soviet offers of reunification in exchange for neutrality. But such a concrete demonstration as the actual withdrawal of Russian troops from neighboring Austria could prove a powerful argument to the Germans.

RAAB'S VISIT also may give a clue to the future of Big Four negotiations. The West has proposed a meeting of the Big Four ambassadors in Vienna if the Russians give Raab a clear promise of Austria freedom.

Raab and the west have made it clear to the Russians that Austria will not permit any limitation of her full sovereignty.

Austria has said she will promise to keep out of any military alliances, but made clear she wants the right to pursue a pro-western political and economic course.

The Austrians also have made plain they will not agree to the Soviets having the right to revive their occupation should the Kremlin disapprove of future policies of the Vienna government.

Violence Flares

a metal one. No injuries or arrests were reported.

At Birmingham, Ala., 15 persons were arrested as police broke up a noisy crowd. Police Commissioner Robert Lindbergh charged the walkout had developed into an "explosive situation" and said gatherings of large crowds "can't be tolerated."

Police Chief G. L. Pattie said acid was squirted into the eyes of Officer E. S. Elam. He was taken to a hospital where attendants said the acid appeared to be some kind of paint thinner and apparently had not permanently harmed his eyes.

SOUTHERN BELL reported that the Middlesboro, Ky., exchange was forced to close, leaving the town of 15,000 without phone service. It was the fourth exchange to shut down because of threatened violence since the trouble began. Others were shut earlier at La Follette, Jellico and Maryville, Tenn.

The Atlanta area experienced a rash of cable cuttings, bringing to 140 the number of such incidents reported in the area since the start of the walkout.

Aruba Returning Cargo

Istanbul, Turkey, April 11 (AP)—The Finnish tanker Aruba, which turned back en route to Red China with jet fuel, passed through the Turkish Straits yesterday. She is returning her controversial cargo to Romania. The Aruba turned around after her Finnish crew refused to sail into "dangerous waters" beyond Singapore. The voyage had touched off strong protests from U. S. Congressmen and threats from the Chinese Nationalists to intercept the vessel.

Bowling Green Has $750,000 Blaze

Bowling Green, Va., April 11 (AP)—The business life of this northern Virginia town was paralyzed today as the result of a $750,000 fire that proved to be a tragic replay of history.

Only 6 of 26 buildings remained after a four hour blaze that engulfed the Bowling Green business district on a warm, windy Easter afternoon.

The flames started in a hayloft of a barn behind a row of business houses—and occurred 55 years to the day after a fire that nearly wiped out the community, located some 30 miles north of Richmond.

The outbreak in 1900, centered in the same area of this town of 700.

THE TOLL in yesterday's fire included two restaurants, a 10-cent store, two drug stores, a clothing store, a hardware store, two barber shops, two electrical appliance places, a grocery, two shoe shops and a garage. A Red Cross office and a Masonic Hall burned, too.

Eight families who had apartments atop some of the business houses were left homeless. Two persons suffered minor injuries.

Several persons told of seeing two or three small boys run out of the barn moments before the flames were spotted. The 1900 blaze began when someone tripped over a lamp.

Record Crowds

joy the spectacle and to bask in the warm sunshine.

THE TWO HAPPIEST participants in the egg hunt were Baron Slater, 4, who won a white rabbit in the junior contest when he recovered 15 eggs to win first prize and Alfred Bechtold, 11, who found 18 eggs to win the white rabbit in the older class. In addition $10 in silver dollars was awarded to other contestants who found foil wrapped eggs. The rabbits were donated by Herman Nast of King's Highway, and the eggs were donated by the Junior Chamber of Commerce and Roberts Motor Express.

Chester Diffley was chairman of the Jay-Cees committee on arrangements and he was assisted by Ernest Rowe and other members of the organization.

LOCALLY, the day opened with an Easter dawn service at Dietz Memorial Stadium where a big outdoor service sponsored by the Kingston Ministerial Association, under the direction of the Rev. Donald E. Brown, was held. At this service the Rev. Theron Chastain, PhD., executive secretary of the American Baptist Home Mission Society, was the speaker. Other dawn services were held in churches with the traditional Easter breakfast following the service.

In most churches there was special music and church altars were lovely with Bermuda lilies, commonly known as Easter lilies, while the pastors delivered special Easter sermons to mark one of the most important days in Christendom.

Esopus Man Is Charged After His RemovalFromCar

Patrolman John Crespino removed Joseph Reilly, 48, of Esopus, from a car which had caught fire at Hasbrouck avenue and East Strand this morning and arrested him on a public intoxication charge.

The officer was treated at Kingston Hospital for an injury of the finger, which he suffered in getting the man from the car.

Firemen were notified at 10:21 a. m. The blaze was reported confined to the motor of the car. Reilly was confined to the county jail pending hearing Tuesday before City Judge Raymond J. Mino and the car was towed to a garage.

AT ABOUT 10 a. m., firemen were called by an alarm from Box 3221, School No. 2, for a grass fire off West Chestnut street, and another call at 10:52 a. m., was for another grass fire near 142 Hooker street.

A call at 8:05 p. m., Saturday was for a fire in the car of Dr. William Dean, 45 West Chestnut street, near Wiltwyck fire station. Fire men said the blaze was caused by a short circuit in a cigarette lighter.

A call at 10:20 a. m., Sunday was for a grass fire near the intersection of Cornell street and Tremper avenue. Central station and Wicks Engine Company responded.

Torres Family Named Legatees

New York, April 11 (Special) —Mrs. Gladys K. Torres of Woodstock, and her four children are legatees in the estate of Mrs. Torres' uncle, the late George H. Keim, New York executive, under the terms of the will, filed for probate in Surrogate's Court here last week.

The estate has not yet been appraised but is declared formally to be worth "more than $100,000."

Mrs. Torres receives $2,500 plus personal property. Her children, Lola, August Jr., Jonquil, and Albertina, eventually inherit one-sixth each of a lifetime trust fund left to Mr. Keim's son, John Howard Keim of New York.

Other relatives, friends and employes also share in the estate.

Mr. Keim, who lived at 1109 Madison avenue here, died last March 21 at the age of 94. He was the retired head of the Glenhill Wall Paper Company. He was secretary to the director of the National Wall Paper Company before he established his own firm.

C of C Will Meet On Tuesday Night

Budgets, membership campaign and annual membership meeting will be the principal items of business before the regular April meeting of the board of directors of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce Tuesday night. In making this announcement today President J. Ellis Briggs urged a full attendance because of the importance of the meeting.

A proposed budget will be presented by the executive committee. George Silkworth, chairman of the membership committee, will present a proposed outline for the 1955 campaign and suggested plans for the annual April membership business meeting will also be presented by the executive committee.

The directors meeting takes place the second Tuesday of each month at 7:30 p. m. in the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Faure in Favor Of Conference

Washington, April 11 (AP)—Premier Edgar Faure of France says he favors a conference "as soon as possible" between the western Big Three and Russia.

Expressing hope that some such session involving the foreign ministers of France, Britain, the United States and Russia can be held by July, Faure said in a copyrighted interview with the magazine U. S. News and World Report that he believes the four heads of state should also get together.

"If we want to achieve results," he said, "we must undoubtedly one day come to a four-power meeting at the highest level."

FAURE WAS interviewed in Paris by a magizine staff member, and the interview was published today.

Asked whether he thinks a real settlement of cold war tensions is possible, or whether new talks can only continue a stalemate, Faure replied: "I think a true settlement is possible."

Ellenville Area

in charge at Central Station when the malicious false alarm was received, reported the incident to the Ulster county Sheriff's department.

Among other calls received through Mutual Aid headquarters included two for brush fires in Old Hurley within four minutes of each other. The first call, at 12:39 p. m. Sunday, was for a brush fire on Hillcrest avenue. This was followed at 12:43 p. m. for a brush fire at the end of Terrace Lane on the hill adpoining the James E. Anner residence. As the first fire was slight, firemen were able to extinguish it before proceeding to the second fire.

Fires in the hard-hit Ellenville area, in addition to the Mt. Meenahga conflagration, included smaller ones at Oak Ridge, Granite, and two at Walker Valley. All were out this morning, state police reported.

THE RUN-DOWN of Mutual Aid calls received Saturday afternoon and Sunday:

Saturday—12:01 p. m., West Hurley reported out to grass fire near John D. Groves residence, Woodstock assigned to cover; 1:10 p. m., Sawkill reported out to brush fire in village, Ruby assigned to cover Sawkill; 1:22 p. m., call for brush fire on Sawkill road, Ruby dispatched and Mt. Marion department assigned to cover the territory. Mt. Marion tank truck also went to fire; 1:55 p. m., Binnewater department at brush fire, Rosendale assigned to cover Binnewater.

Sunday—9:20 a. m., Rifton dispatched to fire in rear of Black Swan Inn; 10:37 a. m. Ellenville department reported it went to assist at brush fire in Walker Valley; 12:57 a. m., Rosendale reported brush fire; 12:34 p. m., brush fire on Hillcrest avenue, Hurley; 12:43 p. m., brush fire on Terrace Lane, Hurley; 1:47 p. m., brush fire at Kripplebush; 2:03 p. m., Binnewater department reported on way to fire; 2:06 p. m., Bloomington department on way to a fire; 3:18 p. m., Accord department out to brush fire.

Grass and Brush Fires

The East Kingston fire department was summoned out to fight two grass and brush fires over the weekend. On Sunday at 2:35 p. m., there was a brush fire at Ulster Landing on the Arthur Logesen place which had been brought under control by the family before the firemen arrived and at 11 a. m. today the firemen fought a brush fire at Flatbush in the woods back of the Edward Acker place along Route 32. Indian pumps and other equipment was used, Chief Costello reported.

Agency Is Chosen

Albany, April 11 (AP)—Commerce Commissioner Edward T. Dickinson today announced the appointment of Kelly, Nason Inc. of New York city as the advertising agency for the Commerce Department. The appointment is effective immediately. A department spokesman said the agency would be paid on a commission basis—15 per cent of the fee for publication space for radio and television time, to be paid by the media. The New York firm of Batten, Barton, Dustine & Osborn previously had resigned the account.

Auxiliary Police to Meet

Auxiliary Police will meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the City Court room. Boyd Miller, chief of Radiological Service of Civil Defense will be the guest speaker.

World News in Brief

Would Meet Premier

Tokyo, April 11 (AP)—Prime Minister Ichiro Matoyama said today he would like to meet Premier Chou En-lai of Communist China to discuss world problems.

He also said he would like to meet with Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India for the same purpose, but did not know how such meetings could be arranged. He was answering questions before the upper house foreign affairs committee of the Japanese Diet.

Pope Gives Warning

Vatican City, April 11 (AP)—Giving his annual blessing to one of the biggest throngs in Vatican history, Pope Pius XII yesterday endorsed progressive disarmament and peaceful use of atomic energy.

The 79-year-old pontiff also warned against the still unknown effect on human reproductivity of radioactivity from nuclear explosions.

Will Defend UN

Bangkok, Thailand, April 11 (AP)—Premier P. Pibulsonggram announced today that Thailand's delegation is going to the African-Asian conference next week with orders to defend the UN charter and the SEATO alliance as the "best existing instruments for peace and prevention of war."

Would Create Court

Washington, April 11 (AP) — Creation of a new U. S. administrative court to take over from executive agencies final decisions in tax cases, unfair labor activities and unfair trade practices was recommended yesterday by the Hoover Commission.

The proposed new court would assume tax jurisdiction from the U. S. Tax Court, take on adjudication of cases involving unfair labor practices from the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) and assume trade regulation functions of the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) and various other agencies.

Hearings Started

Washington, April 11 (AP) — The Supreme Court today begins hearing a variety of suggestions on how to end segregation of white and negro pupils in public schools.

The court unanimously ruled last May 17 that such segregation violates the Constitution. The court set aside this full week to hear arguments on when and how to order the decision into effect, although only about three days may be required. The final decree is expected later this spring, but it could be delayed further.

Plane Is Overdue

Hong Kong, April 12 (AP)—The Air India Airline reported tonight one of its planes, chartered to carry Chinese Communist delegates to the Bandung conference, has disappeared over the South China Sea.

The plane left Hong Kong today and was overdue at Kuching, Sarawak. Peter Mahta, Air India manager here, said the Constellation sent out three distress signals, and nothing had been heard since.

Stassen Talks Off

Washington, April 11 (AP) — Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.) announced today a 24 hours postponement of talks with Harold E. Stassen on the issue of how far Congress may go in investigating the Foreign Operations Administration (FOA) which Stassen heads.

McClellan, chairman of the Senate Investigations Subcommittee, said he and Stassen were unable to find a mutually convenient hour to meet before 9:30 a. m. tomorrow, so they rescheduled the parley for that time.

81-Year-Old Woman Slain in Apartment

New York, April 11 (AP)—An 81-year-old woman was slain sometime over the Easter weekend in her Greenwich Village apartment.

The woman, Edna Hume, died of "asphyxia by gagging," a medical examiner reported yesterday. Her jaw had been broken several times and there were bruises on her face and shoulder.

Her body was discovered by a neighbor. It was stretched out on a bed, face upward and nude except for shoes and stockings. A pocket book containing a little money was untouched.

Neighbors, who reported hearing no unusual noises during the night, said the woman was in the habit of leaving her door unlocked. She lived alone in a third-floor, 1½-room apartment at 35 W. 11th street and was known as "Mousie."

Local Game Club Banquet Tuesday

Saugerties, April 11—The 71st annual banquet of the Saugerties Fish and Game Club will be held on Tuesday at Schoentag's Restaurant on Route 9W at Glasco.

A full course turkey dinner will be served at 7 p. m. sharp and following the dinner a program of interest to outdoorsmen will be presented.

A highlight of the program will be a sound-color film showing of a moose trip in Alaska.

Ronald Johnstone and Austin Simmons are co-chairmen for the affair.

Theft Is Reported

The theft of miscellaneous tools, a fishing reel and two rowboats from a river house along the Hudson at Ulster Park was reported to the sheriff's office at 3 p. m., Sunday, by Mrs. Harriet C. Freer, owner. Entry was made by breaking a padlock on the front door of the building, Mrs. Freer said. The burglary may have occurred any time within the past two weeks, as no one had gone to the building in that time, according to the report.

Hit With Hatchet, Declares Hughes

Police said at 1:30 p. m., today they were investigating the report at Kingston Hospital of Aaron Hughes, 32, of Box 212, East Kingston, who claims he had been struck with a hatchet by a man on East Union street.

Police headquarters was notified at 11:49 a. m., that a man was apparently injured near 18 East Union street. Officers James Burns and Thomas McGrane investigated and reported that the man had been taken to the hospital in a taxi.

Hughes told police that he had been struck with a hatchet "two or three times," and cuts were inflicted on the side of his head. He claimed that the wielder of the hatchet is known as "Highpockets."

The hospital reported the condition of Hughes as "apparently good."

Treated for Injuries

John Webb, age not listed, of New Paltz, was treated for a possible fracture of the right collarbone and other injuries received in an automobile accident on Route 299 a half-mile west of the Thruway interchange at New Paltz about 11 a. m. Sunday, state police reported. Troopers said Webb was a passenger in an automobile driven by William McSwain, 32, of RD 1, New Paltz. McSwain told troopers he was cut off by an unknown vehicle and forced off the north shoulder of the highway, striking a mailbox and a sign.

Easter Sunday One of Warmest

Sunday, one of the warmest Easters in recent years, brought a local temperature of 79 degrees in the afternoon, but that was not a record for April 10 by records of the city engineer's office.

That temperature was equalled on April 10, 1945, and that same year, this date, brought a high of 80 degrees. This could be equalled before the end of this day, however, since the mercury reached 71 at 10:30 a. m.

Weather Roundup

New York, April 11 (AP)—High and low temperatures in 8 U. S. cities for the 24 hours ended at 7:30 a. m. today were:

New York City	77	59
Boston	77	55
Denver	68	39
El Paso	78	54
Kansas City	74	52

Austria Seeks

said in a speech to the Supreme Soviet (Parliament) on Feb. 8 that Moscow no longer insisted on linking the Austrian treaty to the German problem, and since then the two countries have been exploring ways and means of getting the treaty signed.

The Russians said, however, they would insist upon ironclad guarantees that Austria never be unified with Germany, that no foreign military bases be established on Austrian soil and that the country never join an alliance against any country which fought Hitler.

ONE OF THE chief aims of Raab's visit is to try to find out what the Soviet government would consider suitable guarantees against an Austrian union with Germany. The talks are expected to continue about four days.

Raab is accompanied by Deputy Chancellor Adolf Schaerf, Foreign Minister Leopold Figl and Deputy Foreign Minister Bruno Kreisky.

Raab has promised his pro-western government not to make any secret agreements with the Russians. He said before leaving Vienna: "If these talks give the possibility for new and this time successful negotiations between the four powers, then the purpose of our trip will be fulfilled."

MOLOTOV unexpectedly indicated over the weekend that it may be possible for the big four to reach agreement on Austria soon. In a note to the three western powers, he said further delay in reaching such agreement is "unjustified."

The West Germans in ratifying the Paris agreements for their rearmament resisted previous Soviet offers of reunification in exchange for neutrality. But such a concrete demonstration as the actual withdrawal of Russian troops from neighboring Austria could prove a powerful argument to the Germans.

RAAB'S VISIT also may give a clue to the future of Big Four negotiations. The West has proposed a meeting of the Big Four ambassadors in Vienna if the Russians give Raab a clear promise of Austria freedom.

Raab and the west have made it clear to the Russians that Austria will not permit any limitation of her full sovereignty.

Austria has said she will promise to keep out of any military alliances, but made clear she wants the right to pursue a pro-western political and economic course.

The Austrians also have made plain they will not agree to the Soviets having the right to revive their occupation should the Kremlin disapprove of future policies of the Vienna government.

Violence Flares

a metal one. No injuries or arrests were reported.

At Birmingham, Ala., 15 persons were arrested as police broke up a noisy crowd. Police Commissioner Robert Lindbergh charged the walkout had developed into an "explosive situation" and said gatherings of large crowds "can't be tolerated."

Police Chief G. L. Pattie said acid was squirted into the eyes of Officer E. S. Elam. He was taken to a hospital where attendants said the acid appeared to be some kind of paint thinner and apparently had not permanently harmed his eyes.

SOUTHERN BELL reported that the Middlesboro, Ky., exchange was forced to close, leaving the town of 15,000 without phone service. It was the fourth exchange to shut down because of threatened violence since the trouble began. Others were shut earlier at La Follette, Jellico and Maryville, Tenn.

The Atlanta area experienced a rash of cable cuttings, bringing to 140 the number of such incidents reported in the area since the start of the walkout.

Aruba Returning Cargo

Istanbul, Turkey, April 11 (AP) —The Finnish tanker Aruba, which turned back en route to Red China with jet fuel, passed through the Turkish Straits yesterday. She is returning her controversial cargo to Romania. The Aruba turned around after her Finnish crew refused to sail into "dangerous waters" beyond Singapore. The voyage had touched off strong protests from U. S. Congressmen and threats from the Chinese Nationalists to intercept the vessel.

Bowling Green Has $750,000 Blaze

Bowling Green, Va., April 11 (AP)—The business life of this northern Virginia town was paralyzed today as the result of a $750,000 fire that proved to be a tragic replay of history.

Only 6 of 26 buildings remained after a four hour blaze that engulfed the Bowling Green business district on a warm, windy Easter afternoon.

The flames started in a hayloft of a barn behind a row of business houses—and occurred 55 years to the day after a fire that nearly wiped out the community, located some 30 miles north of Richmond.

The outbreak in 1900, centered in the same area of this town of 700.

THE TOLL in yesterday's fire included two restaurants, a 10-cent store, two drug stores, a clothing store, a hardware store, two barber shops, two electrical appliance places, a grocery, two shoe shops and a garage. A Red Cross office and a Masonic Hall burned, too.

Eight families who had apartments atop some of the business houses were left homeless. Two persons suffered minor injuries.

Several persons told of seeing two or three small boys run out of the barn moments before the flames were spotted. The 1900 blaze began when someone tripped over a lamp.

THE TWO HAPPIEST participants in the egg hunt were Baron Slater, 4, who won a white rabbit in the junior contest when he recovered 15 eggs to win first prize and Alfred Bechtold, 11, who found 18 eggs to win the white rabbit in the older class. In addition $10 in silver dollars was awarded to other contestants who found foil wrapped eggs. The rabbits were donated by Herman Nast of King's Highway, and the eggs were donated by the Junior Chamber of Commerce and Roberts Motor Express.

Chester Diffley was chairman of the Jay-Cees committee on arrangements and he was assisted by Ernest Rowe and other members of the organization.

LOCALLY, the day opened with an Easter dawn service at Dietz Memorial Stadium where a big outdoor service sponsored by the Kingston Ministerial Association, under the direction of the Rev. Donald E. Brown, was held. At this service the Rev. Theron Chastain, PhD., executive secretary of the American Baptist Home Mission Society, was the speaker. Other dawn services were held in churches with the traditional Easter breakfast following the service.

In most churches there was special music and church altars were lovely with Bermuda lilies, commonly known as Easter lilies, while the pastors delivered special Easter sermons to mark one of the most important days in Christendom.

Metal Price Rise May Be Barometer Acting in Reverse

New York, April 11 (AP)—The rise in metal prices when many other commodity prices are weak has businessmen wondering today if metals are pointing to another fling at inflation.

Or are they acting, as they so often have in the past, as a barometer — in reverse? Frequently the metal price pointer has swung around to "fair" about the time that the rain started in other parts of the economy.

Usually metal prices are the laggards. Inflation appeared in the prices of other commodities first. The metals followed belatedly. Often they have taken their biggest spurt after other prices turned soft. And historically, metal prices have held on and been the last to turn down in periods of deflation.

PRICES OF farm products, on the other hand, often are quick to change when the economic weather changes — and sometimes forecast it.

In the futures markets, where men contract to buy or sell commodities five or more months from today, prices of most commodities have taken sharp dips in recent weeks. But spot prices —what is paid for immediate delivery—remained pretty firm in March, after dropping in February.

This indicates that traders expect the price picture to change. They are betting that prices will be considerably lower in five months or so.

But copper is an exception. The price for future delivery of the metal is higher in most cases than the going price in the spot market.

Metal producers can point to special reasons why prices of their products have risen of late.

DEMAND HAS improved. Auto makers and other durable goods manufacturers have stepped up production of products made of metal. The European industrial boom went merrily along while the United States was having its mild recession. This made a big market for metals abroad.

Copper supplies have been short because of strikes here and in Chile and Africa. Aluminum supplies have been tight because of heavy demand from defense factories, such as aircraft, as well as from the makers of civilian goods.

The government has been a big customer for many metals which it is stockpiling for military defense purposes. In the case of zinc and lead stockpile buying was used to strengthen prices last year. In the case of copper and aluminum, where supplies are already tight, the government purchasing agents become competitors of the buyers for the civilian industries.

RECENT PRICE changes in the four metals, however, have been due to civilian demand. Auto makers have been using zinc for die casting and steel producers have been buying it to galvanize their product. Stocks of the metal dwindled fast. And the price of zinc went up ½ cent a pound last week to 12 cents.

THE COPPER PRICE here has gone up 6 cents a pound since the first of the year. At 36 cents it is still cheaper than the London price. To aid users of copper here the government has diverted some copper from defense plant stocks, suspended deliveries to its stockpile for two months to let the metal go instead to the fabricators, and put strict controls on exports.

Users of copper and aluminum have asked the government also to let them get supplies from the defense stockpile, but federal law requires that any metal released from the government's hoard could be used only in defense work.

In the metal trades they are expecting supplies to stay tight well into the summer. And as long as industrial production in general keeps up its fast pace, prices of metals may stay high for some time to come. But many observers doubt if price strength in metals will rub off onto other commodities.

UN Charges Israel, Egypt as Violators

Jerusalem, April 11 (AP)—The UN mixed armistice commission has charged both Israel and Egypt with truce violations in a recent border clash along the troubled Gaza strip that left 2 soldiers dead and 12 wounded on each side.

A communique, issued yesterday after an emergency meeting of the commission on the April 3 shooting at Nahal Oz, also contained a plea by UN truce chief Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns of Canada. Burns called on both sides to keep "firm control" over their armed forces on the Gaza strip, scene of a series of bloody outbreaks recently.

Greek Repatriates Are Problem Economically and as Red Spies

(Editor's note: The cold war is the stage of a modern Greek tragedy. Communist nations have been pumping Red propaganda for seven years into about 28,000 Greek children abducted during the Greek Civil War. Now the Reds are suddenly eager to return the hostages. Why? William L. Ryan has sought the answer in a survey of political, economic and military implications on the spot. This is the first of three dispatches.)

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

Kastoria, Greece, April 11 (AP)—A special train from Communist Bulgaria screeched to a halt on the Greek side of the frontier. A Greek in his early 20s leaped from the train and, falling to his knees, kissed the Greek earth he had not seen for seven years.

The young man wept as he proclaimed his joy at deliverance. He had been one of about 28,000 Greek children abducted by the Communists, along with thousands of adults, during the Greek Civil War of 1947-49.

TWO WEEKS after his repatriation, Greek security police arrested this same young man. He was, they said, a trained Communist spy.

The young man was more than that. He was an example of how communism sets about to capture a generation. He was part of a compounded tragedy which has become a major problem for Greece and a matter of concern for Greece's friends, including the United States.

This area, within sight of the towering wild mountains—which mark the border of Communist Albania, was one of the hardest hit by a crime which shocked the civilized world—the wholesale kidnaping of Greek children.

NOW THE Communists seem suddenly eager to return thousands of those forced across the border and possibly some of the many who went willingly as the families of Red guerrilla fighters.

Many Greeks are asking—why? Why, at this moment, after all these years and all the futile pleas of Greece before world opinion?

For humane reasons, the Greeks want their people back. But there are misgivings. A sudden flood of repatriates raises serious economic difficulties in the villages. It raises political problems, too, because the children forcibly abducted have reached their late teens and early 20s after seven years of the most rigorous Communist indoctrination, forced estrangement from their parents, isolation from any free world influence.

AND GREEKS ask: Are the Communists preparing a time-bomb for Greece?

Communists of the Soviet satellite nations, through the International Red Cross, agreed last year to return some of the Greeks. Up to now, 3,700 have been repatriated in this way, but:

Of the 3,700 repatriates, 60 per cent are women, about 1,300 are over 60 and an equal number are children, most of them born across the border. Only 1,100 are in the 20-to-60 age group. Those coming back at the moment include many who will be burdens to their communities. Attached to their return is a condition that they must go to the villages or areas of their origin.

EVEN THESE few created problems for Greece. The Communists seemed fully aware of that. Poland suddenly offered to repatriate 6,000 in the dead of winter, when it would be most difficult to accommodate them. The number was too great for the Greeks to handle in one batch. They asked that it be scaled down to 2,500 and the time advanced to spring.

There is now a strong rumor that the Communist replied with an offer raising the number to 11,000, to be moved in a single batch at once. It seemed an effort to embarrass the Greeks. Security screening alone is a long and arduous task, taxing Greek facilities to the utmost.

THERE MIGHT not be dangerous elements among the first batches. Repatriates here angrily deny that any of their number has any use for communism. But Greek officials are frankly worried about those to come—the children schooled for seven years in a Communist vacuum.

Interrogation has shown that many of the children, grown to adulthood in isolation from their parents, have undergone the most thorough of indoctrination courses. Many had special treatment in special schools under the guidance of the Greek Communist party, now based largely abroad in the satellite countries. They had better treatment in many cases than did the children of the native Romanians, Poles, Hungarians or Czechs.

IN ROMANIA, a big Bucharest building and two big villas were set aside for Greek children. They were kept to themselves under Greek Communist teachers. Village children from birth, in a hard mountain country, they had never seen a large European city. Budapest, Prague and Bucharest were proud old cities long before the Communists came along. Children would be impressed.

Security officials say many who left Greece as children now are indoctrinated Communists who would represent a new and serious nucleus for the outlawed Greek Communist party.

There was an illustration:

Furtively, two teen-age boys agreed to slash their fingers.

They smeared the spurting blood on letters they were writing to their parents, still captive in a Communist country. The boys, long separated from their parents, had recently been repatriated from Romania.

On the blood-smeared sheets of paper they wrote: "This will show you how the Monarcho-Fascists torture those who return here."

THEY WROTE that they were cruelly beaten in Greece and that the blood showed it.

Since the boys, among the relative few who could be placed in a school for rehabilitation, were under observation at the time, the letter was read and stopped.

This story was told to me by a representative of the Queen's Fund, a charitable organization now devoting much of its considerable energy to the problem of the repatriated children.

Greece is salvaging some of them. But it is a slow and painful process.

Baptists Invited By Russians on Preaching Mission

Philadelphia, April 11 (AP)—A Russian church group has invited four Baptist clergymen, three of them Americans, to visit the Soviet Union on a preaching mission this summer.

The Rev. Dr. V. Carney Hargroves, president of the American Baptist convention, said Friday night that he had received such a bid from the Russian All Union Council of Evangelical Christian Baptists.

Similar invitations, Dr. Hargroves said, went to Dr. Arnold Ohrn, of Norway, secretary of the Baptist World Alliance; Dr. Joseph Jackson, Chicago, president of the National Baptist Convention, Inc., and Dr. Theodore Adams, pastor of the First Baptist Church at Richmond, Va., an official of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Dr. Hargroves, pastor of the Second Baptist Church in Germantown here, said a final decision on the invitation will not be made for about two weeks. The American Baptist convention which he heads is an organization of some 6,000 churches in the United States with 1,600,000 constituents.

Dr. Hargroves said he believes the invitations resulted from a religious conference in Sweden last summer, attended by the four clergymen involved in the invitations as well as church leaders from Russia and England.

Drugs Announced To Control Gland Trouble in Men

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Reporter)

Seattle, Wash., April 11 (AP)—Safe drugs to control the most common glandular trouble in men are promised by research announced Saturday by the University of Washington scientists.

They are drugs to shrink the prostate gland. This gland almost always enlarges after middle age, often causing pain, often necessitating surgical removal. Men aged 50 to 60 run a 50-50 chance of needing this operation.

Four shrinkage drugs have been found, and one or more will soon be tested on humans, Dr. Donald F. McDonald, surgeon, and Dr. T. Lloyd Fletcher, Biochemist, said.

EACH OF THE four works on rats, shrinking the prostate gland without causing physical harm. They also shrink slices of human prostate gland in test-tube experiments. They came from careful testing of 170 different chemical compounds.

Enlargement of the prostate occurs in 80 per cent of men over 50, Dr. McDonald told science writers visiting cancer research centers under auspices of the American Cancer Society.

The enlarged gland can obstruct the outlet of the bladder. Men reaching 70 face an 80-to-90 per cent chance of requiring surgery on the gland.

"We think these four drugs would be quite good," Dr. McDonald said.

Sisters Are Pinned Against House by Car

Pittsburgh, April 11 (AP)—Two sisters from Yonkers, N. Y., were injured—one critically—as they were pinned against the front steps of a house by a careening auto Saturday night.

Police said Mrs. Sally Renn, 73, suffered crushed legs and other injuries. She was placed on the critical list at Allegheny General Hospital.

Mrs. Renn's sister, Mrs. Rose Marable, 62, suffered only slight injuries.

The women were walking into the home of a niece they planned to visit on Easter.

Officers identified the driver as Fred Jackson, 41, of Cleveland, Ohio. He was booked on a charge of drunken driving.

New York, April 11 (AP)—The rise in metal prices when many other commodity prices are weak has businessmen wondering today if metals are pointing to another fling at inflation.

Or are they acting, as they so often have in the past, as a barometer — in reverse? Frequently the metal price pointer has swung around to "fair" about the time that the rain started in other parts of the economy.

Usually metal prices are the laggards. Inflation appeared in the prices of other commodities first. The metals followed belatedly. Often they have taken their biggest spurt after other prices turned soft. And historically, metal prices have held on and been the last to turn down in periods of deflation.

PRICES OF farm products, on the other hand, often are quick to change when the economic weather changes — and sometimes forecast it.

In the futures markets, where men contract to buy or sell commodities five or more months from today, prices of most commodities have taken sharp dips in recent weeks. But spot prices —what is paid for immediate delivery—remained pretty firm in March, after dropping in February.

This indicates that traders expect the price picture to change. They are betting that prices will be considerably lower in five months or so.

But copper is an exception. The price for future delivery of the metal is higher in most cases than the going price in the spot market.

Metal producers can point to special reasons why prices of their products have risen of late.

DEMAND HAS improved. Auto makers and other durable goods manufacturers have stepped up production of products made of metal. The European industrial boom went merrily along while the United States was having its mild recession. This made a big market for metals abroad.

Copper supplies have been short because of strikes here and in Chile and Africa. Aluminum supplies have been tight because of heavy demand from defense factories, such as aircraft, as well as from the makers of civilian goods.

The government has been a big customer for many metals which it is stockpiling for military defense purposes. In the case of zinc and lead stockpile buying was used to strengthen prices last year. In the case of copper and aluminum, where supplies are already tight, the government purchasing agents become competitors of the buyers for the civilian industries.

RECENT PRICE changes in the four metals, however, have been due to civilian demand. Auto makers have been using zinc for die casting and steel producers have been buying it to galvanize their product. Stocks of the metal dwindled fast. And the price of zinc went up ½ cent a pound last week to 12 cents.

THE COPPER PRICE here has gone up 6 cents a pound since the first of the year. At 36 cents it is still cheaper than the London price. To aid users of copper here the government has diverted some copper from defense plant stocks, suspended deliveries to its stockpile for two months to let the metal go instead to the fabricators, and put strict controls on exports.

Users of copper and aluminum have asked the government also to let them get supplies from the defense stockpile, but federal law requires that any metal released from the government's hoard could be used only in defense work.

In the metal trades they are expecting supplies to stay tight well into the summer. And as long as industrial production in general keeps up its fast pace, prices of metals may stay high for some time to come. But many observers doubt if price strength in metals will rub off onto other commodities.

Greek Repatriates Are Problem Economically and as Red Spies

(Editor's note: The cold war is the stage of a modern Greek tragedy. Communist nations have been pumping Red propaganda for seven years into about 28,000 Greek children abducted during the Greek Civil War. Now the Reds are suddenly eager to return the hostages. Why? William L. Ryan has sought the answer in a survey of political, economic and military implications on the spot. This is the first of three dispatches.)

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

Kastoria, Greece, April 11 (AP)—A special train from Communist Bulgaria screeched to a halt on the Greek side of the frontier. A Greek in his early 20s leaped from the train and, falling to his knees, kissed the Greek earth he had not seen for seven years.

The young man wept as he proclaimed his joy at deliverance. He had been one of about 28,000 Greek children abducted by the Communists, along with thousands of adults, during the Greek Civil War of 1947-49.

TWO WEEKS after his repatriation, Greek security police arrested this same young man. He was, they said, a trained Communist spy.

The young man was more than that. He was an example of how communism sets about to capture a generation. He was part of a compounded tragedy which has become a major problem for Greece and a matter of concern for Greece's friends, including the United States.

This area, within sight of the towering wild mountains—which mark the border of Communist Albania, was one of the hardest hit by a crime which shocked the civilized world—the wholesale kidnaping of Greek children.

NOW THE Communists seem suddenly eager to return thousands of those forced across the border and possibly some of the many who went willingly as the families of Red guerrilla fighters.

Many Greeks are asking—why? Why, at this moment, after all these years and all the futile pleas of Greece before world opinion?

For humane reasons, the Greeks want their people back. But there are misgivings. A sudden flood of repatriates raises serious economic difficulties in the villages. It raises political problems, too, because the children forcibly abducted have reached their late teens and early 20s after seven years of the most rigorous Communist indoctrination, forced estrangement from their parents, isolation from any free world influence.

AND GREEKS ask: Are the Communists preparing a time-bomb for Greece?

Communists of the Soviet satellite nations, through the International Red Cross, agreed last year to return some of the Greeks. Up to now, 3,700 have been repatriated in this way, but:

Of the 3,700 repatriates, 60 per cent are women, about 1,300 are over 60 and an equal number are children, most of them born across the border. Only 1,-100 are in the 20-to-60 age group. Those coming back at the moment include many who will be burdens to their communities. Attached to their return is a condition that they must go to the villages or areas of their origin.

EVEN THESE few created problems for Greece. The Communists seemed fully aware of that. Poland suddenly offered to repatriate 6,000 in the dead of winter, when it would be most difficult to accommodate them. The number was too great for the Greeks to handle in one batch. They asked that it be scaled down to 2,500 and the time advanced to spring.

There is now a strong rumor that the Communist replied with an offer raising the number to 11,000, to be moved in a single batch at once. It seemed an effort to embarrass the Greeks. Security screening alone is a long and arduous task, taxing Greek facilities to the utmost.

THERE MIGHT not be dangerous elements among the first batches. Repatriates here angrily deny that any of their number has any use for communism. But Greek officials are frankly worried about those to come—the children schooled for seven years in a Communist vacuum.

Interrogation has shown that many of the children, grown to adulthood in isolation from their parents, have undergone the most thorough of indoctrination courses. Many had special treatment in special schools under the guidance of the Greek Communist party, now based largely abroad in the satellite countries. They had better treatment in many cases than did the children of the native Romanians, Poles, Hungarians or Czechs.

IN ROMANIA, a big Bucharest building and two big villas were set aside for Greek children. They were kept to themselves under Greek Communist teachers. Village children from birth, in a hard mountain country, they had never seen a large European city. Budapest, Prague and Bucharest were proud old cities long before the Communists came along. Children would be impressed.

Security officials say many who left Greece as children now are indoctrinated Communists who would represent a new and serious nucleus for the outlawed Greek Communist party.

There was an illustration:

Furtively, two teen-age boys agreed to slash their fingers.

They smeared the spurting blood on letters they were writing to their parents, still captive in a Communist country. The boys, long separated from their parents, had recently been repatriated from Romania.

On the blood-smeared sheets of paper they wrote: "This will show you how the Monarcho-Fascists torture those who return here."

THEY WROTE that they were cruelly beaten in Greece and that the blood showed it.

Since the boys, among the relative few who could be placed in a school for rehabilitation, were under observation at the time, the letter was read and stopped.

This story was told to me by a representative of the Queen's Fund, a charitable organization now devoting much of its considerable energy to the problem of the repatriated children.

Greece is salvaging some of them. But it is a slow and painful process.

Sisters Are Pinned Against House by Car

Pittsburgh, April 11 (AP)—Two sisters from Yonkers, N. Y., were injured—one critically—as they were pinned against the front steps of a house by a careening auto Saturday night.

Police said Mrs. Sally Renn, 73, suffered crushed legs and other injuries. She was placed on the critical list at Allegheny General Hospital.

Mrs. Renn's sister, Mrs. Rose Marable, 62, suffered only slight injuries.

The women were walking into the home of a niece they planned to visit on Easter.

Officers identified the driver as Fred Jackson, 41, of Cleveland, Ohio. He was booked on a charge of drunken driving.

Dies at 128

Madrin, Turkey, April 11 (AP)—Isa Kerem, a charcoal seller who claimed he was 128 years old, died today. Kerem said he washed only in cold water and subsisted mainly on a diet of curdled milk, soup, beans and tomatoes.

Announce New Way To Shrink Painful Piles

Find Healing Substance That Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

New York, N. Y. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain—without surgery.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne*)—discovery of a world-famous research institute.

This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name *Preparation H. At your druggist. Money back guarantee. *Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

UN Charges Israel, Egypt as Violators

Jerusalem, April 11 (AP)—The UN mixed armistice commission has charged both Israel and Egypt with truce violations in a recent border clash along the troubled Gaza strip that left 2 soldiers dead and 12 wounded on each side.

A communique, issued yesterday after an emergency meeting of the commission on the April 3 shooting at Nahal Oz, also contained a plea by UN truce chief Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns of Canada. Burns called on both sides to keep "firm control" over their armed forces on the Gaza strip, scene of a series of bloody outbreaks recently.

Baptists Invited By Russians on Preaching Mission

Philadelphia, April 11 (AP)—A Russian church group has invited four Baptist clergymen, three of them Americans, to visit the Soviet Union on a preaching mission this summer.

The Rev. Dr. V. Carney Hargroves, president of the American Baptist convention, said Friday night that he had received such a bid from the Russian All Union Council of Evangelical Christian Baptists.

Similar invitations, Dr. Hargroves said, went to Dr. Arnold Ohrn, of Norway, secretary of the Baptist World Alliance; Dr. Joseph Jackson, Chicago, president of the National Baptist Convention, Inc., and Dr. Theodore Adams, pastor of the First Baptist Church at Richmond, Va., an official of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Dr. Hargroves, pastor of the Second Baptist Church in Germantown here, said a final decision on the invitation will not be made for about two weeks. The American Baptist convention which he heads is an organization of some 6,000 churches in the United States with 1,600,000 constituents.

Dr. Hargroves said he believes the invitations resulted from a religious conference in Sweden last summer, attended by the four clergymen involved in the invitations as well as church leaders from Russia and England.

Drugs Announced To Control Gland Trouble in Men

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Reporter)

Seattle, Wash., April 11 (AP)—Safe drugs to control the most common glandular trouble in men are promised by research announced Saturday by the University of Washington scientists.

They are drugs to shrink the prostate gland. This gland almost always enlarges after middle age, often causing pain, often necessitating surgical removal. Men aged 50 to 60 run a 50-50 chance of needing this operation.

Four shrinkage drugs have been found, and one or more will soon be tested on humans, Dr. Donald F. McDonald, surgeon, and Dr. T. Lloyd Fletcher, Biochemist, said.

EACH OF THE four works on rats, shrinking the prostate gland without causing physical harm. They also shrink slices of human prostate gland in test-tube experiments. They came from careful testing of 170 different chemical compounds.

Enlargement of the prostate occurs in 80 per cent of men over 50, Dr. McDonald told science writers visiting cancer research centers under auspices of the American Cancer Society.

The enlarged gland can obstruct the outlet of the bladder. Men reaching 70 face an 80-to-90 per cent chance of requiring surgery on the gland.

"We think these four drugs would be quite good," Dr. McDonald said.

WIDE OPEN FIELD

We live in a country that depends more and more on technical advances, not only for its safety in a hostile world but for its economic well-being. Yet apparently we aren't developing enough technicians to keep pace with our expanding needs.

According to the United States Office of Education, American colleges this spring will turn out about 23,000 engineering graduates. That may sound like quite a few, but in fact it's less than five per cent more than represented in the class of 1954—which was a postwar low.

Worse still, our principal competitors, the Russians, are reliably reported to be producing more than 50,000 new engineers a year. And the word is they are stepping up the total.

America's production of technical men looks even sadder when set beside the projected need. An organization known as the Engineering Manpower Commission estimates the total 1955 need for new engineers at from 45,000 to 70,000. So our deficit in this field as of June this year, will range from 20,000 to 47,000, depending on whether one wishes to be conservative or liberal.

The commission foresees some rise in the number of U. S. engineering graduates, perhaps to 35,000 a year by 1965. But meantime our need undoubtedly will have gone on increasing, and this total still will be inadequate.

Now we can't force more people to study engineering, as the Russians can whenever they decide to boost the pace. But there must be many things we can properly do to increase interest in engineering among our young men.

It is a field bulging with opportunities. Engineering in exciting new areas like atomic energy and electronics beckons brightly to many. The men who work in these and other developing new fields will quite literally hold a considerable part of the future of this country in their hands.

Concerted effort should be made by both government and industry to lift our output of engineers to a level closer to our true need. Scholarships and financial aids of other sorts should be offered on an increasing scale. Much more should be said publicly about the engineering shortage, especially by men in high places who have the responsibility for advancing this nation's welfare.

And while we are making the country more aware of the problem, we should endeavor to halt the considerable waste of good engineering manpower which somehow or other has been shunted off into other work.

Some say many engineers are performing nontechnical jobs in the Army. A fair reservoir of talented men may exist among foreign refugees admitted to this country. A West Coast firm recently found one, an Austrian, who had been working as a bus boy.

We think of ourselves as the greatest technical masters of modern day. If we are now, we won't be for long unless we find way to make up this serious deficiency in engineering manpower.

ULCERS AND THE JONESES

Social climbing by wives may be a cause of men's ulcers, Professor Benjamin D. Paul of Harvard University told the National Health Council. His idea is that men work so hard to give their wives tangible proof of standing in the community that they make themselves sick in the process.

This does happen, of course. Yet the women are not the only ones to blame. Male desire to please and impress enters in, and not many husbands care to confess that the pace their wives set is too fast.

Perhaps if it is too hard to keep up with the Joneses, the fault may be with the Joneses for setting too high a standard. What we wish we knew is:

Who are those Joneses, anyhow, and why do we have to chase after them?

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

AMERICA'S GREATEST WRITER!

Albert E. Kahn, the Matusow publisher, who during recent hearings before the Eastland Committee, on several occasions, took the Fifth Amendment, knows, beyond peradventure, that he is an important American writer. This is his own evaluation of his work:

". . . The comment I want to make on this particular matter is that 'The Great Conspiracy' was a book which was very widely published, which published and very widely read in the United States, a book to which Senator Claude Pepper wrote the introduction, and I believe had a circulation of more than a quarter of a million here.

"I think it important for the committee to recognize the fact that this book was not merely read elsewhere in the world but also read widely in the United States and, according to Barron's Financial Weekly, was a book that was stimulating and informative reading, and according to Newsweek magazine, a book extremely worth reading."

He received royalties from 25 or 30 countries where his book was widely circulated. I have read "The Great Conspiracy" and put it down as a hodge-podge of Communist propaganda, mostly taken out of already published material. Kahn says his book sold in the millions, which is astonishing because it would be difficult to find many Americans who read it or remembered it.

Albert Kahn took the Fifth Amendment to the question of his being a Communist, but he made an interesting statement on the subject and I give this colluquy:

"Mr. Kahn. I understand that many people have been attacked for using the Fifth Amendment. I would simply say this, Senator: that he who attacks me for using the Fifth Amendment does not slander me but slanders the Constitution of the United States.

"The Chairman. Of course, that is the ground that Communists use when they don't want to state whether or not they are a Communist.

"Mr. Kahn. You mean, only Communists use the Constitution?"

When Kahn became a publisher, he naturally sought capital. He found it, by one means or another, principally from the following Communist unions:

". . . The United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union, the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union, the Fur Workers Union. Those are some of the unions."

The financing was done in the following manner, and I quote Kahn on the subject:

". . . Well, on orders for 2 books which I recal there was an advance payment for 20,000 copies, 10,000 of each book, an advance payment at the wholesale price of 50 cents—they were in the paper editions, these books—from the United Electrical Workers, and 20,000 copies at 50 cents would be $5,000 on each of 2 books.

"From the Furriers, I believe, and I am speaking from memory, there was an order on 1 book for 2,000 copies, which would amount to an advance order of $1,000, 50 cents a book.

"From Mine, Mill there was an advance order on Matusow's book for 2,000 copies, which amounted to $1,000, the first advance order. That was subsequently increased to $1,250, that is for 2,500 books, and finally, after some effort on my part to get the order up to 10,000, I managed to get it up to, I believe, around 6,700 books, which would be about, well, half of that, at 50 cents a book."

The Matusow Case and Kahn's participation in it are clinical evidence of the continuing efforts of the Left Wingers and their ability to find financial support for whatever they want to do. On the other hand, those who defend the American system of government and life find it most difficult to finance their activities. For instance, during the past two years a militant group of anti-Communists have been trying to raise funds to start a magazine to counteract flourishing Left-Wing publications. It has been a difficult and unpleasant task. Those who have nothing to lose but their money, their property and their social system fear those who fight for them more than they do those who undermine them. It is an interesting commentary on the bourgeois mind.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

DESCRIPTION OF LITTLE STROKES

Some months ago I wrote an article on what Dr. Walter Alvarez has termed "little strokes." Now, in an editorial in the magazine, "Geriatrics" which is devoted to the diseases and processes of aging, Dr. Alvarez quotes to us from a letter he received from an able woman, the wife of a big business executive. She had read one of his articles on little strokes and suddenly realized what had been happening to her husband. Her description was approximately as follows:

Until the age of 61, he had been an intelligent, kindly, able and charming man. Then, suddenly, he began to lose weight without any changes in his diet. Where he was formerly even-tempered and good-natured, he now became irritable and short-tempered. An examination at a clinic failed to disclose anything wrong.

The wife became really alarmed for the first time when her husband suddenly, without offering any explanation for his behavior, stopped going to his office in November, 1951. By the early part of 1952, she realized he was failing mentally. For a time he improved but slipped back following the death of a relative.

(We have mentioned before this tendency to become depressed and slip backward mentally when a close friend or relative dies.)

The man went for another thorough examination which again failed to show anything unusual. His doctors suggested that he consult a psychiatrist but the wife knew her husband was sane enough. She did know, however, that he was very different from what he had been. "The picture of the intelligent and charming man I married long ago is blurred almost beyond recognition; only his gentleness and kindness remain. Never once has he complained about anything. If he is ever sad and depressed or unhappy, he has kept it to himself."

The wife went on to say that her husband occasionally showed great restlessness, perhaps of a mild agitated depression, and then he kept walking up and down through the house. He used to be a great reader but now does not seem capable of doing much reading. He gets confused even in little things such as shaving or dressing. He eats well and sleeps well, and interestingly enough does not have the terrible migraine (one-sided headache) he used to have. Dr. Alvarez comments that he has known a number of men and women who lost their migraine headaches after a little stroke.

The wife described vividly one little stroke she happened to see. "He was entering the living room and I glanced up to see him clinging to the side of the door. He had a wild appearing look in his eyes. I caught him before he fell and lowered him to the floor. He had an ashy look but was not unconscious. However, when it was over, he had no memory of what had happened and it all lasted only a few moments."

We are so accustomed to thinking of a "stroke" as rendering a person unconscious and then confined to bed for a considerable time, if not forever, that we may not realize that "little strokes" may be occurring which are really just as significant but may not be recognized for what they are.

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington — (NEA) — The wraps are now all off.

Adm. Robert B. Carney has himself dropped the cloak of secrecy from his shoulders as Chief of Naval Operations. He has publicly admitted before a Senate committee that he was the man responsible for all the stories on the possibility of a Chinese Communist attack on Matsu by April 15. But he has denied that he ever made any such statement.

Twenty Washington correspondents, including this writer, were present at a private dinner after Admiral Carney returned from his first-hand inspection of the Formosa area.

They all heard him make the prediction of fighting, not once but several times. They had respected his confidence and had not themselves identified Admiral Carney as the source of this information. But when he pulled the rug from under himself before the Senate committee, the rules were suspended. It is therefore possible and perfectly ethical to quote just what the admiral said.

This reporter made full notes on the meeting, as did all the other reporters present. The notes all check. The material appearing below, in quotation marks, is an exact transcript of what I took down at the meeting.

These are some of the notes from which I wrote the dispatch filed the day after the dinner, in which it was reported:

"APRIL 15 IS NOW SEEN as the approximate date for the showdown between war or peace in the Chinese offshore islands.

"By this time the Chinese Communists will have completed their build-up against Matsu Island. A Communist attack against Quemoy is not expected for another month or two."

Admiral Carney began his after-dinner remarks by saying voluntarily, "Chou En-lai and Mao Tse-tung have made a straight pitch. They are flushed with victory.

"If I were on the Chinese joint chiefs of staff I'd advise continued probe. The first thing would be the offshore islands. They have the resources to take them if they are opposed only by the Chi-Nats (Chinese Nationalists). It will be costly.

"They will go against Matsu in mid-April.

"It will be nice timing. It will tie in with the Afro-Asian conference.

"Quemoy won't be done that soon. This could be an error. Their movements and build-up can be shielded and not detected. But Quemoy should be attacked after Matsu.

"They're building up airport area behind Foochow.

"THIS WILL INVOLVE preparatory harrassing and air attack. There will be heavy losses.

"Our MAAG (Military Assistance Advisory Group) is on Matsu advising Chi-Nats.

"If the Communists want to employ all the forces they have, they can take Matsu. A month later or more—May or June—they attack Quemoy.

"Communists could fly fighter cover now for bombing Quemoy and part of Formosa. Communist fighter fields are not yet ready.

"If it's question of Communists' control of air, this factor is now in favor of Formosa.

"If attack is launched, it will be difficult to restrain Chiang.

"When the fighting starts, there's no use to tie hands or invoke Marquis of Queensbury rules. Chiang will want to attack Communist air fields.

"Chinese Communists can retaliate.

"That's the key factor for U. S. This would involve Formosa itself. The time clock is ticking now. Operations will have to be expanded to involve Formosa.

"The 64-dollar question is whether the offshore islands attack is to involve Formosa.

"It's up to the President to decide what to do—

"There is a real sense of urgency if the Chinese Communists push to their full capabilities.

"We face a most serious situation this spring.

"Communist China has an unbroken record of outwitting us. They have declared their objective.

"I don't see how we can solve it by talk alone.

"It is not sound war to yield high points and flank points and set up the ultimate battle line for their attack.

"QUEMOY AND MATSU ARE NOT too valuable, but loss would upset Chi-Nats' morale.

"Actual attack on Formosa would be difficult, presuming U. S. participation under treaty.

"If U. S. decides not to let Quemoy and Matsu go, what is the effect on our part? If we decide Quemoy and Matsu are part of Formosa defense, it's important we go in with the idea of winning. The venture would fail if we went in with hands tied—

"If a decision is made for U. S. to participate, it should not be a local, tactical battle. We could win a tactical battle and not win anything at all.

"We must wreck his war potential. This involves all-out war. We know targets to destroy their potential now.

"We'd have to mobilize. It would take a U. S. build-up in the area and at home.

"General war in Asia is likely unless they decide we mean business. Mao is supposed to have said Americans are unpredictable. This is an advantage to us.

"Number of things we can do in three weeks is limited. We might strengthen our positions. We might initiate some deployment. You can't wave a wand and get force on the spot."

There was much more of the same, including clarification of many points by reporters' questions and answers. But the above excerpts show what Admiral Carney said even if it doesn't correspond with his later recollections of what he meant to say.

Tragic Mistakes of Yalta Laid to Roosevelt by Former Prober of Reds

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, April 11—Representative Martin Dies, of Texas, Democrat and former chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, says President Roosevelt blundered at Yalta and that to acknowledge the mistakes "is not a condemnation of the Democratic party." Mr. Dies has written to this correspondent a letter which is presented here in full text:

"Of all that is being written and spoken concerning the tragic mistakes of Yalta, certain basic facts are being ignored or overlooked. In order to understand Yalta, it is essential to know the attitude of the Roosevelt administration towards Russia and communism when the President and his advisers met with Churchill and Stalin to decide the future of the world.

"No judge or juror can render a fair decision if he has preconceived opinions or if he hears the case with his mind made up in advance of trial. I know it to be a fact from my conversations with Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Ickes, Mr. Hopkins, and other members of the Roosevelt team that Mr. Roosevelt and his advisers went to Yalta with tragically erroneous ideas about Russia and communism. As I have reported many times since 1939, Mr. Roosevelt and his key aids told me quite frankly and definitely that they did not believe the findings and conclusions of the Dies Committee with reference to the criminal and aggressive plans, tactics and methods of Communists at home and abroad, and that they believed that the future of America depended upon close collaboration with Russia and a tolerant, if not protective, attitude towards Communists in the United States. They ridiculed the findings of the Dies Committee contained in our first report dated Jan. 3, 1939, which reads as follows:

"'We have shown that communism is a world-wide revolutionary movement aiming ultimately at the setting up of a world union of Soviet socialist republics. This is a proposition which is beyond dispute. It is substantiated by voluminous literature of the Communists themselves.

"'In this plan for world revolution, the Communists have omitted no country or people as too small or insignificant to command their attention. They have, on the other hand, taken the logical position of concentrating their attention upon the richest and most populous countries of the earth. Among these the Communists recognize the United States of America as the foremost. The Communists' conquest of the earth will be far less than complete until it has conquered America and destroyed our free institutions.

"'It follows logically from the Communist international's plan of world conquest that every possible tactic, device, maneuver and intrigue would be employed to gain such an end as the communization of America. These tactics, devices, maneuvers and intrigues are both boldly open and patiently subtle, both violent and insidious. The tactics and maneuvers for revolutionary ends are the meat and drink of a Communist. They are the very air he breathes.'

"Mr. Roosevelt treated this and many other warnings issued by me and the committee concerning the tactics and aims of the Communists as a huge joke. On one occasion Mr. Roosevelt laughingly told me that he thought I 'saw a Red under my bed at night.' Mr. Ickes called me a 'zany' and ridiculed me publicly. Mrs. Perkins made the false statement publicly that I had accused Shirley Temple of being a Communist.

"It is this sort of attitude and thinking which Mr. Roosevelt carried with him to Yalta. Is it any wonder, therefore, that America lost at Yalta the fruits of hard-won victory and that Stalin came out of the conference with concessions that changed the map and future of the world?

"I do not mean to imply that Mr. Roosevelt was actuated by ulterior motives. I do not believe there has ever been a President of our country who intentionally did something contrary to the best interest of our country. Neither do I seek to detract from Mr. Roosevelt's great leadership during the dark days of the depression. But it is important to our children that we face up to the ugly truth of Yalta in the hope that future generations will profit by our mistake and avoid another Yalta.

"Blind and misguided partisanship which defends the indefensible does not serve the best interest of our country. It is not a condemnation of the Democratic party today to acknowledge one of the worst blunders in the history of our country. The Republican party has been guilty of tragic blunders, such as the reconstruction era after the war between the states which did so much to retard the political, economic and spiritual growth of our country.

"The 'party hacks' who condone and defend the mistakes of their party are neither statesmen who serve the interest and welfare of their country, nor politicians who serve the ultimate interest of their party.

"Despite all the denials and countercharges, Yalta was a terrible blunder which has already cost our country precious lives and billions of dollars and which may yet plunge us into a devastating war. Only if we recognize it as a blunder and acknowledge its cause can we profit in the future and save our civilization from destruction.

"There are none so blind as those who will not see; there are none so deaf as those who will not hear. In the world in which we live we cannot survive if we are blind and deaf to our mistakes."

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

As one who had much traffic with both of them, I can write a comparison between Robert R. McCormick, late publisher of the Chicago Tribune, and Frank Knox, late publisher of the Chicago Daily News. Both were known as "Colonel," but their experience as warriors was brief. McCormick, in his after-years, acted like one of those GAR's who fit one skirmish and fit it and fit it forever. He spent a lot of time at Chaumont, which was Pershing's GHQ. John probably figured that that was where he could do the least harm. Knox was a trooper with Theodore Roosevelt's braggart Rough Riders in Cuba, a very bad outfit from the military standpoint, which is all that counts in appraising combat soldiers. In the First World War he went over as an artilleryman, but his data indicates that he was around brigade and division with the rank of major. He was promoted to colonel of reserve after the war.

McCormick was a great patriot and loyal to his country and his principles even when his loyalty exposed him to great danger. Knox was a phony. Harold Ickes, who had been a YMCA man in the first war, revealed in his posthumous publications that a few days before Pearl Harbor the cabinet talked of indicting McCormick on a charge of treason for publishing secret plans of the War Department to send an expeditionary force to Europe. Strangely, the entry in Ickes' diary, revealing this proposal to imprison a patriot for exposing a phase of the war party's secret design, was dated Dec. 7, 1941, Pearl Harbor day. The cabinet meeting had been held on Friday, about the time that Frank Knox assured the country "the navy is ready."

Ickes hated McCormick, an honor which he bore with pride and which I was pleased to share. McCormick had printed a letter signed by Roosevelt asking that such plans be made and "played it as a great sensation."

"If we had been at war," Ickes said, "this would have constituted treason. Ben (Cohen) suggested that an outstanding Republican be appointed assistant attorney general and given charge of the case. I said I would raise the question at cabinet."

At cabinet meeting, Francis Biddle, the attorney general said McCormick had violated the espionage act, but both he and Cohen thought a conspiracy charge would be stronger and should be pressed. Ickes wondered whether McCormick was still a reserve officer subject to court-martial, and Roosevelt asked Stimson, a personal dupe of Felix Frankfurter and, like Knox, a renegade Republican to look it up.

Knox seems to have expressed no objection. The talk ultimately came to nothing and within the next week, Knox himself was assured a place in history as one of those who shared the guilt for the Pearl Harbor disaster. The men who had arranged the design of sitting ducks were very busy, by now trying to throw the guilt on Admiral Kimmel and General Short. By that time, Knox had flown to Pearl Harbor and his press agent was having a busy time diverting public attention by emphasizing the bravery of men who had manned the guns many of whom, of course, were killed.

Knox had no moral courage His character was weak and vain. Alf Landon, who had been the Republican presidential candidate in 1936, and Knox, his running-mate, both had been called to Washington in 1940 and invited to take important jobs in Roosevelt's war machine. Landon refused and he and Knox on the White House steps exchanged vows to have no part in the developing conspiracy. Landon later said flatly that Knox had double-crossed him. They never spoke again.

Marshall Field wanted to invade Chicago with a morning paper to fight McCormick and Knox rented him office space and the off-hour use of all his mechanical plant at the Daily News. Knox well knew Field's politics and had loudly attacked them generally in a book entitled "We Planned It That Way," a derisive dig at the Roosevelt squanderlust and domestic espionage system which he published in 1936 as a campaign document. But Knox had his price. So when Field came along, Knox made him welcome although Field's whole program sharply violated his own professed principles. Field immediately began to attack McCormick and there ensued at once a campaign of reprisal which has had no equal in modern

We live in a country that depends more and more on technical advances, not only for its safety in a hostile world but for its economic well-being. Yet apparently we aren't developing enough technicians to keep pace with our expanding needs.

According to the United States Office of Education, American colleges this spring will turn out about 23,000 engineering graduates. That may sound like quite a few, but in fact it's less than five per cent more than represented in the class of 1954—which was a postwar low.

Worse still, our principal competitors, the Russians, are reliably reported to be producing more than 50,000 new engineers a year. And the word is they are stepping up the total.

America's production of technical men looks even sadder when set beside the projected need. An organization known as the Engineering Manpower Commission estimates the total 1955 need for new engineers at from 45,000 to 70,000. So our deficit in this field as of June this year, will range from 20,000 to 47,000, depending on whether one wishes to be conservative or liberal.

The commission foresees some rise in the number of U. S. engineering graduates, perhaps to 35,000 a year by 1965. But meantime our need undoubtedly will have gone on increasing, and this total still will be inadequate.

Now we can't force more people to study engineering, as the Russians can whenever they decide to boost the pace. But there must be many things we can properly do to increase interest in engineering among our young men.

It is a field bulging with opportunities. Engineering in exciting new areas like atomic energy and electronics beckons brightly to many. The men who work in these and other developing new fields will quite literally hold a considerable part of the future of this country in their hands.

Concerted effort should be made by both government and industry to lift our output of engineers to a level closer to our true need. Scholarships and financial aids of other sorts should be offered on an increasing scale. Much more should be said publicly about the engineering shortage, especially by men in high places who have the responsibility for advancing this nation's welfare.

And while we are making the country more aware of the problem, we should endeavor to halt the considerable waste of good engineering manpower which somehow or other has been shunted off into other work.

Some say many engineers are performing nontechnical jobs in the Army. A fair reservoir of talented men may exist among foreign refugees admitted to this country. A West Coast firm recently found one, an Austrian, who had been working as a bus boy.

We think of ourselves as the greatest technical masters of modern day. If we are now, we won't be for long unless we find way to make up this serious deficiency in engineering manpower.

ULCERS AND THE JONESES

Social climbing by wives may be a cause of men's ulcers, Professor Benjamin D. Paul of Harvard University told the National Health Council. His idea is that men work so hard to give their wives tangible proof of standing in the community that they make themselves sick in the process.

This does happen, of course. Yet the women are not the only ones to blame. Male desire to please and impress enters in, and not many husbands care to confess that the pace their wives set is too fast.

Perhaps if it is too hard to keep up with the Joneses, the fault may be with the Joneses for setting too high a standard. What we wish we knew is:

Who are those Joneses, anyhow, and why do we have to chase after them?

'These Days'

AMERICA'S GREATEST WRITER!

Albert E. Kahn, the Matusow publisher, who during recent hearings before the Eastland Committee, on several occasions, took the Fifth Amendment, knows, beyond peradventure, that he is an important American writer. This is his own evaluation of his work:

". . . The comment I want to make on this particular matter is that 'The Great Conspiracy' was a book which was very widely published, which published and very widely read in the United States, a book to which Senator Claude Pepper wrote the introduction, and I believe had a circulation of more than a quarter of a million here.

"I think it important for the committee to recognize the fact that this book was not merely read elsewhere in the world but also read widely in the United States and, according to Barron's Financial Weekly, was a book that was stimulating and informative reading, and according to Newsweek magazine, a book extremely worth reading."

He received royalties from 25 or 30 countries where his book was widely circulated. I have read "The Great Conspiracy" and put it down as a hodge-podge of Communist propaganda, mostly taken out of already published material. Kahn says his book sold in the millions, which is astonishing because it would be difficult to find many Americans who read it or remembered it.

Albert Kahn took the Fifth Amendment to the question of his being a Communist, but he made an interesting statement on the subject and I give this colluquy:

"Mr. Kahn. I understand that many people have been attacked for using the Fifth Amendment. I would simply say this, Senator: that he who attacks me for using the Fifth Amendment does not slander me but slanders the Constitution of the United States.

"The Chairman. Of course, that is the ground that Communists use when they don't want to state whether or not they are a Communist.

"Mr. Kahn. You mean, only Communists use the Constitution?"

When Kahn became a publisher, he naturally sought capital. He found it, by one means or another, principally from the following Communist unions:

". . . The United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union, the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union, the Fur Workers Union. Those are some of the unions."

The financing was done in the following manner, and I quote Kahn on the subject:

". . . Well, on orders for 2 books which I recal there was an advance payment for 20,000 copies, 10,000 of each book, an advance payment at the wholesale price of 50 cents—they were in the paper editions, these books—from the United Electrical Workers, and 20,000 copies at 50 cents would be $5,000 on each of 2 books.

"From the Furriers, I believe, and I am speaking from memory, there was an order on 1 book for 2,000 copies, which would amount to an advance order of $1,000, 50 cents a book.

"From Mine, Mill there was an advance order on Matusow's book for 2,000 copies, which amounted to $1,000, the first advance order. That was subsequently increased to $1,250, that is for 2,500 books, and finally, after some effort on my part to get the order up to 10,000, I managed to get it up to, I believe, around 6,700 books, which would be about, well, half of that, at 50 cents a book."

The Matusow Case and Kahn's participation in it are clinical evidence of the continuing efforts of the Left Wingers and their ability to find financial support for whatever they want to do. On the other hand, those who defend the American system of government and life find it most difficult to finance their activities. For instance, during the past two years a militant group of anti-Communists have been trying to raise funds to start a magazine to counteract flourishing Left-Wing publications. It has been a difficult and unpleasant task. Those who have nothing to lose but their money, their property and their social system fear those who fight for them more than they do those who undermine them. It is an interesting commentary on the bourgeois mind.

That Body of Yours

DESCRIPTION OF LITTLE STROKES

Some months ago I wrote an article on what Dr. Walter Alvarez has termed "little strokes." Now, in an editorial in the magazine, "Geriatrics" which is devoted to the diseases and processes of aging, Dr. Alvarez quotes to us from a letter he received from an able woman, the wife of a big business executive. She had read one of his articles on little strokes and suddenly realized what had been happening to her husband. Her description was approximately as follows:

Until the age of 61, he had been an intelligent, kindly, able and charming man. Then, suddenly, he began to lose weight without any changes in his diet. Where he was formerly even-tempered and good-natured, he now became irritable and short-tempered. An examination at a clinic failed to disclose anything wrong.

The wife became really alarmed for the first time when her husband suddenly, without offering any explanation for his behavior, stopped going to his office in November, 1951. By the early part of 1952, she realized he was failing mentally. For a time he improved but slipped back following the death of a relative.

(We have mentioned before this tendency to become depressed and slip backward mentally when a close friend or relative dies.)

The man went for another thorough examination which again failed to show anything unusual. His doctors suggested that he consult a psychiatrist but the wife knew her husband was sane enough. She did know, however, that he was very different from what he had been. "The picture of the intelligent and charming man I married long ago is blurred almost beyond recognition; only his gentleness and kindness remain. Never once has he complained about anything. If he is ever sad and depressed or unhappy, he has kept it to himself."

The wife went on to say that her husband occasionally showed great restlessness, perhaps of a mild agitated depression, and then he kept walking up and down through the house. He used to be a great reader but now does not seem capable of doing much reading. He gets confused even in little things such as shaving or dressing. He eats well and sleeps well, and interestingly enough does not have the terrible migraine (one-sided headache) he used to have. Dr. Alvarez comments that he has known a number of men and women who lost their migraine headaches after a little stroke.

The wife described vividly one little stroke she happened to see. "He was entering the living room and I glanced up to see him clinging to the side of the door. He had a wild appearing look in his eyes. I caught him before he fell and lowered him to the floor. He had an ashy look but was not unconscious. However, when it was over, he had no memory of what had happened and it all lasted only a few moments."

We are so accustomed to thinking of a "stroke" as rendering a person unconscious and then confined to bed for a considerable time, if not forever, that we may not realize that "little strokes" may be occurring which are really just as significant but may not be recognized for what they are.

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington — (NEA) — The wraps are now all off.

Adm. Robert B. Carney has himself dropped the cloak of secrecy from his shoulders as Chief of Naval Operations. He has publicly admitted before a Senate committee that he was the man responsible for all the stories on the possibility of a Chinese Communist attack on Matsu by April 15. But he has denied that he ever made any such statement.

Twenty Washington correspondents, including this writer, were present at a private dinner after Admiral Carney returned from his first-hand inspection of the Formosa area.

They all heard him make the prediction of fighting, not once but several times. They had respected his confidence and had not themselves identified Admiral Carney as the source of this information. But when he pulled the rug from under himself before the Senate committee, the rules were suspended. It is therefore possible and perfectly ethical to quote just what the admiral said.

This reporter made full notes on the meeting, as did all the other reporters present. The notes all check. The material appearing below, in quotation marks, is an exact transcript of what I took down at the meeting.

These are some of the notes from which I wrote the dispatch filed the day after the dinner, in which it was reported:

"APRIL 15 IS NOW SEEN as the approximate date for the showdown between war or peace in the Chinese offshore islands.

"By this time the Chinese Communists will have completed their build-up against Matsu Island. A Communist attack against Quemoy is not expected for another month or two."

Admiral Carney began his after-dinner remarks by saying voluntarily, "Chou En-lai and Mao Tse-tung have made a straight pitch. They are flushed with victory.

"If I were on the Chinese joint chiefs of staff I'd advise continued probe. The first thing would be the offshore islands. They have the resources to take them if they are opposed only by the Chi-Nats (Chinese Nationalists). It will be costly.

"They will go against Matsu in mid-April.

"It will be nice timing. It will tie in with the Afro-Asian conference.

"Quemoy won't be done that soon. This could be an error. Their movements and build-up can be shielded and not detected. But Quemoy should be attacked after Matsu.

"They're building up airport area behind Foochow.

"THIS WILL INVOLVE preparatory harrassing and air attack. There will be heavy losses.

"Our MAAG (Military Assistance Advisory Group) is on Matsu advising Chi-Nats.

"If the Communists want to employ all the forces they have, they can take Matsu. A month later or more—May or June—they attack Quemoy.

"Communists could fly fighter cover now for bombing Quemoy and part of Formosa. Communist fighter fields are not yet ready.

"If it's question of Communists' control of air, this factor is now in favor of Formosa.

"If attack is launched, it will be difficult to restrain Chiang.

"When the fighting starts, there's no use to tie hands or invoke Marquis of Queensbury rules. Chiang will want to attack Communist air fields.

"Chinese Communists can retaliate.

"That's the key factor for U. S. This would involve Formosa itself. The time clock is ticking now. Operations will have to be expanded to involve Formosa.

"The 64-dollar question is whether the offshore islands attack is to involve Formosa.

"It's up to the President to decide what to do.

"There is a real sense of urgency if the Chinese Communists push to their full capabilities.

"We face a most serious situation this spring.

"Communist China has an unbroken record of outwitting us. They have declared their objective.

"I don't see how we can solve it by talk alone.

"It is not sound war to yield high points and flank points and set up the ultimate battle line for their attack.

"QUEMOY AND MATSU ARE NOT too valuable, but loss would upset Chi-Nats' morale.

"Actual attack on Formosa would be difficult, presuming U. S. participation under treaty.

"If U. S. decides not to let Quemoy and Matsu go, what is the effect on our part? If we decide Quemoy and Matsu are part of Formosa defense, it's important we go in with the idea of winning. The venture would fail if we went in with hands tied—

"If a decision is made for U. S. to participate, it should not be a local, tactical battle. We could win a tactical battle and not win anything at all.

"We must wreck his war potential. This involves all-out war. We know targets to destroy their potential now.

"We'd have to mobilize. It would take a U. S. build-up in the area and at home.

"General war in Asia is likely unless they decide we mean business. Mao is supposed to have said Americans are unpredictable. This is an advantage to us.

"Number of things we can do in three weeks is limited. We might strengthen our positions. We might initiate some deployment. You can't wave a wand and get force on the spot."

There was much more of the same, including clarification of many points by reporters' questions and answers. But the above excerpts show what Admiral Carney said even if it doesn't correspond with his later recollections of what he meant to say.

I do not believe there has ever been a President of our country who intentionally did something contrary to the best interest of our country. Neither do I seek to detract from Mr. Roosevelt's great leadership during the dark days of the depression. But it is important to our children that we face up to the ugly truth of Yalta in the hope that future generations will profit by our mistake and avoid another Yalta.

"Blind and misguided partisanship which defends the indefensible does not serve the best interest of our country. It is not a condemnation of the Democratic party today to acknowledge one of the worst blunders in the history of our country. The Republican party has been guilty of tragic blunders, such as the reconstruction era after the war between the states which did so much to retard the political, economic and spiritual growth of our country.

"The 'party hacks' who condone and defend the mistakes of their party are neither statesmen who serve the interest and welfare of their country, nor politicians who serve the ultimate interest of their party.

"Despite all the denials and countercharges, Yalta was a terrible blunder which has already cost our country precious lives and billions of dollars and which may yet plunge us into a devastating war. Only if we recognize it as a blunder and acknowledge its cause can we profit in the future and save our civilization from destruction.

"There are none so blind as those who will not see; there are none so deaf as those who will not hear. In the world in which we live we cannot survive if we are blind and deaf to our mistakes."

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

As one who had much traffic with both of them, I can write a comparison between Robert R. McCormick, late publisher of the Chicago Tribune, and Frank Knox, late publisher of the Chicago Daily News. Both were known as "Colonel," but their experience as warriors was brief. McCormick, in his after-years, acted like one of those GAR's who fit one skirmish and fit it and fit it forever. He spent a lot of time at Chaumont, which was Pershing's GHQ. John probably figured that that was where he could do the least harm. Knox was a trooper with Theodore Roosevelt's braggart Rough Riders in Cuba, a very bad outfit from the military standpoint, which is all that counts in appraising combat soldiers. In the First World War he went over as an artilleryman, but his data indicates that he was around brigade and division with the rank of major. He was promoted to colonel of reserve after the war.

McCormick was a great patriot and loyal to his country and his principles even when his loyalty exposed him to great danger. Knox was a phony. Harold Ickes, who had been a YMCA man in the first war, revealed in his posthumous publications that a few days before Pearl Harbor the cabinet talked of indicting McCormick on a charge of treason for publishing secret plans of the War Department to send an expeditionary force to Europe. Strangely, the entry in Ickes' diary, revealing this proposal to imprison a patriot for exposing a phase of the war party's secret design, was dated Dec. 7, 1941, Pearl Harbor day. The cabinet meeting had been held on Friday, about the time that Frank Knox assured the country "the navy is ready."

Ickes hated McCormick, an honor which he bore with pride and which I was pleased to share. McCormick had printed a letter signed by Roosevelt asking that such plans be made and "played it as a great sensation."

"If we had been at war," Ickes said, "this would have constituted treason. Ben (Cohen) suggested that an outstanding Republican be appointed assistant attorney general and given charge of the case. I said I would raise the question at cabinet."

At cabinet meeting, Francis Biddle, the attorney general said McCormick had violated the espionage act, but both he and Cohen thought a conspiracy charge would be stronger and should be pressed. Ickes wondered whether McCormick was still a reserve officer subject to court-martial, and Roosevelt asked Stimson, a personal dupe of Felix Frankfurter and, like Knox, a renegade Republican to look it up.

Knox seems to have expressed no objection. The talk ultimately came to nothing and within the next week, Knox himself was assured a place in history as one of those who shared the guilt for the Pearl Harbor disaster. The men who had arranged the design of sitting ducks were very busy, by now trying to throw the guilt on Admiral Kimmel and General Short. By that time, Knox had flown to Pearl Harbor and his press agent was having a busy time diverting public attention by emphasizing the bravery of men who had manned the guns many of whom, of course, were killed.

Knox had no moral courage. His character was weak and vain. Alf Landon, who had been the Republican presidential candidate in 1936, and Knox, his running-mate, both had been called to Washington in 1940 and invited to take important jobs in Roosevelt's war machine. Landon refused and he and Knox on the White House steps exchanged vows to have no part in the developing conspiracy. Landon later said flatly that Knox had double-crossed him. They never spoke again.

Marshall Field wanted to invade Chicago with a morning paper to fight McCormick and Knox rented him office space and the off-hour use of all his mechanical plant at the Daily News. Knox well knew Field's politics and had loudly attacked them generally in a book entitled "We Planned It That Way," a derisive dig at the Roosevelt squanderlust and domestic espionage system which he published in 1936 as a campaign document. But Knox had his price. So when Field came along, Knox made him welcome although Field's whole program sharply violated his own professed principles. Field immediately began to attack McCormick and there ensued at once a campaign of reprisal which has had no equal in modern

Pilot Sacrifices Life

Atsugi, Japan, April 11 (AP)—A U. S. Marine pilot sacrificed his life today rather than let his FJ2 Fury jet crash in Yokohama's crowded streets. The plant crashed into a hillside seven miles east of the naval air station here. The navy said the pilot, whose name was withheld, developed engine trouble over Yokohama. He refused to bail out over the city and tried to make it back to the base.

Seven Trains Delayed

New York, April 11 (AP)—Seven New York Central trains were delayed yesterday when firemen were forced to lay hose lines across railroad tracks to fight a fire on the Harlem river banks. The tieup, lasting from half an hour to an hour, delayed two trains to Chicago, one from Chicago and an express to Utica. Three other locals on the Hudson Division also were delayed.

SAWKILL HEARS OF CP WORK—Lawrence Jenson, left, president of the Kingston Lions Club, meets with members of the Sawkill Ladies' Auxiliary of the Fire Department during a meeting on the work being accomplished at the Ulster County Cerebral Palsy Center in Kingston. Town of Kingston Drive Scheduled Wednesday, May 4

Members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Sawkill Volunteer Fire Department heard of the work now being accomplished at the Ulster County Cerebral Palsy Center in Kingston during an informal talk Wednesday night at the Sawkill Firehouse.

Lawrence Jenson, president of the Kingston Lions Club, addressed the group which is planning its own drive in the town of Kingston May 4 between 7 and 8 p. m. The township's campaign is being handled by Mrs. Leslie Stewart, chairman, and Mrs. Frank Estes, co-chairman.

JENSON TOLD the auxiliary members of the various facilities at the center which are used to aid those handicapped by physical ailments, including cerebral palsy and polio, and also those with speech, hearing and visual defects.

Declaring the Center as a non-profit organization, Jenson told the women that a large financial outlay is needed annually and urged them to give all-out support to their own area drive May 4.

THE CP CENTER charges only minimum fees to those financially able to pay for the treatments given, Jenson pointed out. "The balance of financial needs must be met by public funds."

He added the campaigns are urgently needed to help the work of the center despite the fact that much of the services and facilities are donated by persons interested in the work.

The guest speaker also traced the achievements of the CP Center, saying that the center, when started about five years ago, had about 26 patients. "Now," he said, "the number has increased to well over 100."

THE OUTLOOK on cerebral palsy as a disease also has reflected a change, the speaker said. More and more people now realize, he said, that cerebral palsy is not hopeless and that in many cases conditions of patients are greatly improved and in some cases almost cured with proper treatment, re-education of affected limbs and rehabilitation by trained workers in this field as afforded through the Palsy Center in Kingston.

Guests at the meeting were Mrs. Donald Krum, Kingston; Mrs. Alonzo Lenza, Rosendale and Mrs. Sylvester Smith, Creek Locks. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Thomas Malone and Mrs. John P. Duffy, chairmen.

Plattekill

Plattekill Civic Group Will Meet

Plattekill, April 11 — Ted Wright of Gardiner will be the guest speaker at the Plattekill Township Civic Association, Inc. Friday, April 15, at 8 p. m. in Hasbrouck Hall, Modena.

His address will center on his recent visit to Tahiti and the showing of colored slides. Everyone in Clintondale, Modena, Ardonia and Plattekill is invited.

Mrs. Lee Rognon, president of the Gardiner Civic Association, is expected to be present and relay about efforts in that town to close the service offered this community by the New York Central Railroad freight station in Gardiner.

Mrs. Rognon requests as many taxpayers as possible to attend the meeting of the Town of Plattekill Town Board in the Modena town hall Wednesday, April 13, 8 p. m. Bids are to be opened on supplying a new dump truck to the highway department. A civic committee report will be submitted to keep the members and friends of the Civic Association informed.

In reference to the road naming work as set up by the Town Board, Mrs. Rognon encourages all residents to cooperate and facilitate the road naming committee.

"Although we have differed in opinion on how to obtain a fair the equitable assessment roll in our township," said Mrs. Rognon, "don't let this cause anyone to believe that I as your chairman or our association has let up in efforts to secure the best possible solution to this problem in our town."

"We will not give up our efforts until we secure a fair and equitable basis for taxes on our property. I believe that the majority of our members are back of this civic program and I will continue to work for the success that will make the Township of Plattekill a nice place to live, work and vacation in."

To further the success of the organization, membership is always open and residents are always welcome to sit in an all meetings any time.

Refreshments will be served at close of business meeting.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug counter.

DICK KLEINER

Two [illegible] were eating lunch at Sardi's. Nobody was quite sure [illegible] everyone was staring. Nobody even looked at Terry Moore [illegible] at another table.

Terry, incidentally, scored heavily on a Theater Guild television show. The Guild claims Terry is quite a wonderful actress. "Because of that costume nonsense in Korea," a Guild spokesman says, people have the idea she's just a body, but she's really a good actress."

They're looking for a show to star her in next season on Broadway. And this summer she may do Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing" in stock.

Fred Astaire is one big name who won't do TV regularly. The star of the new film "Daddy Long-Legs," says his trade—dancing—prohibits such a career. "It would be too tough," Fred says. "If I was a singer, OK, I'd try it. But it takes me a couple of weeks to work up a new dance, so I'll never have a television show."

We have with us today either a very funny man who would like to do something serious, or a very serious man who is doing something funny. It's hard to tell.

This serio-comic fellow is Arnold Stang, currently employed as the stagehand-foil for Milton Berle on NBC-TV. He's been doing that for several years, and before then was the unforgettable Gerard with Henry Morgan. That's when most radio-TV fans discovered Stang, but even before that he was a serious Broadway actor. No comedy. Not even a snicker.

"Being funny is just another part," Stang says. "I'm an actor. I don't consider myself a comedian or a comic."

Off the TV screen, Stang is a serious man. His face, which he can contort for large-scale laughs, becomes scholarly. His voice, which is a pretty comic instrument, is used mainly to convey sober thoughts. It's the greatest transformation since Gypsy Rose Lee took pen in hand and became an author.

A very sophisticated Hollywood-Broadway performer went to see Tennessee Williams' "Cat On a Hot Tin Roof," and came away scandalized. The play has aroused a controversy because of a tendency to be dirty. This star said he was just glad he hadn't taken his wife and daughter to it, as planned.

The show has dropped an anecdote, incidentally, which Burl Ives told. This story, an old smoking-room joke, added nothing except trouble.

Off-Broadway, the Theater de Lys has come up with a very pleasant play about adolescence called "Teach Me How to Cry." The author, Patricia Joudry, (she used to write the Henry Aldrich series) has created some nice, normal high school kids, with abnormal parents. Unfortunately, in modern fashion, she avoids any clear-cut conclusion. Otherwise, a fine job.

Indian Ft. Knox

New Delhi, India (AP) — India had its own "Ft. Knox" during World War 2. Finance Minister C. D. Deshmukh has revealed that the Reserve Bank of India hid its gold in the hundreds-of-years old Moghul fort at Allahabad. The gold normally is kept at Bombay, but the city was considered open to sea and air attack. About 84 million dollars worth of gold was taken to Allahabad.

Twenty-four million Americans now living will die of cancer if present death rates from this disease continue.

THE MARQUEE

T.V. — STAGE — RADIO — RECORDS — PEOPLE

By DICK KLEINER

Two chimpanzees were eating lunch at Sardi's. Nobody was quite sure who, but everyone was staring. Nobody even looked at Terry Moore, a few feet at another table.

Terry, incidentally, scored heavily on a Theater Guild television show. The Guild thinks Terry is quite a wonderful actress. "Because of that costume nonsense in Korea," a Guild spokesman says, "people have the idea she's just a body, but she's really a good actress."

They're looking for a show to star her in next season on Broadway. And this summer she may do Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing" in stock.

Fred Astaire is one big name who won't do TV regularly. The star of the new film "Daddy Long-Legs," says his trade—dancing—prohibits such a career. "It would be too tough," Fred says. "If I was a singer, OK, I'd try it. But it takes me a couple of weeks to work up a new dance, so I'll never have a television show."

We have with us today either a very funny man who would like to do something serious, or a very serious man who is doing something funny. It's hard to tell.

This serio-comic fellow is Arnold Stang, currently employed as the stagehand-foil for Milton Berle on NBC-TV. He's been doing that for several years, and before then was the unforgettable Gerard with Henry Morgan. That's when most radio-TV fans discovered Stang, but even before that he was a serious Broadway actor. No comedy. Not even a snicker.

"Being funny is just another part," Stang says. "I'm an actor. I don't consider myself a comedian or a comic."

A Memorable Easter

By FRANK TRIPP

It was a lovely Easter morning many years ago that this happened. What I'd give to live it over I'll never earn in all my lifetime. I went to Easter morning service with my mother—and strange things beset me.

Easter breakfast at our house was a feast almost comparable to Thanksgiving. Mom made such wonderful deep fat fritters, we had such tasty sliced hickory smoked broiled ham, something the present generation of doped-up ham eaters never tasted—and home-made sugar-topped hot cross buns with fresh farm butter.

Eggs, at 12 cents a dozen, were served to order in any style: fried, poached, shirred, boiled or scrambled, big platters of them. it was a ritual which got Mom up at daybreak to make ready.

For it all had to be prepared, eaten, cleared away, the dishes, pots and pans washed and put away, and the long walk to Easter morning service negotiated before church time.

THIS PARTICULAR Easter, though still in short pants, I was going to wear my first derby hat. The derby was man's dress headpiece and they made cute little ones for boys. At last, I had one.

It rested safely on a closet shelf when Mom sent me down cellar for a few more eggs that she needed. I fetched them in hand and pockets.

Then came the feast, its finish, the final ear scrub, and we were off to hear the Rev. Mills' Easter sermon. Pagan that I was, this was the burden of the day to me.

I REMEMBER Mom's new Easter dress, how sweet she looked, and how I admired her. The hymns and the Easter collection were over, my precious little derby was in the pew beside me. The Rev. Mills was well into his sermon.

I put my hand in my coat pocket, and felt something round. I squeezed it; it crushed. I pulled out my hand, full of the round thing. And plunked a handful of dripping raw egg right into the lap of Mom's pretty new dress.

There was a ladies' room off the auditorium and there I was led, with no special tenderness. The events therein belied the glory of the day. I'd rather omit them.

We returned to our pew, all eyes upon us. I was reasonably restored to normal appearance, but there was a great wet spot on the front of Mom's skirt that never dried to normalcy, and was to haunt me for months as I passed the closet where it was consigned to oblivion.

I DIDN'T YET know that I had ruined Mom's dress as I moved outside for the ten-minute interval between morning service and Sunday School.

It was there that I learned how pride goeth before a fall, how happiness can suddenly be switched to deep sorrow, even on Easter morning.

My new derby topped my proud head when I joined the other pagan brats awaiting Sunday School. The jealous gang began to josh me.

"Look at the dude in the pot hat!" exclaimed Roy Roberts.

With that he knocked it off my head and, before it hit the ground, he put his foot through it.

The scuffle that followed tore two buttons off my also new coat and left me a mess.

Back home, Pop looked us over: Mom's dress, my derby, my coat. "Nice people down at your church," was his only comment.

Pop was not a churchman. His simple, practical Christianity—and I wish mine was half as sincere—was all in his great big, tender heart.

Oh, I tell you, that was a memorable Easter at our house. (Copyright, 1955, General Features Corp.)

'Flying Platform' Easy to Operate, Test Pilot Claims

Palo Alto, Calif., April 11 (AP)—The test pilot who first took off in a radically new wingless "flying platform" says anyone who can walk can fly it.

"You just lean the way you want it to go," said test pilot Phil A. Johnston of the "research tool" developed by Hiller Helicopters of Palo Alto for the office of naval research.

"I'd let my kids fly it. It's no trick at all," Johnston said.

Johnston's first flight was Jan. 15 in the new machine which looks like a flying manhole cover with guard rails. It is a literal flying saucer.

Hiller's development to date, said the office of naval research in the first disclosure of the new craft, "definitely has established the feasibility of radically simplified flight."

The "flying platform" works by a downward thrusting air stream generated by two counter rotating propellors. They produce balancing force, like a gyroscope.

TWO DUCTED FANS, presently powered by two small engines producing together less than 100 horsepower, suck in air through holes in top of the platform. The fans thrust air out of the bottom of the platform with great force.

How it takes off is as simple as that.

Ascent is controlled by throttle.

You steer by leaning the way you want to go.

What happens if the engines quit, however, is an obvious problem, too. Without the lifting air thrust, you drop like a brick.

Test flights so far have been little more than eight feet off the ground at the Hiler plant's testing field.

The Navy says further research and development "will be necessary before these principles can be applied to the production of military aircraft."

As Pegler Sees It

journalism although there may have been some as clever and violent around the turn of the century. McCormick soon had Field whining and Ickes' proposal to send him to prison as a traitor for publishing suppressed news was consistent with the conduct of the whole cabal.

Like Hearst in the first world war, McCormick took dangerous chances of extinction through a boycott by the Canadians who controlled, by sovereignty, his supply of newsprint. As Hearst had done in that earlier test, McCormick hammered away against the proposition that the United States was in danger of conquest by Germany and therefore should, succor Britain and France. The Canadian press and government relented in September, 1941 and the challenge was dropped.

McCormick was one of the first to unmask Roosevelt's New Deal and start the attack. He had turned from Herbert Hoover to Roosevelt in the 1932 campaign mostly because of Hoover's stand on Prohibition. But as soon as Roosevelt dropped his pretense of economy, on which he had campaigned, and the design of the Communist intrigue began to develop, McCormick began to punch. He never quit punching, whether at Roosevelt, Truman or Eisenhower, for mocking the letter and spirit of the American Constitution, until the day the last of the giants died.

When the annual Southeastern Regional Tournament begins in Miami Beach next Monday, you can bet that Billy Seamon will be on hand to defend two titles that he won last year. This tournament, one of the pleasantest in the tournament fiend's calendar, attracts players from all parts of the East, but it also gets very strong support from the local players, like Seamon.

The hand shown today was played by Seamon last year, helping him win the open pair championship. He got some help from his partner, Sol Mogal, in the bidding; but Seamon had to go it alone in the play of the cards.

West opened the king of hearts, and Seamon took it at once with dummy's ace. With any other lead the slam would have been unbeatable, for declarer could have given up a club trick to establish the jack of clubs for an eventual heart discard.

Seamon then led out six rounds of trumps, discarding two diamonds, a heart, and a club from dummy. He next took the ace and king of diamonds, followed by a diamond ruff. By this time the opponents had felt the pinch and had discarded all of the nonessential diamonds and most of the hearts.

Declarer now led his ten of hearts, throwing West into the lead. With only two cards left in each hand, West had saved the king and 10 of clubs; and he now had to lead up to declarer's ace-queen, giving him a free finesse and his slam contract.

West might have made matters more difficult by saving only the blank king of clubs for the end position. If he had done so, however, the discard of the ten of clubs and West's agitation would have given him away. Instead of executing the end-play, Seamon would have laid down the ace of clubs to catch the blank king.

The Greater the need for High Octane The Greater the need for TCP

Today's engines deliver more power than ever before—and with greater economy, too!

They're high compression engines. They're built to squeeze more power out of every drop of the high octane gasolines they require.

But high octane alone will not keep these engines delivering their full power. They must be protected against the harmful effects of deposits that build up in combustion chambers.

The reason is this:

When your engine warms up, these deposits warm up, too—glow red hot. And these glowing particles act like hot coals—ignite the gasoline mixture ahead of time . . . before the pistons reach proper firing position. This is called pre-firing and means that power works against you instead of for you.

In addition, these same deposits have another power-wasting effect: They foul spark plugs, causing your engine to miss.

Engineers will tell you there's nothing more wasteful of power and gasoline than pre-firing and spark plug "miss."

But there is an answer—there's one high octane gasoline that gives you all the advantages of high octane without the power-crippling effects of these deposits—Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP*.

TCP, the Shell-developed additive, fireproofs the deposits so that they no longer cause pre-firing. No longer can they glow red hot and ignite the gasoline mixture. And TCP stops spark plug "miss," too. Your spark plugs do the job they are supposed to do.

Start getting the full power built into your engine. Get Shell Premium with TCP. It's the most powerful gasoline your car can use!

A Memorable Easter

By FRANK TRIPP

It was a lovely Easter morning many years ago that this happened. What I'd give to live it over I'll never earn in all my lifetime. I went to Easter morning service with my mother—and strange things beset me.

Easter breakfast at our house was a feast almost comparable to Thanksgiving. Mom made such wonderful deep fat fritters, we had such tasty sliced hickory smoked broiled ham, something the present generation of doped-up ham eaters never tasted—and home-made sugar-topped hot cross buns with fresh farm butter.

Eggs, at 12 cents a dozen, were served to order in any style: fried, poached, shirred, boiled or scrambled, big platters of them. it was a ritual which got Mom up at daybreak to make ready.

For it all had to be prepared, eaten, cleared away, the dishes, pots and pans washed and put away, and the long walk to Easter morning service negotiated before church time.

THIS PARTICULAR Easter, though still in short pants, I was going to wear my first derby hat. The derby was man's dress headpiece and they made cute little ones for boys. At last, I had one.

It rested safely on a closet shelf when Mom sent me down cellar for a few more eggs that she needed. I fetched them in hand and pockets.

Then came the feast, its finish, the final ear scrub, and we were off to hear the Rev. Mills' Easter sermon. Pagan that I was, this was the burden of the day to me.

I REMEMBER Mom's new Easter dress, how sweet she looked, and how I admired her. The hymns and the Easter collection were over, my precious little derby was in the pew beside me. The Rev. Mills was well into his sermon.

I put my hand in my coat pocket, and felt something round. I squeezed it; it crushed. I pulled out my hand, full of the round thing. And plunked a handful of dripping raw egg right into the lap of Mom's pretty new dress.

There was a ladies' room off the auditorium and there I was led, with no special tenderness. The events therein belied the glory of the day. I'd rather omit them.

We returned to our pew, all eyes upon us. I was reasonably restored to normal appearance, but there was a great wet spot on the front of Mom's skirt that never dried to normalcy, and was to haunt me for months as I passed the closet where it was consigned to oblivion.

I DIDN'T YET know that I had ruined Mom's dress as I moved outside for the ten-minute interval between morning service and Sunday School.

It was there that I learned how pride goeth before a fall, how happiness can suddenly be switched to deep sorrow, even on Easter morning.

My new derby topped my proud head when I joined the other pagan brats awaiting Sunday School. The jealous gang began to josh me.

"Look at the dude in the pot hat!" exclaimed Roy Roberts.

With that he knocked it off my head and, before it hit the ground, he put his foot through it.

The scuffle that followed tore two buttons off my also new coat and left me a mess.

Back home, Pop looked us over: Mom's dress, my derby, my coat. "Nice people down at your church," was his only comment.

Pop was not a churchman. His simple, practical Christianity—and I wish mine was half as sincere—was all in his great big, tender heart.

Oh, I tell you, that was a memorable Easter at our house.

'Flying Platform' Easy to Operate, Test Pilot Claims

Palo Alto, Calif., April 11 (AP)—The test pilot who first took off in a radically new wingless "flying platform" says anyone who can walk can fly it.

"You just lean the way you want it to go," said test pilot Phil A. Johnston of the "research tool" developed by Hiller Helicopters of Palo Alto for the office of naval research.

"I'd let my kids fly it. It's no trick at all," Johnston said.

Johnston's first flight was Jan. 15 in the new machine which looks like a flying manhole cover with guard rails. It is a literal flying saucer.

Hiller's development to date, said the office of naval research in the first disclosure of the new craft, "definitely has established the feasibility of radically simplified flight."

The "flying platform" works by a downward thrusting air stream generated by two counter rotating propellors. They produce balancing force, like a gyroscope.

TWO DUCTED FANS, presently powered by two small engines producing together less than 100 horsepower, suck in air through holes in top of the platform. The fans thrust air out of the bottom of the platform with great force.

How it takes off is as simple as that.

Ascent is controlled by throttle.

You steer by leaning the way you want to go.

What happens if the engines quit, however, is an obvious problem, too. Without the lifting air thrust, you drop like a brick.

Test flights so far have been little more than eight feet off the ground at the Hiler plant's testing field.

The Navy says further research and development "will be necessary before these principles can be applied to the production of military aircraft."

journalism although there may have been some as clever and violent around the turn of the century. McCormick soon had Field whining and Ickes' proposal to send him to prison as a traitor for publishing suppressed news was consistent with the conduct of the whole cabal.

Like Hearst in the first world war, McCormick took dangerous chances of extinction through a boycott by the Canadians who controlled, by sovereignty, his supply of newsprint. As Hearst had done in that earlier test, McCormick hammered away against the proposition that the United States was in danger of conquest by Germany and therefore should succor Britain and France. The Canadian press and government relented in September, 1941 and the challenge was dropped.

McCormick was one of the first to unmask Roosevelt's New Deal and start the attack. He had turned from Herbert Hoover to Roosevelt in the 1932 campaign mostly because of Hoover's stand on Prohibition. But as soon as Roosevelt dropped his pretense of economy, on which he had campaigned, and the design of the Communist intrigue began to develop, McCormick began to punch. He never quit punching, whether at Roosevelt, Truman or Eisenhower, for mocking the letter and spirit of the American Constitution, until the day the last of the giants died.

France Launches Probe for Cause Of Fortress Fall

Paris, April 11 (AP) — The French government has launched an investigation into the causes of the fall of Dien Bien Phu almost a year ago.

The government's official gazette said a board of five officers has been set up to determine the responsibilities of all who took part in the battle that resulted in victory for the Communist-led Vietminh last May 7.

The fall of the fortress on whose fate the French had staked their military cause led to an armistice in the eight-year-old Indochina war and the loss of North Viet Nam to the Vietminh.

THE GOVERNMENT announced two months ago it was going to name an investigating commission at the request of Gen. Henri Navarre, commander in chief of French forces in Indochina when the fortress fell. Both Navarre and Brig. Gen Christian de Castries, Dien Bien Phu commander, have been attacked by the French press.

De Castries was captured when Dien Bien Phu fell and released four months later.

Gen. Georges Catroux is commission chairman.

Holy Cross Order At West Park Named Legatee

New York, April 11 (Special to the Freeman) — Under the terms of the will of the late Miss Bertha Gregory of New York which was filed for probate in Surrogate's Court here last week, the Order of the Holy Cross in West Park is a legatee and her home, "Windermere," at Cragsmoor, goes to a friend in New York.

The estate has not yet been appraised but is declared formally to be worth "more than $100,000."

The Order of the Holy Cross receives a bequest of $5,000.

Lillias B. Fonder of 1088 Park avenue, New York, is to inherit "Windermere."

A sister and other religious institutions share most of the rest of the estate.

Miss Gregory, who also lived at 1088 Park avenue, New York, died last February 28th.

Republican minority members with a research staff to check on how the city's $1,783,000,000-odd budget is spent. Morhouse's statement was in part another answer to Democratic claims that New York city is shortchanged in allocations of state funds.

The GOP chairman said the Legislature gave the city new taxing and borrowing powers totaling 60 million dollars this year.

Saying there has been an increase of 113 per cent in the city budget since the 1945-46 fiscal year, Morhouse declared:

"Despite a one-billion-dollar increase in the city budget in just 10 years, the public finds that crime is rampant and it isn't safe to walk on the street at night; enforcement of health and safety regulations for housing is lax; school facilities generally are disgraceful despite the fact that the city in recent years has had available more money to build schools than it has spent, and there has been a critical worsening in traffic congestion."

Nautilus to Test Speed on Trip

Washington, April 11 (AP)—The atomic submarine Nautilus will head out to sea soon to test her speed and stealth against the best of the navy's antisubmarine forces on a "shakedown" cruise of thousands of miles.

The big, 3,000-ton nuclear submarine came back into New London, Conn., late last week from a demonstration and test conducted for a navy survey board which approves new ships for acceptance in the operating fleet.

The Nautilus' crew already has sailed her more than 3,000 miles and dived almost 100 times. But most of this has been to test her mechanical performance for the electric boat division of General Dynamics Corp. which built her and for study by navy technicians.

The fall of the fortress on whose fate the French had staked their military cause led to an armistice in the eight-year-old Indochina war and the loss of North Viet Nam to the Vietminh.

THE GOVERNMENT announced two months ago it was going to name an investigating commission at the request of Gen. Henri Navarre, commander in chief of French forces in Indochina when the fortress fell. Both Navarre and Brig. Gen Christian de Castries, Dien Bien Phu commander, have been attacked by the French press.

De Castries was captured when Dien Bien Phu fell and released four months later.

Gen. Georges Catroux is commission chairman.

Defends GOP

Republican minority members with a research staff to check on how the city's $1,783,000,000-odd budget is spent. Morhouse's statement was in part another answer to Democratic claims that New York city is short-changed in allocations of state funds.

The GOP chairman said the Legislature gave the city new taxing and borrowing powers totaling 60 million dollars this year.

Saying there has been an increase of 113 per cent in the city budget since the 1945-46 fiscal year, Morhouse declared:

"Despite a one-billion-dollar increase in the city budget in just 10 years, the public finds that crime is rampant and it isn't safe to walk on the street at night; enforcement of health and safety regulations for housing is lax; school facilities generally are disgraceful despite the fact that the city in recent years has had available more money to build schools than it has spent, and there has been a critical worsening in traffic congestion."

Nautilus to Test Speed on Trip

Washington, April 11 (AP)—The atomic submarine Nautilus will head out to sea soon to test her speed and stealth against the best of the navy's antisubmarine forces on a "shakedown" cruise of thousands of miles.

The big, 3,000-ton nuclear submarine came back into New London, Conn., late last week from a demonstration and test conducted for a navy survey board which approves new ships for acceptance in the operating fleet.

The Nautilus' crew already has sailed her more than 3,000 miles and dived almost 100 times. But most of this has been to test her mechanical performance for the electric boat division of General Dynamics Corp. which built her and for study by navy technicians.

Will Air Views

Chicago, April 11 (AP)—Adlai Stevenson, the 1952 Democratic presidential candidate, will air his views on the Far East situation in a half hour radio talk tonight. It will be the first major address of the year for Stevenson and will be carried coast to coast by two networks, without charge, as a public service. Columbia Broadcasting System has announced it will broadcast the speech from 10 to 10:30 p. m. (EST). The National Broadcasting Co. has scheduled it from 10:30 to 11 p. m.

Fires Sweep Timberland

Bath, April 11 (AP)—Five hundred acres of Timberland in the nearby town of Thurston were swept by flames yesterday. Similar fires harassed firefighters in other parts of Steuben county.

Corsi Rejects

Dulles and high GOP officials protesting the action.

The league, claiming more than 50,000 members throughout New York state, is made up primarily of Americans of Italian extraction.

John J. Lamula, chairman of the executive committee of the league, joined Tufaro, a member of the New York State Republican Committee, in urging Eisenhower to order reinstatement of the Italian-born Corsi.

Tufaro and Lamula said in New York city that failure to reinstate Corsi would "lose the confidence of 1,400,000 voters of Italian extraction in the Empire state."

Holy Cross Order At West Park Named Legatee

New York, April 11 (Special to the Freeman) — Under the terms of the will of the late Miss Bertha Gregory of New York which was filed for probate in Surrogate's Court here last week, the Order of the Holy Cross in West Park is a legatee and her home, "Windermere," at Cragsmoor, goes to a friend in New York.

The estate has not yet been appraised but is declared formally to be worth "more than $100,000."

The Order of the Holy Cross receives a bequest of $5,000.

Lillias B. Fonder of 1088 Park avenue, New York, is to inherit "Windermere."

A sister and other religious institutions share most of the rest of the estate.

New Guided Missile

Stuttgart, Germany, April 11 (AP)—U. S. 7th Army defenses in Europe were strengthened over the weekend by arrival of a new "Honest John" guided missile unit. It landed at Bremerhaven. The unit to handle the surface-to-surface missile is the 6th Field Artillery Battery, commanded by Capt. Ernest W. Daniels of Enid, Okla.

MRS. AUSTIN D. CULLEN, the former Geraldine Gardiner of this city, whose wedding took place at Immaculate Conception Church, Easter Sunday afternoon. (Pennington photo)

Geraldine Gardiner, Austin D. Cullen Wed Easter Sunday

Immaculate Conception Church was the setting for the Easter Sunday afternoon wedding of Miss Geraldine Gardiner and Austin D. Cullen. The Rev. Joseph Sieczek officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving L. Gardiner of 85 West O'Reilly street. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Austin J. Cullen of 61 Maple street.

Miss Teresa Gehringer played organ accompaniment for the soloist Miss Eileen Reis in the selections Mother at Thy Feet, Ave Maria, and Panis Angelicus.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white nylon tulle and rose-point lace fashioned with a fitted bodice embroidered with iridescent sequins, small standing collar and a bouffant skirt of tiered lace terminating in a brush train. She wore a matching bridal cap to which was attached a four-tiered circular chapel length veil of French illusion.

The honor attendant was Mrs. W. Riseley, sister of the bridegroom. The attendants were the Misses Beatrice and Shirley Gardiner, sisters of the bride.

Mrs. Riseley wore a gown of maize nylon net and crystalette styled with a molded bodice, long torso and a bouffant floor length skirt. A Spencer jacket and a colonial bouquet with an afternoon veil completed her ensemble.

The bridesmaids wore gowns in lavendar in identical styling to that of the honor attendant.

Miss Mary Jane Kelly of this city was flower girl. She wore a gown of maize nylon sheer organza styled with a fitted bodice, short puffed sleeves and a net overskirt with gathered ruffle. She wore a matching sweetheart bonnet.

Harry Sills, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, served as best man. The ushers were Peter Wojcio and Donald Sills both of this city.

Bobby Sills and Mark Riseley, nephews of the bridegroom, were ringbearers.

A reception was held at the Capri Restaurant, Port Ewen, following the ceremony, for 160 guests.

The bride is a graduate of Kingston High School and attended Moran-Spencerian School of Business. She is employed at IBM Corp. in Kingston.

The bridegroom, a graduate of Kingston High School, served in the RCT Infantry Division in the army. He is employed at IBM Corp., Poughkeepsie.

Miss Tulu Stewart Weds Roland Berzal In Easter Sunday Ceremony in Saugerties

Saugerties, April 11 — Miss Tulu Nedra Stewart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Stewart Jr., of Cementon, was united in marriage to Roland T. Berzal, son of Mr. and Mrs. Salustiano Berzal of Main street, Saugerties, Easter Sunday at 3 p. m.

The double ring ceremony was performed at St. Mary's Church, Saugerties, by the Rev. Charles G. Burke, pastor.

The bride chose Easter as her wedding day to coincide with the 52nd wedding anniversary of her grandparents, Mrs. John C. Stewart Sr., of Saugerties and the late Mr. Stewart.

For the occasion the sanctuary was decorated with Easter lilies. Vocal selections entitled, Ave Maria and O Lord Most Holy were sung by Mrs. William C. Plimley, organist, who also played the traditional wedding refrains.

Gicen in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a gown of embroidered and pleated nylon tulle, matching fitted bodice with long tapered sleeves and a bouffant front skirt. The back skirt consisted of tiers of nylon embroidered tulle and pleated nylon terminating in a sweep train sprinkled with seed pearls and iridescent sequins. Her headpiece consisted of a dainty half hat with edges of pleated nylon tulle over lace with matching sequins and seed pearls supporting a fingertip French silk illusion veil.

She carried a cascade of white roses and white orchids showered with hyacinths and ivy and she wore a gold heart-shaped locket bearing a family tradition. Her gown was designed by her aunt, Mrs. E. V. Reynolds of Saugerties.

Miss Corinne Pysher of Easton, Penna., who served as maid of honor wore a petal pink floor length gown of crystalette and contrasting swept-back panel of red violet with fischu attached at top of bodice. Her headpiece was a picture hat of tulle and lace with velvet ribbon in petal pink and matching red violet. She carried a half cascade of pale pink carnations with matching red violet crystalette ribbon.

The bridesmaids included Miss Helen Pavlovich, Miss Arlene Dietz and Miss Charlotte Thorn all of Cementon and Miss Sandra Stoly of Oakledge Park, Saugerties. They were attired in gowns of similar fashion as the honor attendant. Two were in delicate maize with contrasting sweeping back panel of pineapple gold and two in lime green with contrasting sweeping back panel of emerald green. All wore matching picture hats styled in similar fashion as the honor attendants headpiece.

The bridesmaids carried half cascades two of which were pale yellow carnations with pineapple gold ribbon and two carried pale green carnations with emerald green crystalette ribbon to match gowns.

Brother of the bridegroom, Vincent Berzal of Main street, Saugerties served as best man. The ushers included Karl Kimble; brother of the bridegroom, Allen Berzal and cousin of the bride, Edward V. Reynolds Jr., all of Saugerties and Robert Carpenter of West Camp.

Following the ceremony a reception for 125 guests was held at the Flamingo Restaurant on the Saugerties-Kingston Road where music for dancing was played by Frankie Zano and his orchestra.

The bride, a graduate of Catskill High School, class of 1954, was employed with S. Berzal and Co., Inc., Saugerties.

The bridegroom attended Christian Brothers Academy in Albany and Long Island Agricultural and Technical Institute in Farmingdale, L. I. He is president and treasurer of Berzal Chevrolet Inc. in Catskill.

For the wedding journey by air to Castle Harbour, Bermuda, the bride chose for her traveling ensemble a three-piece suit of charcoal gray and white with contrasting accessories and a corsage of white orchids.

Upon return from the two-week wedding journey the couple will make their home at Malden-on-Hudson.

Cosmopolite Ludwig Bemelmans Finds Painting Is Really Fun, Relaxation

By MARIANNE DAVIS

Ludwig Bemelmans was a humorist even during his vacations at a summer resort in nearby Binnewater some years ago. Harmless but funny pranks were the specialty on those "quiet country evenings."

IN A RECENT interview in New York the celebrated author's blue eyes sparkled as he inquired about the "victims" of his pranks, friends from Europe and days on the staff of the Hotel Ritz-Carlton. The busy Mr. Bemelmans manages to contact those in New York city on his infrequent and often rushed visits.

W. M. Willy of Stokes Point, Fourth Binnewater, and New York, often visits with the Bemelmans. Ulster county friends who see him less often "because neither Pan-American nor TWA stop there on the way to where I am usually bound," include Ernest Bergman of Route 4, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Illert of Kingston.

If you are as cosmopolitan and genuinely interested in people as Mr. Bemelmans, making friends is simple.

THE AUTHOR with the true zest for living was in New York on a stopover between a trip to Texas and a projected visit to Europe. Though knee-deep in conferences with the publisher of his latest book, "To the One I Love the Best," he spared time to answer some questions.

"I was very good friends with Lady Mendl," explained the author of the amusing and lively biography." She had more drive than any other woman, or man, I've ever known," by way of footnoting her personality.

MR. BEMELMANS knew when he first met this fabulous woman that she would be subject of his book, now in the process of becoming a play, in collaboration with Charles MacArthur. Helen Hayes will probably play Lady Mendl, and according to current rumor, Cyril Ritchard, Charles Mendl.

Mr. Bemelmans met success in translating "Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep," into a starring stage vehicle for Frederic March and Florence Eldridge a few seasons ago. His appealing children's books, "Madeline" and "Madeline's Rescue," first choices on European book club lists, are to be a full length movie cartoon shortly. As a short feature, "Madeline" delighted audiences here in Kingston last year.

"I NEVER HAD lessons in painting," said Mr. Bemelmans "but practiced a little here and there in Europe as a boy." He indicated two paintings hung on the green walls of the studio, "I find it much easier to express this old house in Texas in a picture than to describe it in words. And this waterfront scene as well. Painting is relaxation and fun for me. Writing is a painful process of real labor."

The studio shows the author's choice in paintings by other artists. A Dufy shares space with a Renoir and a Caravaggio. While another Bemelmans original leans against a chair.

A STARTLING decoration is the Ecuadorean altar piece suspended on a long chain from the high ceiling. "Quilted on the bottom to prevent tall people from scraping their heads," is charming Mrs. Bemelmans' explanation. A mirror with a hand-carved frame from Ecuador, and a sword "a present from Luis Dominguin, the famous Spanish bullfighter," are other souvenirs, Bemelmans-style, from his world travels.

LUDWIG BEMELMANS

To a question by the interviewer, (avid reader of all Bemelmans travel stories and books), "I never travel in orthodox fashion. I am a painter. I see things as pictures. I never stay at tourist hotels. Instead of going to newspaper people," with a sly glance over his shoulder, "I go to the law and courts for news and leads."

AND BY WAY of concluding his method of getting "different" views of travel in familiar places," I follow dogs and curious people."

And there you have the Bemelmans formula. For successful authors only.

It works for travel in this country as well as abroad. Of Texas, Mr. Bemelmans observes, "No one brags about money there. They are very nice people showing tremendous hospitality. They are homier, like Brooklyn people. And very religious. There are so many churches there."

Besides authoring and painting, Mr. Bemelmans is looking for a good chef for his bistro in Paris, La Colombe. Which cannot serve anything but liquid refreshment to the patrons at the present.

FASCINATION with the quaint old house, shown in a painting in the studio, prompted obtaining the site of the bistro.

The Bemelmans' lovely daughter, Barbara, was a companion on many trips abroad with the author. The heroine of several books and numerous stories, she now prefers her studies at American University, Washington, D. C. and riding to traveling. A very pleased and proud parent pointed to the wall covered with jumping medals won by the talented girl in horse shows throughout the country.

MRS. BEMELMANS, who was working on her Ph.D. at Columbia University, stayed home from trips abroad to study and take care of their dog, Kitty, who lives in a "castle" in the apartment. She snared time to tour Texas with her author-husband.

"Let me show you something," and Mr. and Mrs. Bemelmans showed a steamer trunk standing in the corner of the bedroom, fully packed and alert.

"WHEN 'HOLIDAY' magazine buzzes," Mr. Bemelmans indicated a buzzer over the door, "I must be off in a hurry."

The world-traveler murmured something to the effect that this was not the model kind of life, to be always moving about. After England and a picture with Korda, it will be France then back to the U. S. And next winter, Mexico.

BUT THERE ARE everyday problems to be faced, even for world-famed personalities. After the author finished a hastily-typed letter to a friend he was unable to reach by phone, he asked for a special delivery stamp.

As petite Madeline Bemelmans unlocked a desk drawer and took out the stamp, she explained, with an affectionate glance toward her husband, "I have to do this, because Ludwig would put a special delivery stamp on everything."

Cancer kills more children between the ages of three and 15 than any other disease in the United States today.

The honor attendant was Mrs. W. Riseley, sister of the bridegroom. The attendants were the Misses Beatrice and Shirley Gardiner, sisters of the bride.

Mrs. Riseley wore a gown of maize nylon net and crystalette styled with a molded bodice, long torso and a bouffant floor length skirt. A Spencer jacket and a colonial bouquet with an afternoon veil completed her ensemble.

The bridesmaids wore gowns in lavendar in identical styling to that of the honor attendant.

Miss Mary Jane Kelly of this city was flower girl. She wore a gown of maize nylon sheer organza styled with a fitted bodice, short puffed sleeves and a net overskirt with gathered ruffle. She wore a matching sweetheart bonnet.

Harry Sills, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, served as best man. The ushers were Peter Wojcio and Donald Sills both of this city.

Bobby Sills and Mark Riseley, nephews of the bridegroom, were ringbearers.

A reception was held at the Capri Restaurant, Port Ewen, following the ceremony, for 160 guests.

The bride is a graduate of Kingston High School and attended Moran-Spencerian School of Business. She is employed at IBM Corp. in Kingston.

The bridegroom, a graduate of Kingston High School, served in the RCT Infantry Division in the army. He is employed at IBM Corp., Poughkeepsie.

Miss Tulu Stewart Weds Roland Berzal In Easter Sunday Ceremony in Saugerties

Saugerties, April 11 — Miss Tulu Nedra Stewart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Stewart Jr., of Cementon, was united in marriage to Roland T. Berzal, son of Mr. and Mrs. Salustiano Berzal of Main street, Saugerties, Easter Sunday at 3 p. m.

The double ring ceremony was performed at St. Mary's Church, Saugerties, by the Rev. Charles G. Burke, pastor.

The bride chose Easter as her wedding day to coincide with the 52nd wedding anniversary of her grandparents, Mrs. John C. Stewart Sr., of Saugerties and the late Mr. Stewart.

For the occasion the sanctuary was decorated with Easter lilies. Vocal selections entitled, Ave Maria and O Lord Most Holy were sung by Mrs. William C. Plimley, organist, who also played the traditional wedding refrains.

Gicen in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a gown of embroidered and pleated nylon tulle, matching fitted bodice with long tapered sleeves and a bouffant front skirt. The back skirt consisted of tiers of nylon embroidered tulle and pleated nylon terminating in a sweep train sprinkled with seed pearls and iridescent sequins. Her headpiece consisted of a dainty half hat with edges of pleated nylon tulle over lace with matching sequins and seed pearls supporting a fingertip French silk illusion veil.

She carried a cascade of white roses and white orchids showered with hyacinths and ivy and she wore a gold heart-shaped locket bearing a family tradition. Her gown was designed by her aunt, Mrs. E. V. Reynolds of Saugerties.

Miss Corinne Pysher of Easton, Penna., who served as maid of honor wore a petal pink floor length gown of crystalette and contrasting swept-back panel of red violet with fischu attached at top of bodice. Her headpiece was a picture hat of tulle and lace with velvet ribbon in petal pink and matching red violet. She carried a half cascade of pale pink carnations with matching red violet crystalette ribbon.

The bridesmaids included Miss Helen Pavlovich, Miss Arlene Dietz and Miss Charlotte Thorn all of Cementon and Miss Sandra Stoly of Oakledge Park, Saugerties. They were attired in gowns of similar fashion as the honor attendant. Two were in delicate maize with contrasting sweeping back panel of pineapple gold and two in lime green with contrasting sweeping back panel of emerald green. All wore matching picture hats styled in similar fashion as the honor attendants headpiece.

The bridesmaids carried half cascades two of which were pale yellow carnations with pineapple gold ribbon and two carried pale green carnations with emerald green crystalette ribbon to match gowns.

Brother of the bridegroom, Vincent Berzal of Main street, Saugerties served as best man. The ushers included Karl Kimble; brother of the bridegroom, Allen Berzal and cousin of the bride, Edward V. Reynolds Jr., all of Saugerties and Robert Carpenter of West Camp.

Following the ceremony a reception for 125 guests was held at the Flamingo Restaurant on the Saugerties-Kingston Road where music for dancing was played by Frankie Zano and his orchestra.

The bride, a graduate of Catskill High School, class of 1954, was employed with S. Berzal and Co., Inc., Saugerties.

The bridegroom attended Christian Brothers Academy in Albany and Long Island Agricultural and Technical Institute in Farmingdale, L. I. He is president and treasurer of Berzal Chevrolet Inc. in Catskill.

For the wedding journey by air to Castle Harbour, Bermuda, the bride chose for her traveling ensemble a three-piece suit of charcoal gray and white with contrasting accessories and a corsage of white orchids.

Upon return from the two-week wedding journey the couple will make their home at Malden-on-Hudson.

Cosmopolite Ludwig Bemelmans Finds Painting Is Really Fun, Relaxation

By MARIANNE DAVIS

Ludwig Bemelmans was a humorist even during his vacations at a summer resort in nearby Binnewater some years ago. Harmless but funny pranks were the specialty on those "quiet country evenings."

IN A RECENT interview in New York the celebrated author's blue eyes sparkled as he inquired about the "victims" of his pranks, friends from Europe and days on the staff of the Hotel Ritz-Carlton. The busy Mr. Bemelmans manages to contact those in New York city on his infrequent and often rushed visits.

W. M. Willy of Stokes Point, Fourth Binnewater, and New York, often visits with the Bemelmans. Ulster county friends who see him less often "because neither Pan-American nor TWA stop there on the way to where I am usually bound," include Ernest Bergman of Route 4, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Illert of Kingston.

If you are as cosmopolitan and genuinely interested in people as Mr. Bemelmans, making friends is simple.

THE AUTHOR with the true zest for living was in New York on a stopover between a trip to Texas and a projected visit to Europe. Though knee-deep in conferences with the publisher of his latest book, "To the One I Love the Best," he spared time to answer some questions.

"I was very good friends with Lady Mendl," explained the author of the amusing and lively biography." She had more drive than any other woman, or man, I've ever known," by way of footnoting her personality.

MR. BEMELMANS knew when he first met this fabulous woman that she would be subject of his book, now in the process of becoming a play, in collaboration with Charles MacArthur. Helen Hayes will probably play Lady Mendl, and according to current rumor, Cyril Ritchard, Charles Mendl.

Mr. Bemelmans met success in translating "Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep," into a starring stage vehicle for Frederic March and Florence Eldridge a few seasons ago. His appealing children's books, "Madeline" and "Madeline's Rescue," first choices on European book club lists, are to be a full length movie cartoon shortly. As a short feature, "Madeline" delighted audiences here in Kingston last year.

"I NEVER HAD lessons in painting," said Mr. Bemelmans "but practiced a little here and there in Europe as a boy." He indicated two paintings hung on the green walls of the studio, "I find it much easier to express this old house in Texas in a picture than to describe it in words. And this waterfront scene as well. Painting is relaxation and fun for me. Writing is a painful process of real labor."

The studio shows the author's choice in paintings by other artists. A Dufy shares space with a Renoir and a Caravaggio. While another Bemelmans original leans against a chair.

A STARTLING decoration is the Ecuadorean altar piece suspended on a long chain from the high ceiling. "Quilted on the bottom to prevent tall people from scraping their heads," is charming Mrs. Bemelmans' explanation. A mirror with a hand-carved frame from Ecuador, and a sword "a present from Luis Dominguin, the famous Spanish bullfighter," are other souvenirs, Bemelmans-style, from his world travels.

LUDWIG BEMELMANS

To a question by the interviewer, (avid reader of all Bemelmans travel stories and books), "I never travel in orthodox fashion. I am a painter. I see things as pictures. I never stay at tourist hotels. Instead of going to newspaper people," with a sly glance over his shoulder, "I go to the law and courts for news and leads."

AND BY WAY of concluding his method of getting "different" views of travel in familiar places," I follow dogs and curious people."

And there you have the Bemelmans formula. For successful authors only.

It works for travel in this country as well as abroad. Of Texas, Mr. Bemelmans observes, "No one brags about money there. They are very nice people showing tremendous hospitality. They are homier, like Brooklyn people. And very religious. There are so many churches there."

Besides authoring and painting, Mr. Bemelmans is looking for a good chef for his bistro in Paris, La Colombe. Which cannot serve anything but liquid refreshment to the patrons at the present.

FASCINATION with the quaint old house, shown in a painting in the studio, prompted obtaining the site of the bistro.

The Bemelmans' lovely daughter, Barbara, was a companion on many trips abroad with the author. The heroine of several books and numerous stories, she now prefers her studies at American University, Washington, D. C. and riding to traveling. A very pleased and proud parent pointed to the wall covered with jumping medals won by the talented girl in horse shows throughout the country.

MRS. BEMELMANS, who was working on her Ph.D. at Columbia University, stayed home from trips abroad to study and take care of their dog, Kitty, who lives in a "castle" in the apartment. She snared time to tour Texas with her author-husband.

"Let me show you something," and Mr. and Mrs. Bemelmans showed a steamer trunk standing in the corner of the bedroom, fully packed and alert.

"WHEN 'HOLIDAY' magazine buzzes," Mr. Bemelmans indicated a buzzer over the door, "I must be off in a hurry."

The world-traveler murmured something to the effect that this was not the model kind of life, to be always moving about. After England and a picture with Korda, it will be France then back to the U. S. And next winter, Mexico.

BUT THERE ARE everyday problems to be faced, even for world-famed personalities. After the author finished a hastily-typed letter to a friend he was unable to reach by phone, he asked for a special delivery stamp.

As petite Madeline Bemelmans unlocked a desk drawer and took out the stamp, she explained, with an affectionate glance toward her husband, "I have to do this, because Ludwig would put a special delivery stamp on everything."

World to Know

Couldn't the vaccine be put on the market right away?

As a father himself, Dr. Salk was inclined to hurry.

But as a scientist he was forced to move slowly.

His working schedule was rigorous—18, sometimes 24 hours a day. He had to be careful, methodical, deliberate.

Testing animals in a laboratory was one thing. Before he could test the vaccine on children, a long, long bridge had to be crossed.

THE VACCINE had to be effective — and safe beyond any doubt. Possible harmful side effects had to be checked and rechecked.

It was scientific checking. There couldn't be any shortcuts. One step had to follow another.

Dr. Salk's friends know the brilliant researcher can't be hurried. One of them says:

"He is one of the clearest, most deliberate thinkers I've ever known. He has great emotional stability. You can bet he won't push his work one second faster than it is absolutely safe to do."

His alert dark eyes look out sharply from behind rimless glasses. His high forehead is framed by thinning black hair.

HIS TOOLS—and his thinking—are always well arranged.

During the early testing of his vaccine on human beings, Dr. Salk observed:

A striking characteristic is his kindness and gentleness in dealing with children.

When he conducted trials with youngsters in Pittsburgh district schools before the nationwide test, Dr. Salk spent considerable time personally reassuring frightened first and second-graders.

Aware of his responsibilities but now cowed by them, this shy, intense man makes decisions only after careful thought. Then he doesn't brood over whether he made the right decision.

Asked by a newsman whether it took a certain amount of daring to progress from monkeys to children in his experiments, Dr. Salk replied:

"I have the courage of my convictions. I couldn't do it unless I was more critical of myself than others are of me. It is courage based on confidence, not daring, and its confidence based on experience."

DR. SALK TYPICALLY hasn't ventured a prediction on what tomorrow's report will show. But it's obvious he is sure the vaccine is a success.

In the experimental stages of the vaccine, doubt was expressed in some quarters as to the vaccine's safety.

Dr. Salk never doubted. His three sons were among the first to be inoculated.

Born in New York, Salk attended Townsend Harris High School, then reserved for exceptional students. At 15 he entered City College of New York, working summers as a boy's camp counselor and later as a lab technician.

HE GRADUATED in 1954 and studied medicine at New York University where he won successive fellowships in chemistry, experimental surgery and bacteriology.

Salk got his MD in 1934 and interned at Mt. Sinai Hospital, New York.

He always leaned toward research, beginning work on the influenza virus while a medical student. He picked it up again in 1942 when awarded a fellowship at the University of Michigan.

Along with one of his teachers, Dr. Francis—who evaluated field trials of the polio vaccine—Salk developed a commercial flu vaccine now on the market.

Dr. Salk came to Pitt in 1947 and continued his flu studies for a while before moving into the polio field in 1949. He financed his work through grants from the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

IN 1939 he had married Donna Lindsay, a native New Yorker and Smith College student majoring in social work. Like her husband, she was a brilliant student.

Dr. Salk hasn't had much time to spend with his wife and three sons, ranging in age from 5 to 11. "Not nearly enough time," he emphasizes.

Hobbies?

"My work is a very fine hobby," says Salk.

Regardless of what tomorrow brings, Dr. Salk is sure to be back in his laboratory shortly working as hard as ever.

He still isn't entirely satisfied with the vaccine. He wants to work out some details on dosage, spacing of shots and other fine points.

That's the way of scientist Salk.

Toothpaste was first packaged in collapsible metal tubes in 1892.

World to Know

Couldn't the vaccine be put on the market right away?

As a father himself, Dr. Salk was inclined to hurry.

But as a scientist he was forced to move slowly.

His working schedule was rigorous—18, sometimes 24 hours a day. He had to be careful, methodical, deliberate.

Testing animals in a laboratory was one thing. Before he could test the vaccine on children, a long, long bridge had to be crossed.

THE VACCINE had to be effective—and safe beyond any doubt. Possible harmful side effects had to be checked and rechecked.

It was scientific checking. There couldn't be any shortcuts. One step had to follow another.

Dr. Salk's friends know the brilliant researcher can't be hurried. One of them says:

"He is one of the clearest, most deliberate thinkers I've ever known. He has great emotional stability. You can bet he won't push his work one second faster than it is absolutely safe to do."

Salk talks rapidly and evenly in an incisive voice. He doesn't stumble for words or ideas.

His alert dark eyes look out sharply from behind rimless glasses. His high forehead is framed by thinning black hair.

He's meticulous, painstakingly accurate and neat in his laboratory, where these qualities are essential since Salk and his assistants often deal with live polio viruses.

HIS TOOLS—and his thinking—are always well arranged.

Most of the time Dr Salk is cool and objective. But he isn't immune to emotion.

During the early testing of his vaccine on human beings, Dr. Salk observed:

"When you inoculate children with a polio vaccine, you don't sleep well for two or three weeks."

A striking characteristic is his kindness and gentleness in dealing with children.

When he conducted trials with youngsters in Pittsburgh district schools before the nationwide test, Dr. Salk spent considerable time personally reassuring frightened first and second-graders.

Aware of his responsibilities but now cowed by them, this shy, intense man makes decisions only after careful thought. Then he doesn't brood over whether he made the right decision.

Asked by a newsman whether it took a certain amount of daring to progress from monkeys to children in his experiments, Dr. Salk replied:

"I have the courage of my convictions. I couldn't do it unless I was more critical of myself than others are of me. It is courage based on confidence, not daring, and its confidence based on experience."

DR. SALK TYPICALLY hasn't ventured a prediction on what tomorrow's report will show. But it's obvious he is sure the vaccine is a success.

In the experimental stages of the vaccine, doubt was expressed in some quarters as to the vaccine's safety.

Dr. Salk never doubted. His three sons were among the first to be inoculated.

Born in New York, Salk attended Townsend Harris High School, then reserved for exceptional students. At 15 he entered City College of New York, working summers as a boy's camp counselor and later as a lab technician.

HE GRADUATED in 1954 and studied medicine at New York University where he won successive fellowships in chemistry, experimental surgery and bacteriology.

Salk got his MD in 1934 and interned at Mt. Sinai Hospital, New York.

He always leaned toward research, beginning work on the influenza virus while a medical student. He picked it up again in 1942 when awarded a fellowship at the University of Michigan.

Along with one of his teachers, Dr. Francis—who evaluated field trials of the polio vaccine—Salk developed a commercial flu vaccine now on the market.

Dr. Salk came to Pitt in 1947 and continued his flu studies for a while before moving into the polio field in 1949. He financed his work through grants from the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

IN 1939 he had married Donna Lindsay, a native New Yorker and Smith College student majoring in social work. Like her husband, she was a brilliant student.

Dr. Salk hasn't had much time to spend with his wife and three sons, ranging in age from 5 to 11. "Not nearly enough time," he emphasizes.

Hobbies?

"My work is a very fine hobby," says Salk.

Regardless of what tomorrow brings, Dr. Salk is sure to be back in his laboratory shortly working as hard as ever.

He still isn't entirely satisfied with the vaccine. He wants to work out some details on dosage, spacing of shots and other fine points.

That's the way of scientist Salk.

Toothpaste was first packaged in collapsible metal tubes in 1892.

Harry Grayson Picks Cleveland, Milwaukee for '55 Pennants

By HARRY GRAYSON
(NEA Sports Editor)

New York (NEA)—Who do you like in the baseball races?

A lot of things can happen over a stretch of 154 games, but this is the open season for sticking out red necks, and this is the way they look to an old handicapper after a tour of the training fronts.

NATIONAL	AMERICAN
Milwaukee Braves	Cleveland Indians
Brooklyn Dodgers	New York Yankees
New York Giants	Chicago White Sox
St. Louis Cardinals	Detroit Tigers
Philadelphia Phils	Boston Red Sox
Cincinnati Redlegs	Washington Senators
Chicago Cubs	Baltimore Orioles
Pittsburgh Pirates	Kansas City Athletics

THE BRAVES, IN THEIR third season at Milwaukee are picked for a number of strong reasons. Observed at Bradenton, Fla., Charley Grimm's team semed headed for a big year, mainly because of Henry Aaron, Ed Mathews and a big and deep pitching staff. Look for Aaron, a .280 hitter last year, to have the kind of season they pay off on. Mathews hit 40 home runs and was at .290 when things ended. He could be far better this time out. The pitching—Warren Spahn, Gene Conley, Lew Burdette, Bob Buhl, et al—is winning stuff.

It will not be a breeze, however, for the entire league is solidly balanced, with the World Champion Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers making it close.

THE AMERICAN LEAGUE is different. Cleveland's Indians won 111 games last year, exclusive of the World Series, and they have added Herb Score, a southpaw who should win a bundle. To this deep-thinking expert, it means a runaway.

Cleveland, with its overpowering hurling, figures to almost shut out the American League's five have-nots. The Yankees and White Sox don't have the depth to do this. Each time they drop a game to, say Boston, it will be simply handing Cleveland another length lead.

HAVING ESTABLISHED THE winners, we'll turn to the also-rans in the National League. Brooklyn made it close enough against the Giants last year with Roy Campanella and Don Newcombe supposedly in shape. Walt Alston's club figures to top the Giants this year.

This does not mean that Brooklyn has the overall depth to handle the Braves. Plus the fact that Milwaukee's Conley merely has to toss his glove onto the field and the Bums are beaten.

The Giants seem to rise and fall on Alvin Dark's opinion. Last year he said they'd win if second baseman Davey Williams' back held up. It did. This year he said the Polo Grounders needed another right-handed pitcher. They don't have it. So despite Willie Mays, the Giants are rated third.

THE CARDINALS ARE IMPROVED and with Stan Musial always are tough. Ken Boyer at third and Bill Virdon in the outfield help. But once past Harvey Haddix and Brooks Lawrence, the pitching bogs down.

The Phillies once had two hurlers, but with Curt Simmons apparently shot, only Robin Roberts is left to front for an outfit which can't get the big runs for you.

If Birdie Tebbetts has even one major league pitcher, his Ted Kluszewski-led Murderers' Row would be awesome. But Birdie doesn't have any hurling at all.

The Cubs suffered badly when Solly Drake, the man counted on to solidify a poor outfield, snapped his ankle. That leaves only Hank Sauer as an established ballplayer out there.

PITTSBURGH IS RATED LAST, but the Bucs would be fifth place stuff in the AL. If second baseman Gene Freese' knees hold up, he and Dick Groat, at short, will throw out more guys than a night club bouncer.

In the American League, Casey Stengel will look for another flag, but once past Ed Ford and Bob Grim—and Ed Lopat's once-a-weeker—he doesn't have the consistent hurling to do it.

Marty Marion's White Sox rely on Walt Dropo to bat in runs and George Kell and Ferris Fain to get on base. Dropo is inconsistent. And Virgil Trucks, the hoped-for 20-game right hander, is a year older.

After these two teams, we come upon the most incredible collection of nothing the AL has seen in its history. Detroit and Boston, now with Ted Williams appearing out, have holes. Washington has Charley Dressen—and a lot of misused Spanish. Baltimore's Paul Richards made a big trade and so far nothing but headaches have developed from it.

We hear a rumor than Kansas City owner, Arnold Johnson, doesn't move without consulting the Yankee front office. Well, the Yankees will have trouble of their own this year. And the Athletics will be a sight to see.

So, there you are. It's Cleveland and Milwaukee. We'll hold a post-mortem in the fall.

Red Wings Near Hockey Title; Howe Sets Mark

Detroit, April 11 (AP)—The Red Wings headed back to Montreal today, intent on wrapping up the Stanley Cup championship by cracking the home ice "jinx" which has dominated the post-season playoff.

So far the series has followed a win-at-home pattern, with Detroit taking three games on its own ice and Montreal two.

The Red Wings pulled ahead in the best-of-seven set last night by trouncing the Canadiens, 5-1, as Gordie Howe scored three goals to set a playoff record for total points. Howe has 19 points, one more than the mark set by Montreal's Toe Blake in 1944.

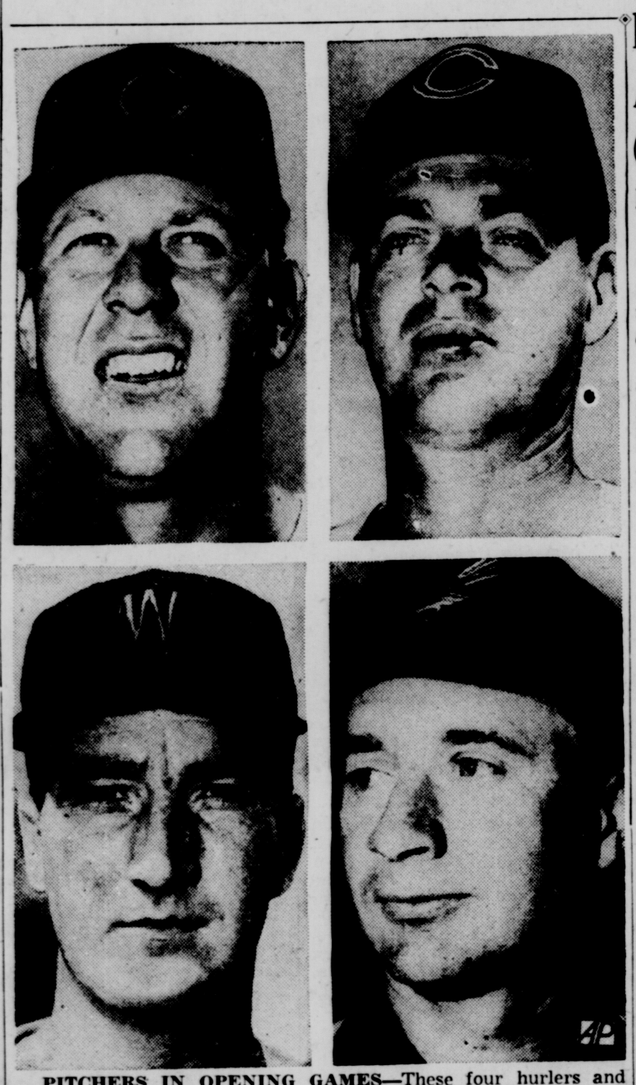
Weather Was Beautiful, but Trout Were Absent



PITCHERS IN OPENING GAMES—These four hurlers and their teams have to go to work a day earlier than the rest of the major leaguers as 1955 season opens. Scheduled to pitch in American and National League openers at Cincinnati and Washington, D. C., (April 11) are: Bob Rush, top left, Chicago Cubs; Art Fowler, top right, Cincinnati Redlegs, in NL opener at Cincinnati; Bob Porterfield, bottom left, Washington Nationals; and Lou Kretlow, bottom right, Baltimore Orioles, in AL opener in nation's capital. All are righthanders. (AP Wirephoto)

Knight, Merritt Among Few to Get Creel Limit

Hurley Youth Lands 18-Inch Rainbow

The weather was beautiful, but the millions of trout in Ulster county streams remained disgustingly aloof.

That, in a nutshell, is a fair appraisal of the generally disappointing 1955 trout season opening over the weekend.

As Dick Kahill of Rainbow Lodge put it:

"Most people I saw had very few fish, a majority of them had nothing."

KAHILL WENT ON TO say that while weather conditions were ideal, the water was still too cold because of large quantities of snow that remain in the hills.

Both Kahill and Ray Tillson, who operates the fish and tackle shop at Washington avenue, were optimistic about the next few days, if the present nice weather continues. Kahill predicts sensational fishing within a week if atmospheric conditions remain unchanged.

Ed Gilligan, the Bearsville expert, told his readers that the bait fishermen did most of the scoring. The spinning reels were much in evidence, he added. However the spinning lures weren't taking fish. Good results of flies were the exception rather than the rule.

TWO OLD TIME baseball players — Jimmy Merritt and Preston Knight — were among the few anglers who bagged the creel limit of 10 fish.

Bob Johnson, 16-year-old Hurley youth, snagged an 18-inch Rainbow in the Esopus near Phoenicia and got his picture in the Herald Tribune.

Two good sized landlocked salmon were caught—a 5½-pounder in the reservoir and a 4½-pounder near the portal by an Orange county angler using small minnow.

Bard Presler of Marlborough landed a beautiful 24-inch Brown trout in the main stream.

A 4½-pound Rainbow was hooked at the portal near Shandaken but the lucky guy's name was not available.

WATER TEMPERATURE in the Esopus Sunday at 10 a. m. was a cool 38 degrees, Kahill reported. Early morning temperatures of 60 or better this morning, however, gave rise to hopes for better luck. Ray Tillson said he would give it a try with flies today.

A quick capsule: There was too much cold water, too few trout and there is still considerable snow to be run off. But by next weekend all these disappointments may be forgotten. And there's good fishing ahead!

Harry Grayson Picks Cleveland, Milwaukee for '55 Pennants

By HARRY GRAYSON
(NEA Sports Editor)

New York (NEA)—Who do you like in the baseball races?

A lot of things can happen over a stretch of 154 games, but this is the open season for sticking out red necks, and this is the way they look to an old handicapper after a tour of the training fronts.

NATIONAL	AMERICAN
Milwaukee Braves	Cleveland Indians
Brooklyn Dodgers	New York Yankees
New York Giants	Chicago White Sox
St. Louis Cardinals	Detroit Tigers
Philadelphia Phils	Boston Red Sox
Cincinnati Redlegs	Washington Senators
Chicago Cubs	Baltimore Orioles
Pittsburgh Pirates	Kansas City Athletics

THE BRAVES, IN THEIR third season at Milwaukee are picked for a number of strong reasons. Observed at Bradenton, Fla., Charley Grimm's team semed headed for a big year, mainly because of Henry Aaron, Ed Mathews and a big and deep pitching staff. Look for Aaron, a .280 hitter last year, to have the kind of season they pay off on. Mathews hit 40 home runs and was at .290 when things ended. He could be far better this time out. The pitching—Warren Spahn, Gene Conley, Lew Burdette, Bob Buhl, et al—is winning stuff.

It will not be a breeze, however, for the entire league is solidly balanced, with the World Champion Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers making it close.

THE AMERICAN LEAGUE is different. Cleveland's Indians won 111 games last year, exclusive of the World Series, and they have added Herb Score, a southpaw who should win a bundle. To this deep-thinking expert, it means a runaway.

Cleveland, with its overpowering hurling, figures to almost shut out the American League's five have-nots. The Yankees and White Sox don't have the depth to do this. Each time they drop a game to, say Boston, it will be simply handing Cleveland another length lead.

HAVING ESTABLISHED THE winners, we'll turn to the also-rans in the National League. Brooklyn made it close enough against the Giants last year with Roy Campanella and Don Newcombe supposedly in shape. Walt Alston's club figures to top the Giants this year.

This does not mean that Brooklyn has the overall depth to handle the Braves. Plus the fact that Milwaukee's Conley merely has to toss his glove onto the field and the Bums are beaten.

The Giants seem to rise and fall on Alvin Dark's opinion. Last year he said they'd win if second baseman Davey Williams' back held up. It did. This year he said the Polo Grounders needed another right-handed pitcher. They don't have it. So despite Willie Mays, the Giants are rated third.

THE CARDINALS ARE IMPROVED and with Stan Musial always are tough. Ken Boyer at third and Bill Virdon in the outfield help. But once past Harvey Haddix and Brooks Lawrence, the pitching bogs down.

The Phillies once had two hurlers, but with Curt Simmons apparently shot, only Robin Roberts is left to front for an outfit which can't get the big runs for you.

If Birdie Tebbetts has even one major league pitcher, his Ted Kluszewski-led Murderers' Row would be awesome. But Birdie doesn't have any hurling at all.

The Cubs suffered badly when Solly Drake, the man counted on to solidify a poor outfield, snapped his ankle. That leaves only Hank Sauer as an established ballplayer out there.

PITTSBURGH IS RATED LAST, but the Bucs would be fifth place stuff in the AL. If second baseman Gene Freese' knees hold up, he and Dick Groat, at short, will throw out more guys than a night club bouncer.

In the American League, Casey Stengel will look for another flag, but once past Ed Ford and Bob Grim—and Ed Lopat's once-a-weeker—he doesn't have the consistent hurling to do it.

Marty Marion's White Sox rely on Walt Dropo to bat in runs and George Kell and Ferris Fain to get on base. Dropo is inconsistent. And Virgil Trucks, the hoped-for 20-game right hander, is a year older.

After these two teams, we come upon the most incredible collection of nothing the AL has seen in its history. Detroit and Boston, now with Ted Williams appearing out, have holes. Washington has Charley Dressen—and a lot of misused Spanish. Baltimore's Paul Richards made a big trade and so far nothing but headaches have developed from it.

We hear a rumor than Kansas City owner, Arnold Johnson, doesn't move without consulting the Yankee front office. Well, the Yankees will have trouble of their own this year. And the Athletics will be a sight to see.

So, there you are. It's Cleveland and Milwaukee. We'll hold a post-mortem in the fall.

Red Wings Near Hockey Title; Howe Sets Mark

Detroit, April 11 (AP)—The Red Wings headed back to Montreal today, intent on wrapping up the Stanley Cup championship by cracking the home ice "jinx" which has dominated the post-season playoff.

So far the series has followed a win-at-home pattern, with Detroit taking three games on its own ice and Montreal two.

The Red Wings pulled ahead in the best-of-seven set last night by trouncing the Canadiens, 5-1, as Gordie Howe scored three goals to set a playoff record for total points. Howe has 19 points, one more than the mark set by Montreal's Toe Blake in 1944.

Knight, Merritt Among Few to Get Creel Limit

Hurley Youth Lands 18-Inch Rainbow

The weather was beautiful, but the millions of trout in Ulster county streams remained disgustingly aloof.

That, in a nutshell, is a fair appraisal of the generally disappointing 1955 trout season opening over the weekend.

As Dick Kahill of Rainbow Lodge put it:

"Most people I saw had very few fish, a majority of them had nothing."

KAHILL WENT ON TO say that while weather conditions were ideal, the water was still too cold because of large quantities of snow that remain in the hills.

Both Kahill and Ray Tillson, who operates the fish and tackle shop at Washington avenue, were optimistic about the next few days, if the present nice weather continues. Kahill predicts sensational fishing within a week if atmospheric conditions remain unchanged.

Ed Gilligan, the Bearsville expert, told his readers that the bait fishermen did most of the scoring. The spinning reels were much in evidence, he added. However the spinning lures weren't taking fish. Good results of flies were the exception rather than the rule.

TWO OLD TIME baseball players — Jimmy Merritt and Preston Knight — were among the few anglers who bagged the creel limit of 10 fish.

Bob Johnson, 16-year-old Hurley youth, snagged an 18-inch Rainbow in the Esopus near Phoenicia and got his picture in the Herald Tribune.

Two good sized landlocked salmon were caught—a 5½-pounder in the reservoir and a 4½-pounder near the portal by an Orange county angler using small minnow.

Bard Presler of Marlborough landed a beautiful 24-inch Brown trout in the main stream.

A 4½-pound Rainbow was hooked at the portal near Shandaken but the lucky guy's name was not available.

WATER TEMPERATURE in the Esopus Sunday at 10 a. m. was a cool 38 degrees, Kahill reported. Early morning temperatures of 60 or better this morning, however, gave rise to hopes for better luck. Ray Tillson said he would give it a try with flies today.

A quick capsule: There was too much cold water, too few trout and there is still considerable snow to be run off. But by next weekend all these disappointments may be forgotten. And there's good fishing ahead!

Wimpy's Down Cedaraps, 59-40, to Win Regular 'B' Title

Middlecoff Cops First Masters With 279 Total

Hogan Second, Snead Third

Augusta, Ga., April 22 (AP)—Cary Middlecoff won the 1955 Masters golf tournament by a record seven-stroke margin and he can give you a one-word explanation of his victory: "putting."

The dentist-turned-golf pro proved again what the experts always have contended—that no one can win the Masters unless his putting is superb.

Ben Hogan, winner in 1951 and 1953, wasn't putting with his usual accuracy this year and had to settle for second place—his fourth time in the runnerup spot. Ben remarked that he lost his best opportunity to overtake Middlecoff when he took three putts on three greens in the third round.

MIDDLECOFF'S 279 total was four strokes higher than the record Hogan set in 1953 but the seven stroke margin from his rounds of 72, 65, and 72 and 70 was the biggest ever.

The 34-year-old, 6 feet 2 Tennessean, who registers out of Kiamesha Lake, spoke of the battered putter he has been using since 1949 with special fondness.

"I'm gonna marry that putter," he said with a chuckle. "That's the greatest thing since the automatic starter."

Carey said he put considerable bigger grip on the handle of his putter for the first time a week ago.

"IT SEEMED IF I held it as loosely as I wanted to it would turn on me," he commented. "I like to hold my putter loosely. It works fine now."

Sam Snead, who won the Masters last year in a playoff with Hogan, matched Middlecoff's closing 70 and moved into third place with a 287. Two of the younger stars, Mike Souchak of Durham, N. C., and Bob Rosburg of San Francisco, tied with former U. S. Open champion, Julius Boros of Mid Pines, N. C., for fourth. They each won $1,333.33.

Middlecoff collected a $5,000 check for his triumph. Hogan got $3,125 and Snead $2,125.

Explosive 4th Quarter Earns Wide Margin

Smith Brothers Pace Big Victory

Wimpy's led all the way to defeat Back Cedaraps, 59-40, and win the YMCA "B" League's regular season championship Saturday night.

It was reasonably close for three periods, with Wimpy's ahead, 34-31, but a series of precision fast breaks accounted for 25 Wimpy markers in the fourth quarter and broke the game apart.

POST-SEASON playoffs get under way Tuesday night with Rapp's Juniors and Yellow Jackets playing off for fourth place.

Regular playoffs start Wednesday, as Wimpy's face Skyline in the 7 p. m. game and Back's take on the winners of the Rapps-Jackets contest at 8:30. Finals are carded for Saturday.

WIMPYS JUMPED to a 15-4 lead in the first quarter but were outscored in the next two quarters by Back's. Then came the 25-point explosion while the Cedaraps were canning only nine.

Jake and Beaky Smith not only paced the Wimpy scoring but also starred in rebounding and engineered the fast breaking offense at the finish. Beaky hit 19 points and Jake had only one less.

Jerry Kaplan scored 18 and Huyler Van Wagenen 10 for Back's.

SPORTS

By Charles J. Tiano
Sports Editor

It can't be postponed any longer and this is no time for those with weak stomachs.

If this be heresy as an old Yankee rooter, then make the most of it. But we're going along with Henry Grayson in picking the Cleveland Indians to repeat in the American League. And the Milwaukee Braves to dethrone the New York Giants in the National.

Just to keep it brief and spare the tears for such old Yankee stalwarts as Leo Pold, Paul J. Freer and others, the Indians picked up their pennant insurance in Ralph Kiner and Herb Score, the sensational rookie southpaw.

Kiner is in great shape and hustling like Hades. Score could be the greatest southpaw since Bob Grove and this isn't overlooking the Dodgers' Karl Spooner. The Yankees have Andy Carey, Bill Skowron and maybe Mickey Mantle on the upswing. And Yogi Berra is still around. But the Yankee pitching is suspect for the long championship haul.

Despite Willie Mays, it would surprise if the Giants repeated. Like the Yankees, their pitching is also suspect. And like the Dodgers they have some veterans who might crack up with alarming rapidity under the blazing July and August suns.

Milwaukee is deep in pitching talent and could get big years from Ed Mathews and Hank Aaron.

One solid vote for Cleveland. One wavering ballot for Milwaukee.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

It's hard to completely erase from mind the tremendous Kingston tournament finals between Sickler's Delivery and Monticello Vets. Latest to sound the huzzahs for the post-season classic is Lou Schafer, general secretary of the YMCA who is one of the shrewdest observers of basketball in these parts. "When I went home I told my wife 'I have just seen some of the best basketball played in Kingston in 10 years," Schafer told us. The former Y physical director who conducted the tournament before Andy Murphy took over, pointed out that Harry's Angels and Ketterson Motors of Newburgh hit seven straight baskets between them at the start of the overtime period. "And the shooting percentage of Monticello in the first period against Sicklers was phenomenal," he concluded. . . . Angie Ferraro, the kegler, enjoying the Miami breezes. . . . Harlem Globetrotters can't clown too much against the Colege All Stars. . . . Dick Hemric, ex-Wake Forest star, invariably breaks up the Trotters' baseball routine and Tom Gola, ex-La Salle quickly snuffs out Leon Hillard's zaney dribbling antics.

What's new with the City Baseball League plans for the 1955 season? That seems to be a pertinent question of the moment among local players. The league president, Fred Davi, who is up to his ears in the promotion of a boxing show here Thursday night, says he plans a meeting "next week." Unless the venerable twilight circuit organizes on a solid basis this season, don't be surprised if the mushrooming City Softball League appropriates much of its talent. Andy Murphy reports franchise applications for the softball league are at an all-time high. The 50 Club plans to repeat with the King and His Court in June at Dietz Stadium and is also considering an all-girls California squad. Unforgettable sight in Florida: the elderly dowagers at swank hotel lounges all gussied formal of a Friday evening . . . and adjourning to TV rooms promptly at 10 (EST) to expert bouts involving kids Costa, Martinez, Lopes or Maderos. Phoniest sport in Florida is jai alai but the tourist suckers keep coming on. Including this one.

Nats' Weird Hex Over Pistons Cinches Pro Basketball Crown

One of the oddest hexes in the sports world still is alive today and because it is the Syracuse Nationals reign as kings of the National Basketball Assn.

This refers to the weird mastery the Nats hold over the Fort Wayne Pistons on their home floor. In six years and 23 games — ever since they entered the league — the Pistons have been unable to win at Syracuse.

Yesterday the Nats perpetuated the hex in the seventh and deciding game of the NBA playoffs, beating the Pistons 92-91 for their first league title.

THE PISTONS, WHO won three straight over the Nats back home in Indiana, opened up like they were going to make up for all those non-winning years in Syracuse in one terrific burst. They built up a 41-24 bulge in the second period.

Then the Nats started chiseling away. They cut the margin to seven points at halftime. A see-saw struggle ensued in the second half until, with the score tied 91-all and 12 seconds remaining, speedy George King sank a free throw and then stole the ball from Andy Phillip as the clock ran out.

"I could have squeezed the air out of the ball when I got it from Phillip," King said. "I said to myself 'this is the ball game.' I like to throw the ball up to the ceiling I felt so good when I got it."

King and substitute Bill Kenville were the Nats' high scorers with 15 points apiece. Larry Foust paced the Pistons with 24.

The Nats made 40 out of 49 foul shots while the Pistons made 25 out of 34. Fort Wayne outscored the champions 33-26 from the floor.

Olson - Maxim Contest Biggest Bout of Week

Sugar Ray Robinson Is Also Scheduled

BY MURRAY ROSE
The Associated Press

Nearly three years ago the big name was Ray Robinson and a fellow named Carl (Bobo) Olson was trying to muscle the slick Sugar Ray out of his middleweight title.

Bobo didn't succeed that night of May 13, 1952 in San Francisco but he came close. The years have moved fast since then and time has a way of evening things.

This week in boxing, the headliner is the same Bobo Olson, now middleweight champion of the world and trying for bigger stakes — something that even eluded the great Robinson. An also-ran on the week's card is Ray Robinson, not so slick as in the past and trying to recapture the skill and speed that father time has taken away.

ON WEDNESDAY NIGHT in San Francisco's Cow Palace, the 26-year old Olson takes on Joey Maxim, the ex-light heavyweight boss in a non-title 10-rounder that will be telecast (CBS-TV, 10 p. m., EST) coast-to-coast. It's the fight of the week.

Balding Bobo has won 20 straight since Sugar Ray nipped him in their title fight. Over the same span, the 33-year-old Maxim has won five and lost three. All of the defeats were by Archie Moore, the present 175-pound champion. In his last two starts, Cleveland Joey whipped Floyd Patterson and Paul Andrews, two young 175-pound contenders.

Ironically, it was Maxim, then the light heavyweight champion, who last fought Robinson before Sugar Ray's two-year retirement. On June 25, 1952, Robinson came close to grabbing the light heavyweight crown but he succumbed to the heat in the 14th round. Ray quit then, but it was only temporary.

OLSON HOPES TO whip Maxim and earn a crack at Moore's title. The 5-10½ middleweight will spot the 6-1 Maxim about seven pounds—175 to 168.

The following night, Thursday, the 34-year-old Robinson faces Ted Olla of Milwaukee in the latter's home town. The 10-rounder won't be telecast. This may be the end of the trail for Robinson if he fails to do well against a so-so opponent.

EZZARD CHARLES, the former heavyweight king, isn't kidding himself. He's running out the string fighting for money. He'll make less than he'd hoped for tonight (Monday) in Edmonton, Canada, against Vern Escoe, one-time Canadian heavyweight champ. Escoe is subbing for strapping Johnny Arthur, the South African champ, who had to withdraw because of a virus infection.

The rest of the week's TV network bouts include:

MONDAY: New York's St. Nicholas Arena, welterweights Pat Lowry, Toledo, and Pete Adams, Newark, N. J., 10 rounds, 10 p. m., EST, Dumont-TV.; Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway Arena, welterweights Danny Giovanelli, New York, and Chris Christensen, Denmark, 10 rounds, 10 p. m. EST, ABC-TV.

Friday: Philadelphia Arena, middleweights Holly Mims, Washington, D. C., and Bobby Jones, Oakland, Calif., 10 rounds, 10 p. m., EST, NBC-radio-TV.

New All-Events Leader in State

Elmira, April 11 (AP) — The New York State men's bowling tournament moves into high gear again this week after a slack Easter week schedule that saw most of the top leaders unchanged.

Dick O'Donell of Wellsville took over the all-events handicap division lead from N. Robinson of Buffalo by knocking off 1,996 pins. Robinson's 1,992 puts him in second place.

Leading the actual divisions were: Kodak Park, Rochester, team, 2,930; Jim Schroeder, Buffalo, singles, 704; Ludy Villani and John Di Floria, Buffalo, doubles, 1,256; and Bob Clerc, Buffalo, all-events, 1,876.

The tournament runs through the week of May 30. Most of the more than $97,000 in prize money goes to the handicap leaders.

AMERICA'S GREATEST GASOLINE VALUE

Wimpy's Down Cedaraps, 59-40, to Win Regular 'B' Title

Middlecoff Cops First Masters With 279 Total

Hogan Second, Snead Third

Augusta, Ga., April 22 (AP)—Cary Middlecoff won the 1955 Masters golf tournament by a record seven-stroke margin and he can give you a one-word explanation of his victory: "putting."

The dentist-turned-golf pro proved again what the experts always have contended—that no one can win the Masters unless his putting is superb.

Ben Hogan, winner in 1951 and 1953, wasn't putting with his usual accuracy this year and had to settle for second place—his fourth time in the runnerup spot. Ben remarked that he lost his best opportunity to overtake Middlecoff when he took three putts on three greens in the third round.

MIDDLECOFF'S 279 total was four strokes higher than the record Hogan set in 1953 but the seven stroke margin from his rounds of 72, 65, and 72 and 70 was the biggest ever.

The 34-year-old, 6 feet 2 Tennessean, who registers out of Kiamesha Lake, spoke of the battered putter he has been using since 1949 with special fondness.

"I'm gonna marry that putter," he said with a chuckle. "That's the greatest thing since the automatic starter."

Carey said he put considerable bigger grip on the handle of his putter for the first time a week ago.

"IT SEEMED IF I held it as loosely as I wanted to it would turn on me," he commented. "I like to hold my putter loosely. It works fine now."

Sam Snead, who won the Masters last year in a playoff with Hogan, matched Middlecoff's closing 70 and moved into third place with a 287. Two of the younger stars, Mike Souchak of Durham, N. C., and Bob Rosburg of San Francisco, tied with former U. S. Open champion, Julius Boros of Mid Pines, N. C., for fourth. They each won $1,333.33.

Middlecoff collected a $5,000 check for his triumph. Hogan got $3,125 and Snead $2,125.

Explosive 4th Quarter Earns Wide Margin

Smith Brothers Pace Big Victory

Wimpy's led all the way to defeat Back Cedaraps, 59-40, and win the YMCA "B" League's regular season championship Saturday night.

It was reasonably close for three periods, with Wimpy's ahead, 34-31, but a series of precision fast breaks accounted for 25 Wimpy markers in the fourth quarter and broke the game apart.

POST-SEASON playoffs get under way Tuesday night with Rapp's Juniors and Yellow Jackets playing off for fourth place.

Regular playoffs start Wednesday, as Wimpy's face Skyline in the 7 p. m. game and Back's take on the winners of the Rapps-Jackets contest at 8:30. Finals are carded for Saturday.

WIMPYS JUMPED to a 15-4 lead in the first quarter but were outscored in the next two quarters by Back's. Then came the 25-point explosion while the Cedaraps were canning only nine.

Jake and Beaky Smith not only paced the Wimpy scoring but also starred in rebounding and engineered the fast breaking offense at the finish. Beaky hit 19 points and Jake had only one less.

Jerry Kaplan scored 18 and Huyler Van Wagenen 10 for Back's.

It can't be postponed any longer and this is no time for those with weak stomachs.

If this be heresy as an old Yankee rooter, then make the most of it. But we're going along with Henry Grayson in picking the Cleveland Indians to repeat in the American League. And the Milwaukee Braves to dethrone the New York Giants in the National.

Just to keep it brief and spare the tears for such old Yankee stalwarts as Leo Pold, Paul J. Freer and others, the Indians picked up their pennant insurance in Ralph Kiner and Herb Score, the sensational rookie southpaw.

Kiner is in great shape and hustling like Hades. Score could be the greatest southpaw since Bob Grove and this isn't overlooking the Dodgers' Karl Spooner. The Yankees have Andy Carey, Bill Skowron and maybe Mickey Mantle on the upswing. And Yogi Berra is still around. But the Yankee pitching is suspect for the long championship haul.

Despite Willie Mays, it would surprise if the Giants repeated. Like the Yankees, their pitching is also suspect. And like the Dodgers they have some veterans who might crack up with alarming rapidity under the blazing July and August suns.

Milwaukee is deep in pitching talent and could get big years from Ed Mathews and Hank Aaron.

One solid vote for Cleveland. One wavering ballot for Milwaukee.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

It's hard to completely erase from mind the tremendous Kingston tournament finals between Sickler's Delivery and Monticello Vets. Latest to sound the huzzahs for the post-season classic is Lou Schafer, general secretary of the YMCA who is one of the shrewdest observers of basketball in these parts. "When I went home I told my wife 'I have just seen some of the best basketball played in Kingston in 10 years,'" Schafer told us. The former Y physical director who conducted the tournament before Andy Murphy took over, pointed out that Harry's Angels and Ketterson Motors of Newburgh hit seven straight baskets between them at the start of the overtime period. "And the shooting percentage of Monticello in the first period against Sicklers was phenomenal," he concluded. . . . Angie Ferraro, the kegler, enjoying the Miami breezes. . . . Harlem Globetrotters can't clown too much against the Colege All Stars. . . . Dick Hemric, ex-Wake Forest star, invariably breaks up the Trotters' baseball routine and Tom Gola, ex-La Salle quickly snuffs out Leon Hillard's zaney dribbling antics.

What's new with the City Baseball League plans for the 1955 season? That seems to be a pertinent question of the moment among local players. The league president, Fred Davi, who is up to his ears in the promotion of a boxing show here Thursday night, says he plans a meeting "next week." Unless the venerable twilight circuit organizes on a solid basis this season, don't be surprised if the mushrooming City Softball League appropriates much of its talent. Andy Murphy reports franchise applications for the softball league are at an all-time high. The 50 Club plans to repeat with the King and His Court in June at Dietz Stadium and is also considering an all-girls California squad. Unforgettable sight in Florida: the elderly dowagers at swank hotel lounges all gussied formal of a Friday evening . . . and adjourning to TV rooms promptly at 10 (EST) to expert bouts involving kids Costa, Martinez, Lopes or Maderos. Phoniest sport in Florida is jai alai but the tourist suckers keep coming on. Including this one.

Nats' Weird Hex Over Pistons Cinches Pro Basketball Crown

One of the oddest hexes in the sports world still is alive today and because it is the Syracuse Nationals reign as kings of the National Basketball Assn.

This refers to the weird mastery the Nats hold over the Fort Wayne Pistons on their home floor. In six years and 23 games — ever since they entered the league — the Pistons have been unable to win at Syracuse.

Yesterday the Nats perpetuated the hex in the seventh and deciding game of the NBA playoffs, beating the Pistons 92-91 for their first league title.

THE PISTONS, WHO won three straight over the Nats back home in Indiana, opened up like they were going to make up for all those non-winning years in Syracuse in one terrific burst. They built up a 41-24 bulge in the second period.

Then the Nats started chiseling away. They cut the margin to seven points at halftime. A see-saw struggle ensued in the second half until, with the score tied 91-all and 12 seconds remaining, speedy George King sank a free throw and then stole the ball from Andy Phillip as the clock ran out.

"I could have squeezed the air out of the ball when I got it from Phillip," King said. "I said to myself 'this is the ball game.' I like to throw the ball up to the ceiling I felt so good when I got it."

King and substitute Bill Kenville were the Nats' high scorers with 15 points apiece. Larry Foust paced the Pistons with 24.

The Nats made 40 out of 49 foul shots while the Pistons made 25 out of 34. Fort Wayne outscored the champions 33-26 from the floor.

HIGH-TEST
BLUE SUNOCO
gives you
PREMIUM PERFORMANCE
AT REGULAR GAS PRICE!

Test after test, verified by independent agencies, has demonstrated that High-Test Blue Sunoco gives you more miles per dollar than well-known premium-priced brands. Make your own 10-gallon test and you'll see why High-Test Blue Sunoco is . . .

FIRST CHOICE OF AUTOMOTIVE ENGINEERS

How Sun's one-grade policy gives you premium performance at regular gas price

Sun produces only one grade of gasoline—High-Test, Blue Sunoco. This one-grade policy results in savings on tanks, trucks, pumps, and other facilities. These savings are invested in research and new, improved catalytic refining processes in which Sun is years ahead of the industry. That's why Sun can give you a premium performing gasoline, High-Test Blue Sunoco, at regular gas price.

We save on tanks
We save on trucks
We save on pumps

You save every mile you drive with Blue Sunoco

Junks Are Shelled

Taipeh, Formosa, April 11 (AP) The Defense Ministry reported tonight that Chinese Nationalist guns on Quemoy heavily shelled 10 Communist junks last night and sunk two. A communique said the junks were observed near Tateng, a small Communist-held island between Quemoy and the mainland. The communique did not speculate as to whether the junks were carrying supplies or were on another mission.

Jacobson's Men's Shop Remodeled

Jacobson's Men's Shop, 39 John street, has completed remodeling its interior to provide greater space and a more modern layout in its salesroom.

Approximately 400 square feet of floor space was added by cutting through a partition to a room in the rear formerly used as an office and work room by the store. New racks for stock were installed.

IN THE EXISTING sales area, counters were removed so that an open appearance is presented and customers have easier access to the stock in line with the trend toward self-service merchandising.

With the addition of floor space, the firm announced it has expanded its stock of sport coats and slacks.

Established in the downtown section in 1888 by Max Jacobson, the men's store has continued in the family and is now operated by the founder's son, Ike. The business moved into its present quarters on John street in the uptown section in October, 1946. Steadily increasing business was given as the reason for the remodeling.

Mayor Will Go South

Mayor Frederick H. Stang said today he will leave tomorrow for Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., where he will spend a vacation of two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Caunitz, former Kingston residents. Mrs. Stang and their daughter, Marian will join the mayor on the trip.

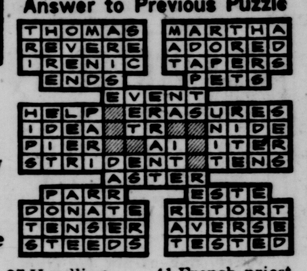
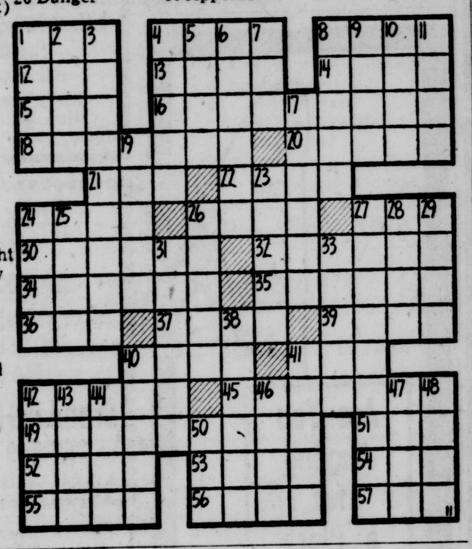
Answer to Previous Puzzle





Drive Continues Against Tax Evaders

Albany, April 11 (AP)—The state's tax chief says several cases have been turned over to prosecuting authorities in the current drive against tax evaders.

George M. Bragalini, president of the Tax Commission, said Saturday that the commission planned to be lenient with taxpayers who voluntarily disclosed past evasions.

He predicted that crackdown would bring in "tens of thousands" of new income-tax payers and millions in aded revenues.

The campaign will focus on previous years' returns as well as those for the current year, he said. Returns on 1954 incomes are due Friday.

First Shad Are Caught in Hudson

First catches of shad in the Hudson off Kingston Point were reported Sunday.

Frank Parslow, of North street, netted a 2½-pound buck at 6:30 a. m., and later in the day Louis Turck, of North street, fishing with Michael Turck reported catching a five-pound roe shad.

Enough shad should be caught by the end of the week to be available for area markets, the fishermen predict.

WCTU Forms Plans For May 5 Institute

The executive board of the Ulster County Women's Christian Temperance Union met in an all-day session recently at the home of Mrs. Raymond Hasbrouck, county president, in New Paltz.

Plans for the annual county institute scheduled in Ellenville May 5 were discussed.

Mrs. Hazel Wells, Riverhead, state vice-president, will be guest speaker at the May meeting.

Freed With Apologies

Vienna, Austria, April 11 (AP)—The Russians arrested Austrian Trade Minister Udo Illig yesterday after a charity balloon flight wafted him into their zone. They released him three hours later with apologies.

Income Is Reported

New York, April 11 (AP)—The New York Central Railroad reported today that for the 12 months ended Dec. 31 it had net income of $13,668,578, or $2.12 a share, compared with $44,776,407, or $6.94 a share, for the previous year. It was the first annual report of the new management which came into control last June 14 with Robert R. Young as board chairman. The report noted progress in improving and tightening up operations. Operating revenues during the year were $785,148,955 compared with $925,792,447 the previous year.

Roundup Nets 433

New York, April 11 (AP)—Police arrested 433 persons during the fifth successive weekend Manhattan roundup of alleged "undesirables," it was announced today. There were 122 arrests Friday, 236 Saturday and 75 yesterday. The smaller number of arrests yesterday apparently was because police were busy with Easter crowds and traffic. Among the charges lodged in the Manhattan roundup were disorderly conduct, begging, vagrancy, malicious mischief, peddling and dice playing.

Estimate Conservative

Washington, April 11 (AP)—The Justice Department says an estimate that some 200 treason cases might stem from the Korean war may have been "much too conservative." Asst. Atty. Gen. William F. Tompkins told a House Appropriation Subcommittee, in testimony released last night, that the department already is acting on 176 treason cases involving GI's captured by the Communists during the Korean fighting.

WOR Dispute Settled

New York, April 11 (AP)—WOR radio and television stations and the Musicians' Union, settling a dispute of more than a year, soon will sign a contract calling for employment of a musical staff of 16 including a conductor and manager. WOR and WOR-TV, which previously had a staff of 40 musicians, dropped the entire staff in February, 1954. Local 802 of the AFL American Federation of Musicians then picketed the stations.

Opera Singer Weds

New York, April 11 (AP)—Metropolitan Opera soprano Roberta Peters and Bertram Fields, a hotel executive, were married yesterday and left for a brief honeymoon in Nassau. The bride will rejoin the touring Metropolitan Opera Co., in Cleveland Saturday. The marriage was performed by Dr. Julius Mark in his study at Temple Emanu-El. Members of the immediate families attended the ceremony and a reception which followed.

Junks Are Shelled

Taipeh, Formosa, April 11 (AP) The Defense Ministry reported tonight that Chinese Nationalist guns on Quemoy heavily shelled 10 Communist junks last night and sunk two. A communique said the junks were observed near Tateng, a small Communist-held island between Quemoy and the mainland. The communique did not speculate as to whether the junks were carrying supplies or were on another mission.

Jacobson's Men's Shop Remodeled

Jacobson's Men's Shop, 39 John street, has completed remodeling its interior to provide greater space and a more modern layout in its salesroom.

Approximately 400 square feet of floor space was added by cutting through a partition to a room in the rear formerly used as an office and work room by the store. New racks for stock were installed.

IN THE EXISTING sales area, counters were removed so that an open appearance is presented and customers have easier access to the stock in line with the trend toward self-service merchandising.

With the addition of floor space, the firm announced it has expanded its stock of sport coats and slacks.

Established in the downtown section in 1888 by Max Jacobson, the men's store has continued in the family and is now operated by the founder's son, Ike. The business moved into its present quarters on John street in the uptown section in October, 1946. Steadily increasing business was given as the reason for the remodeling.

Mayor Will Go South

Mayor Frederick H. Stang said today he will leave tomorrow for Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., where he will spend a vacation of two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Caunitz, former Kingston residents. Mrs. Stang and their daughter, Marian will join the mayor on the trip.

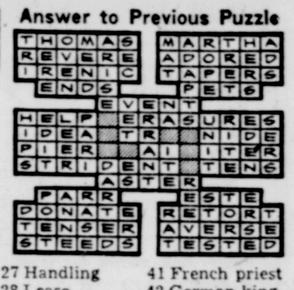
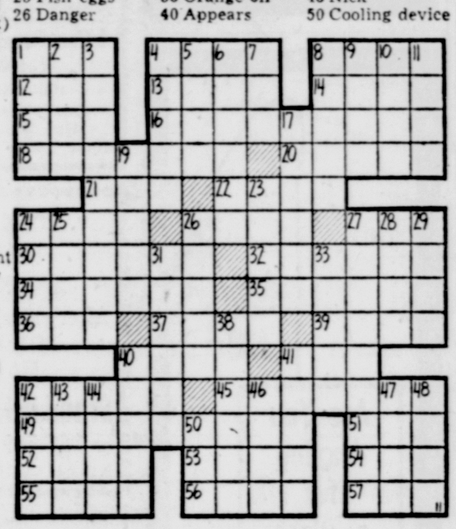
Answer to Previous Puzzle





Drive Continues Against Tax Evaders

Albany, April 11 (AP)—The state's tax chief says several cases have been turned over to prosecuting authorities in the current drive against tax evaders.

George M. Bragalini, president of the Tax Commission, said Saturday that the commission planned to be lenient with taxpayers who voluntarily disclosed past evasions.

He predicted that crackdown would bring in "tens of thousands" of new income-tax payers and millions in aded revenues.

The campaign will focus on previous years' returns as well as those for the current year, he said. Returns on 1954 incomes are due Friday.

First Shad Are Caught in Hudson

First catches of shad in the Hudson off Kingston Point were reported Sunday.

Frank Parslow, of North street, netted a 2½-pound buck at 6:30 a. m., and later in the day Louis Turck, of North street, fishing with Michael Turck reported catching a five-pound roe shad.

Enough shad should be caught by the end of the week to be available for area markets, the fishermen predict.

WCTU Forms Plans For May 5 Institute

The executive board of the Ulster County Women's Christian Temperance Union met in an all-day session recently at the home of Mrs. Raymond Has-Brouck, county president, in New Paltz.

Plans for the annual county institute scheduled in Ellenville May 5 were discussed.

Mrs. Hazel Wells, Riverhead, state vice-president, will be guest speaker at the May meeting.

Freed With Apologies

Vienna, Austria, April 11 (AP)—The Russians arrested Austrian Trade Minister Udo Illig yesterday after a charity balloon flight wafted him into their zone. They released him three hours later with apologies.

Income Is Reported

New York, April 11 (AP)—The New York Central Railroad reported today that for the 12 months ended Dec. 31 it had net income of $13,668,578, or $2.12 a share, compared with $44,776,407, or $6.94 a share, for the previous year. It was the first annual report of the new management which came into control last June 14 with Robert R. Young as board chairman. The report noted progress in improving and tightening up operations. Operating revenues during the year were $785,148,955 compared with $925,792,447 the previous year.

Roundup Nets 433

New York, April 11 (AP)—Police arrested 433 persons during the fifth successive weekend Manhattan roundup of alleged "undesirables," it was announced today. There were 122 arrests Friday, 236 Saturday and 75 yesterday. The smaller number of arrests yesterday apparently was because police were busy with Easter crowds and traffic. Among the charges lodged in the Manhattan roundup were disorderly conduct, begging, vagrancy, malicious mischief, peddling and dice playing.

Estimate Conservative

Washington, April 11 (AP)—The Justice Department says an estimate that some 200 treason cases might stem from the Korean war may have been "much too conservative." Asst. Atty. Gen. William F. Tompkins told a House Appropriation Subcommittee, in testimony released last night, that the department already is acting on 176 treason cases involving GI's captured by the Communists during the Korean fighting.

WOR Dispute Settled

New York, April 11 (AP)—WOR radio and television stations and the Musicians' Union, settling a dispute of more than a year, soon will sign a contract calling for employment of a musical staff of 16 including a conductor and manager. WOR and WOR-TV, which previously had a staff of 40 musicians, dropped the entire staff in February, 1954. Local 802 of the AFL American Federation of Musicians then picketed the stations.

Opera Singer Weds

New York, April 11 (AP)—Metropolitan Opera soprano Roberta Peters and Bertram Fields, a hotel executive, were married yesterday and left for a brief honeymoon in Nassau. The bride will rejoin the touring Metropolitan Opera Co., in Cleveland Saturday. The marriage was performed by Dr. Julius Mark in his study at Temple Emanu-El. Members of the immediate families attended the ceremony and a reception which followed.

Quakes Collapse Homes

Manila, April 11 (AP)—Widespread earthquakes today collapsed homes, split highways and reportedly injured an undetermined number of persons in the southern Philippines — already hard-hit by disastrous tremors April 11. There were no immediate reports of deaths. The April 1 quakes caused at least 432 deaths and left thousands homeless. Quakes of intensity three to six on a scale of ten panicked residents in nine cities, six of them on Mindanao, second largest island, Philippine News Service reported.

Amazing store demonstration proves new Devoe WONDER-1-COAT House Paint has double the hiding power of ordinary paint

The above figures for competitive two-coat paints and Devoe WONDER-1-COAT paint show the number of whiteness units per gallon — which indicates the comparative degrees of HIDING POWER! Devoe WONDER-1-COAT far surpasses all other paints!

COMPARED to the average of all other type paints, the hiding power of Devoe WONDER-1-COAT House Paint is more than double. We'll be tickled to show you a demonstration board (illustrated above) to show what hiding power is.

Briefly: we drop equal portions of leading white paints and Devoe WONDER-1-COAT — all on a dark board. Then we level out each portion to THE SAME THICKNESS. The result is startling! Only WONDER-1-COAT paint hides the surface completely. Only Devoe WONDER-1-COAT has enough whiteness units — and consequently hiding power — to completely cover in one stroke.

The above picture gives you only a bare idea. Come in and see the actual demonstration board itself. It will prove the magic of revolutionary new DEVOE WONDER-1-COAT as nothing else can. Come in soon, won't you?

Quakes Collapse Homes

Manila, April 11 (AP)—Widespread earthquakes today collapsed homes, split highways and reportedly injured an undetermined number of persons in the southern Philippines — already hard-hit by disastrous tremors April 11. There were no immediate reports of deaths. The April 1 quakes caused at least 432 deaths and left thousands homeless. Quakes of intensity three to six on a scale of ten panicked residents in nine cities, six of them on Mindanao, second largest island, Philippine News Service reported.

DEVOE WONDER-1-COAT HIDING SCORE 100%
Amazing store demonstration proves new Devoe WONDER-1-COAT House Paint has double the hiding power of ordinary paint
The above figures for competitive two-coat paints and Devoe WONDER-1-COAT paint show the number of whiteness units per gallon — which indicates the comparative degrees of HIDING POWER! Devoe WONDER-1-COAT far surpasses all other paints!
COMPARED to the average of all other type paints, the hiding power of Devoe WONDER-1-COAT House Paint is more than double. We'll be tickled to show you a demonstration board (illustrated above) to show what hiding power is.
Briefly: we drop equal portions of leading white paints and Devoe WONDER-1-COAT — all on a dark board. Then we level out each portion to THE SAME THICKNESS. The result is startling! Only WONDER-1-COAT paint hides the surface completely. Only Devoe WONDER-1-COAT has enough whiteness units — and consequently hiding power — to completely cover in one stroke.
The above picture gives you only a bare idea. Come in and see the actual demonstration board itself. It will prove the magic of revolutionary new DEVOE WONDER-1-COAT as nothing else can. Come in soon, won't you?
